YOUNG INSULL GOES TO PARIS

Both Parties Center on Middle West.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Presidential politics began to converge upon Chicago yesterday, as a curtain raiser for the battle between Hoover and Roosevelt for the winning of the agricultural midwest. Republican national headquarters at the Palmer house indicated that President Hoover's speech at Des Moines Oct. 4 may have wider scope than the farm issues alone and that it may be the most important address of his campaign, outrating even his acceptance speech.

The Democrats, meanwhile, got ready to tell James A. Farley, the Roosevelt manager, in a conference at the Congress hotel today, that they believe Cook county will roll up large pluralities for Roosevelt for President and Judge Henry Horner for governor, and that downstate will increase instead of decreasing the Democratic lead. Gov. Roosevelt is to speak at a Democratic banquet at the Stevens hotel Saturday night.

Biggest Gun of Campaign.

The Hoover speech at Des Moines, one week from today, is regarded by Palmer house headquarters as likely to be the most momentous utterance in the Republican campaign. As they view it, the impression made by the Hoover acceptance speech marked a turn in the political tide. The leaders at headquarters declare they have been receiving reports from western states in which Gov. Roosevelt has made addresses during his present tour to the effect that they have weakened his candidacy. The Republicans consider that interest in the Des Moines address—the opening speech of the President's campaign—is so widespread as to require that it include more issues than agriculture alone.

After a week-end at the White House H. E. Spangler, Iowa national committeeman, passing through Chicago yesterday, conferred with National Chairman Everett Sanders on the plans for the Hoover Iowa appearance.

Huge Crowd Expected.

"While the president will discuss particularly the problems of agriculture," said Mr. Spangler, "it is highly probable that his address will have a wider scope. The President plans no other talks en route to Des Moines, and will immediately return to his desk at the White House, where many pressing problems demand his attention.

"The Des Moines speech will draw one of the largest crowds ever assembled in Iowa, and there will be caravans from all parts of the state to the capital."

As the plans now stand the Hoover address is to start at 7:30 p. m. with a national radio hookup.

Headquarters was advised that President Hoover will leave Washington on a special train, probably Monday morning, arriving in Des Moines about 24 hours later. The route has not been determined, but no stops are to be made en route for platform appearances.

It was indicated that the address would include utterances on nearly all the subjects treated by Gov. Roosevelt in his tour.

Democrats Greet Farley Today.

Meanwhile the Democrats are set for their confab today with Mr. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee. He is to attend a luncheon at the Congress at noon, with 1,000 at the tables. In the afternoon the state and Cook county committee will go into close conference with the Roosevelt manager. The local lights will give the local situation, and in return Mr. Farley will inform them of the progress made by the New York governor on his western trip.

Gov. Roosevelt is to arrive Friday at 9 p. m. over the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific. He is to be met at the Union station by an outpouring of Democrats, every ward to be represented by at least 200, according to the plans.

Announcement last night was that only 2,600 seats would be available for the Roosevelt dinner Saturday night. Tickets are $3 a plate. The Roosevelt speech is to be thrown into Grant park by loud speakers and is to be broadcast nationally. On his way to Chicago, it was announced, Roosevelt will speak briefly at Freeport at 9:40 a. m. Friday, and at Savannah, Ill.; Beloit, Wis., and at Milwaukee he is to speak at 1 p. m.

SCHMELING WINS FROM WALKER AT END OF EIGHTH

Max Schmeling of Germany won from Mickey Walker of Rumson, N. J., by a technical knockout in their fight at the Madison Square Garden corporation's Long Island bowl last night before a crowd of 50,000. The fight ended in the intermission between the eighth and ninth rounds, when Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, entered the ring, and halted the bout in behalf of his fighter.

Max Baer knocked out Tuffy Griffith at the Chicago Stadium last night. The knockout came in the seventh round. It was a technical knockout.

India Celebrates Gandhi's Victory

Britain May Call New Parley.

POONA, India, Sept. 26.—(AP)—With a few sips of musambi, a sweet lime juice concoction, Mahatma Gandhi, India's holy man, today brought to an end his "fast unto death," to which he had held for six days and five hours and from which his physicians declared he would recover.

Conditional acceptance by the British government of a compromise electoral system drawn up by representatives of caste Hindus and the untouchables was the factor which impelled the mahatma to take food again. Since last Tuesday noon he had lived on water with pinches of salt or soda in it.

All India Rejoices.

The news of the action in London caused great rejoicing in India. At Simla the halls of the Indian legislative assembly echoed with loud cheers and there was a similar demonstration in the council of state.

But the greatest demonstration was in Yeravda jail, where Gandhi is confined. The jail yard was transformed into a gay reception chamber, with carpets spread from wall to wall and garlands of flaming Indian flowers hung about. The actors in this happy scene were about 100 relatives, friends and associates of the nationalist leader who witnessed the historic fast breaking.

Before relieving his hunger the mahatma obtained from Col. Doyle, inspector general of prisons, a promise that he would take up with the government the question of allowing Gandhi to remain in contact with his friends. The little nationalist has been under arrest since January and such contacts were permitted during the period of his fast.

Expect Aid for Untouchables.

This question of seeing his associates is of the greatest importance to the mahatma, as he expects the new agreement to establish equality of citizenship in India and to result in revolutionary changes in the treatment accorded untouchables.

There was considerable delay in getting the London government's announcement of its approval to the mahatma. This resulted from difficulty in decoding the official message.

All Poona already had heard the news and followers of the mahatma flocked to the prison. Indian women in brilliantly colored saris and men attired in white clothes and Gandhi caps hastened to get special permits that they might enter the prison compound. They carried with them garlands of flowers and heaped up baskets of fruit.

Gandhi Issues Statement.

Tonight Gandhi made the following statement:

"I am wedded to the whole agreement and the depressed classes may ha' my life as hostage for its due fu' ... we, ourselv ... arrive at any other and better settlement of our own free will."

The holy man expressed his thanks to the government, to the staff in Yeravda jail, and to the physicians appointed to look after him for their "extreme care and attention" and declared nothing had been left undone.

At Simla, the Indian summer capital, it was reported, without official confirmation, that Gandhi may be released from prison shortly because of his weakened condition.

Will Recover, Doctors Say.

During the tedious hours just before he released himself from his vow the mahatma was in a piteous condition. Friends gathered about his cot in the jail compound did their utmost to relieve him. He received frequent massages. He had several injections and submitted to a native treatment of mud plasters applied to the head.

"As Gandhi has broken his fast and is beginning to take fruit juice and honey, his system will gradually get used to these foods until he returns to his normal diet in the course of a week," a statement from his physicians said tonight.

Similarly his tissues and strength will improve. Considering the past history of his blood pressure, however, he will have to be careful and see that it does not rise any higher.

The mahatma was so weak his wife had to lift him up on his cot while

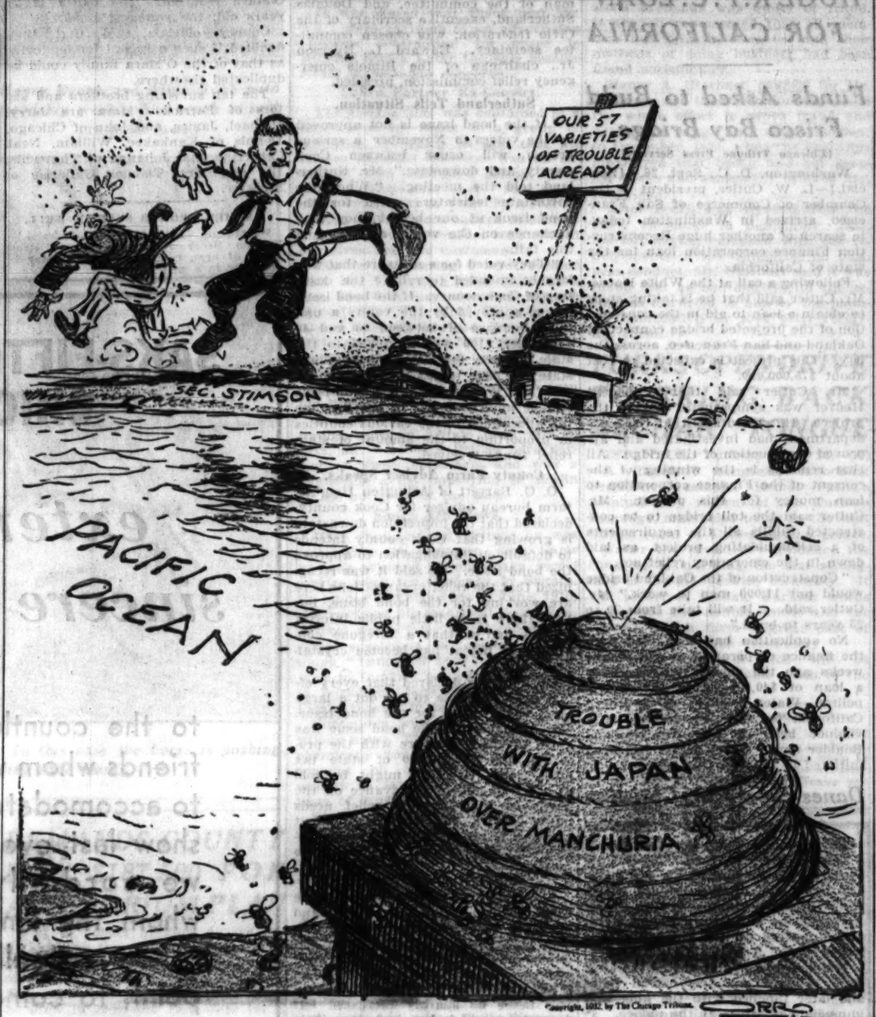
STILL MEDDLING



Torture Gang Robs Farmer, Three Sisters

For two decades or more Richard Vinke, who is now 61 years old, has been cultivating 56 acres of onions on his farm near 161st and Halsted streets, South Holland. He has been both thrifty and wary and as a consequence there was hidden in his home a large sum of money. Rumor put the amount in the tens of thousands.

Yesterday afternoon an automobile carrying six young men halted in the Vinke yard. The men were armed. Five of them went into the house, although Vinke's three spinster sisters tried to bar the doors against them. The sixth gunman strode to the barn, where Vinke was milking a cow. Thrusting a pistol against the farmer's back, he compelled him to go to the house.

Demands the Hidden Dough.

"We know," said the leader, who alone of the six was masked, "that you've got a lot of dough hid around here. Your neighbors have been talking about it. Where is it?"

Vinke protested that they were mistaken. Then the masked man drew a knife and held it in front of the onion grower's face.

"We want $40,000," he said. "If we don't get it I'll cut your eyes out."

The sisters of the farmer, Misses Jennie, Maggie and Johanna Vinke, were tied to chairs and threatened with similar torture. All persisted in their refusal to tell the whereabouts of the hoard.

Ceasing their threats, the bandits began a search of the house. They ripped open all the chairs and sofas and mattresses and searched in every nook and cranny. In two stoves they found rolls of bills. They found more money in a clothes closet and still more in a cigar box.

Amount of Loot is Secret.

Apparently satisfied with the loot, the six men departed. It was half an hour later when one of the sisters, freeing herself, went to a neighbor's home and telephoned to the county highway police at Homewood. When the police arrived Vinke talked freely about everything except the amount taken from him.

"It was a lot," he remarked, "but I won't tell you how much. Ask my sisters."

The sisters refused to tell, either, asserting that they didn't want the neighbors to know their former financial condition.

HURRICANE HITS VIRGIN ISLANDS; GUARD PROPERTY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, Sept. 26.—A hurricane of severe intensity struck the Virgin Islands today. The home guard and police were ordered out to safeguard property.

Warned by Telegraph.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Meteorologist F. E. Hartwell tonight reported a tropical storm of great intensity was apparently centered between St. Croix and St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands at 7 p. m. and heading toward the east coast of Porto Rico.

Forewarned by telegraph and telephone messages sent out under orders of Gov. James R. Beverley, the islanders tonight took hammer in hand and with all the speed possible prepared to weather as best they could a probable hurricane before morning.

100 Mile an Hour Wind.

West Palm Beach, Fla., Sept. 27 [Tuesday].—(AP)—The Radio Marine corporation station here early today reported it had communicated with San Juan, Porto Rico, and received reports of 100 mile an hour winds there at 11 o'clock last night. There were no reports of damage.

The school board, in a special meeting yesterday afternoon, decided to leave the management of the school lunchrooms in the hands of domestic science teachers. Nearly 100 leaders of parent-teacher organizations appeared in the board room to fight a proposal to give the management to private individuals.

Mary Dempsey, president of the school lunchroom assistants' and attendants' union, had asked a hearing on a plan to place her members in charge of the cafeterias. Neither Miss Dempsey nor any other proponent of the plan stepped forward when Lewis E. Myers, president of the board, gave them a chance to be heard.

The reasons for opposition to a change were given by Mrs. Thomas B. Stephenson, director of district 1, embracing 87 parent-teacher groups on the south side. "The lunchrooms are conducted in a wholesome manner by the home economics teachers," she said. "We oppose giving them over to persons outside the educational department for a profit."

$15,470 Spent For Food.

Mrs. Stephenson said her organization had spent $15,470 last year to provide lunches and milk for school children, and that a similar amount had been used for this purpose by the 91 parent-teacher organizations on the north side, in district 23, of which Mrs. J. Oros is director.

"The fathers and mothers don't have to worry," asserted Trustee Joseph Savage. "What I don't like is that each lunchroom makes a profit. You'll have a situation here of one lunchroom vying with another to see which can make the most money."

"They make only a small profit," said Trustee William D. McJunkin, turning to Harry Brackett, school auditor, for verification.

Make Profit of $15,900.

Mr. Brackett reported that from Sept. 1, 1931, to May 31, 1932, all the 60 lunchrooms operated in the senior and junior high schools and branches had accumulated a profit of $15,900. "And they took in $1,500,000 in gross receipts," he said.

"That's comparatively no profit at all," remarked President Myers.

"It would be a very serious thing," said Trustee Robert F. Carr, "to endanger the system to make more jobs for somebody."

League Told by De Valera It Has Failed

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 26.—Eamon de Valera, long nosed and lanky president of the Irish Free State, won his spurs as an international killjoy here today when he opened the 13th annual assembly of the league of nations with a speech which sounded for all the world like the league's funeral oration.

Braving the fate of dissenters and iconoclasts everywhere, he brutally told the Geneva brotherhood that it had lost the world's confidence because of its failure to grapple boldly with the major problems of the world, notably disarmament and the situation in the far east.

Disarm Bureau Quits.

This was the beginning of a lugubrious day in Geneva, but the worst came in the afternoon when, as if to confirm De Valera's indictment, the bureau of the disarmament conference counted itself out for an indefinite period on what looked to ringside observers like a low blow.

The bureau, or steering committee, had met in secret session to consider the repeated demands by its president, Arthur Henderson, for immediate convocation of the general conference inasmuch as the bureau was not willing to attack basic problems such as Germany's demand for equality in armaments. When the secret session was over all that could be found in the room were a few of Henderson's feathers, and the public meeting was held merely to announce that the bureau would adjourn until Oct. 10 and would then reconsider convocation of the general conference.

The announcement was accompanied by a particularly venomous exchange of asperities between Henderson, Joseph Paul-Boncour, French minister of war, and Hugh R. Wilson, American delegate and minister to Switzerland, indicating a deep bitterness by the bureau's disarming deacon over the lukewarmness of his flock.

De Valera Attacks League.

And this from De Valera:

"There are on all sides complaints of bitterness and suspicion," he declared in opening the assembly as president of the league council and president pro tem. of the assembly.

It was obvious from the tilt of his nose that he had come to bury Caesar, not to praise him.

"People are complaining that the league is devoting its activity to matters of secondary interest while vital international problems of the day are being shelved or ignored," he continued. "People are saying that equality of states does not apply here in things that matter.

Says People Are Impatient.

"People are becoming impatient at the apparently meager face saving results of successive league conferences and meetings. They are inquiring whether these conferences justify the burden of contributions to the league's budget. Finally there is the suspicion that little more than lip service is paid to the fundamental principles on which the league was founded.

"There is a suspicion that action by the league in the economic sphere is paralyzed by pressure of powerful national interests and that if a hand

Ex-Trust Officials Subpoenaed.

Samuel Insull Jr., son of the deposed head of the two billion dollar Insull utilities system, has left Chicago to join his parents in Paris. His mother, Mrs. Samuel Insull Sr., is reported to be seriously ill.

After young Insull's departure members of State's Attorney Swanson's special "Insull" staff revealed that it had been their intention to question him tomorrow concerning the collapse of the $240,000,000 Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and the $150,000,000 Corporation Securities Co. Young Insull was president of both concerns.

The young man left for New York last Friday, sailed aboard the Britannic on Saturday, and is expected to disembark at Liverpool, where the liner is due next Sunday. His wife and infant son, Samuel Insull III, are remaining in their apartment here.

Simpson Explains Trip.

An announcement, and an explanation of young Insull's trip abroad was made by James Simpson, successor to Samuel Insull Sr. as chairman of the board of the three Chicago utilities—Commonwealth Edison company, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and Public Service company of Northern Illinois.

Since his father's abdication Mr. Insull Jr. has been vice chairman of the three operating companies and Mr. Simpson's right hand man. In announcing young Insull's departure, Mr. Simpson said:

"Upon my return from my trip abroad I found that many of the officers of the companies had been working without rest and under high pressure for many months, and I have asked several of them to take vacations.

Mother Seriously Ill.

"Among them is Samuel Insull Jr. He has been much concerned over the serious illness of his mother and at my suggestion he is going to Paris to visit her. He left Saturday and will return in November."

An associate of Mr. Insull's said the young man left reluctantly and only on Mr. Simpson's insistence.

"He has been working himself to the point of a breakdown," his associate said. "He was reluctant to leave for fear of criticism. He had no idea, of course, that he might be wanted for immediate questioning in financial matters. He would be back on the next boat if asked to come."

Subpoenas Insull Officials.

Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley issued subpoenas yesterday for two of young Insull's associates in the investment trusts and will begin bankruptcy hearings on both concerns Thursday.

The men subpoenaed are F. J. McEnroe, former vice president of Insull Utility Investments and of Corporation Securities, and John F. O'Keefe, former secretary-treasurer of both concerns. Mr. O'Keefe was for many years private secretary to Samuel Insull Sr.

Judge Lindley issued the subpoenas at the request of Attorneys H. F. White and Lewis F. Jacobson, counsel for the petitioning creditors of the two bankrupt investment companies.

Willing to Tell Story.

Messrs. McEnroe and O'Keefe, who have been expecting to be summoned, were served subpoenas late yesterday. Both evinced willingness to tell everything they know.

If ordinary federal court procedure is followed, Attorneys White and Jacobson will conduct the examination of the two officials for the purpose of discovering assets for the benefit of the creditors they represent.

The stated purpose is said to be sufficiently broad so that the attorneys, in their examination of various witnesses, expect to unfold the picture of Samuel Insull's downfall "as clearly as a movie drama." In his order Judge Lindley said that subpoenas for additional witnesses would be issued as they became necessary. The hearings are expected to consume weeks.

U. S. Presses Investigation.

The federal search for evidence of criminality in the financial operations of Samuel Insull and his associates was begun yesterday about the time Judge Lindley's order arrived here.

Evidence of the government's determination to expose and prosecute the guilty ones, should any criminality be discovered, was seen in the fact that Harold Nathan of Washington, D. C., came here to take charge. Mr. Nathan is first assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice.

The assumption among the Insull executives, many of whom view the federal investigation with admitted anxiety, was that the recent campaign of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for President, mentioning "Insullism," was spurring the Hoover administration to get to the bottom of the Insull case.

That one phase of the investigation has already been productive was hinted in a high quarter at the federal building. One of the officials concerned, a man whose name cannot be used by reason of his official position, said the examination of the income tax returns of several Insull executives showed "discrepancies," which would require explanation before the commissioner of internal revenue in Washington.

To Quit Other Officers.

Other officers and directors of the Insull holding and investment companies will be questioned by Mr. Swanson, regardless of the departure of Samuel Insull Jr., it was announced.

Among the first to be called will be Marshall E. Sampsell, former president of the Central Illinois Public Service company, E. V. Graham, vice president of the Middle West Utilities company, Insull holding concern now in receivership but not bankrupt, and Mr. O'Keefe.

Mr. Sampsell is to be examined concerning his "borrowing" of 4,000 shares of the $6 preferred stock of his company from the company's treasury to cover one of his margin accounts in the stock market. In consideration of the "borrowing," Mr. Sampsell left only his personal receipt in the vault. Only a portion of the stock has been recovered and a claim for the remainder has been filed with the surety company which bonded him.

"Grand jury action in the Insull matters may be expected in the near future," declared a member of State's Attorney Swanson's "Insull staff."

"We have uncovered an enormous number of unauthorized loans, made by officers of the Insull companies from the companies' treasuries in violation of the companies' by-laws," he declared.

Members of the "Insull staff" are now delving into a hitherto unexplored phase of Samuel Insull's stock selling methods, it was learned. This relates to the sale of Insull securities to employés of the Insull operating companies.

Forced to Buy Stocks.

"We have received a great number of complaints from employés, particularly in the Joliet region," the staff man said. "These employés declare they were literally forced to buy Insull stocks, the reported method being to 'penalize' an employé violating the company's working rules by telling him a stock purchase would restore him to good standing.

"Moreover, we have so far been unable to discover any authorization for stock sales in the office of the secretary of state, where all security sales are required to be qualified."

J. W. Harris, state representative of the 21st district, announced he would introduce a resolution in the state legislature calling for a legislative investigation of the acts of the Illinois commerce commission with reference to all public utilities in the state.

Answering the implied criticism, G. Gale Gilbert, chairman of the commerce commission, asserted in a 600 word statement that none of the Insull holding and investment companies was under the jurisdiction of the commission. All operating utilities of the Insull system in Illinois are solvent and giving uninterrupted service to the public, Mr. Gilbert pointed out.

CALL DEATH ACCIDENTAL.

The fatal shooting of Laventy Tatarchuk, 31 years old, 2126 South Washtenaw avenue, a bystander, by policemen pursuing burglars who were fleeing from 1808 Blue Island avenue on Sunday, was termed accidental death by a coroner's jury yesterday.

RELIEF SESSION REOPENS TODAY; ACTION IN DOUBT

Fear Lack of Attendance Will Tie Up Bills.

Chicago members of the Illinois general assembly left for Springfield last night fearful that the attendance at the resumption of the special session this morning would not be adequate even for the passage of so called secondary bills this week.

First importance is given to bills intended to raise a large part of the 36 million dollars the emergency relief commission says it will need before March 1. It is conceded that legislation on this scale will have little if any chance of passage before the Nov. 8 election, since the legislators are inclined to regard the recent loan of $5,000,000 to the state by the Reconstruction Finance corporation as a chance for a breathing spell.

But there are a number of other measures so well advanced that they might be passed during the next three days if the necessary two-thirds vote is in sight.

N. S. F. Check Law at Issue.

The bill in this group which has attracted the most attention is Senator Noah M. Mason's measure to rescind the N. S. F. check amendment to the revenue act adopted at the behest of teachers' organizations, an amendment which blocked the sale of Chicago board of education tax anticipation warrants.

The Mason bill passed the senate without opposition on Sept. 14 and the following day went to the house where it was sent to second reading without discussion. The teachers' organizations favor the repealer now and it probably will go up another step today. The cause of worry is whether there will be 102 affirmative votes on hand for passage tomorrow or Thursday.

Other Bills Near Passage.

The same situation confronts the Wright bill to permit the receivers of closed banks to pledge the assets of those banks as security for loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The bill has passed the senate. Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago] introduced a similar bill in the house and he now intends to press the matter.

Other bills which could be passed this week if there is sufficient attendance are those to protect the pensions of Chicago municipal employés who this year are taking a reduction in pay. These bills have passed the house and gone to the senate, where 34 votes are required for passage.

Representative Schnackenberg was one of the few Chicagoans who did not share in the general pessimism concerning the outlook.

"I believe we'll have two-thirds attendance in each house," he said, "and there is no opposition to several bills, so there is a chance for their passage this week."

INSULL WILLING TO HELP U. S. IN PROBE, HE SAYS

PARIS, Sept. 27 (Tuesday).—(Ⓐ)—The continental edition of the London Daily Mail today quoted Samuel Insull, former utilities chief, as saying he is ready to give the United States government what help he can in any investigation of the affairs of the Insull companies. He added, however, that he had thus far received no official intimation that he is wanted in America, the paper said.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT REACHES 494,078, AN INCREASE OF 8,563

Enrollment in the Chicago public schools yesterday reached a total of 494,078, an increase of 8,563 over the same period of registration for last year, according to Supt. William J. Bogan. The senior high schools with 105,831 students—an increase of 8,256—have the largest enrollment in history.

In the junior high schools the enrollment is now 46,415, or an increase of 6,193 over last year. The enrollment of elementary school pupils is 334,190, a decrease of 185, which reflects the declining birth rate, educators say.

The largest decrease is found in the continuation schools. Their enrollment of 1,695 is 4,434 less than last year. Decreased registration was also reported by Normal and Crane colleges and special branches of the school system.

SEEKS SECOND HUGE R. F. C. LOAN FOR CALIFORNIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—L. W. Cutler, president of the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco, arrived in Washington today, in search of another huge Reconstruction Finance corporation loan for the state of California.

Following a call at the White House, Mr. Cutler said that he is taking steps to obtain a loan to aid in the construction of the projected bridge connecting Oakland and San Francisco, across the bay. This project is expected to cost about $75,000,000.

Mr. Cutler said that President Hoover was sympathetic toward the project. He stated also that the navy department has investigated and approved construction of the bridge. All that remains is the winning of the consent of the Finance corporation to loan money for this project. Mr. Cutler said the toll bridge to be constructed fulfills all the requirements of a self-liquidating project, as laid down in the emergency relief act.

"Construction of the Oakland bridge would put 11,000 men to work," Mr. Cutler said. "It will take from 20 to 25 years to build."

No application has been filed with the finance corporation as yet. Some weeks ago the corporation approved a loan of $40,000,000 to the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California for the construction of a viaduct between Los Angeles and Boulder dam. Court action has been initiated to hold up this loan.

Third Slide in 3 Weeks Chokes Up Panama Canal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBAO HEIGHTS, C. Z., Sept. 26.—For the third time in as many weeks a strong earth movement today caused 100,000 cubic yards of earth to slide into the Panama canal at the east Culebra extension, blocking more than half the canal's channel. Nearly 150 feet remains open so there were no delays in transit.

APPROVE RELIEF BOND ISSUE, IS PLEA TO VOTERS

Failure Will Mean a Tax Increase, Leaders Warn.

Cook county voters must approve the $20,000,000 state emergency relief bond issue in the referendum at the Nov. 8 election or they will lose the faith and support of the entire downstate population. That was the keynote of a meeting called yesterday afternoon at the City club to launch the Cook county campaign for the bond issue.

One hundred civic leaders attended the meeting, which was held to organize the Cook county emergency bond issue committee that will carry on the campaign. Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railway, was elected chairman of the committee, and Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Civic federation, was chosen committee secretary. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the Illinois emergency relief commission, presided.

Sutherland Tells Situation.

"If the bond issue is not approved by the voters in November a serious breach will occur between Cook county and downstate," Mr. Sutherland told the meeting. "When the downstate legislators voted for the bond issue at our behest they took a chance on the voters approving it this fall.

"They voted for a measure that was largely intended to relieve the destitute of Cook county. If the bond issue is not approved by the voters a uniform increase of between 35 and 40 cents per $100 will be added to the state property tax levy, and the whole state will have to pay for Cook county relief. If it is approved the bond issue will be amortized out of the gasoline tax allocations to the various counties in proportion to the amount of state relief funds received."

County Farm Adviser Speaks.

O. G. Barrett of Arlington Heights, farm bureau adviser for Cook county, declared that the impression downstate is growing that Cook county intends to default on its obligation to approve the bond issue. He said it was recognized that the relief organizations here are working for the bond issue, but that there is so little public interest in the matter that a foregone conclusion of defeat has become crystallized.

Mr. Ryerson declared that every effort must be made to get out a large Cook county vote for the bond issue. He explained that the bond issue was voted by the legislature with the provision that $18,750,000 of state tax anticipation warrants might be sold in order to realize in advance on the bonds so that pressing relief needs might be met. Mr. Ryerson said that approval of the bond issue is an obligation that Cook county cannot fail to meet.

Others Call for Action.

"If this bond issue fails, not only will taxes be sharply increased but downstate, which has had very little of the relief funds, will suffer an injustice," said Harry Winder, president of the North Shore Hotel association. "Consequently Chicago would fare badly in future legislative matters."

"If the bond issue fails, downstate legislators will refuse to listen to further pleas for help from Cook county," said Victor Olander, of the Illinois Federation of Labor. "The result will be that we will not get further help when we need it. Relief work must continue, and we must have the continued help of the state legislature."

CERMAK SEEKS LAW TO BALK PROTESTS TILL TAXES ARE PAID

Mayor Cermak announced yesterday that he would urge the legislature at its special session this week to adopt a law which would prohibit a taxpayer from protesting his taxes until after they had been paid. If the taxes should be declared excessive, the taxpayer would be entitled to a rebate under the new law. Such a law, the mayor declared, would have prevented Chicago's present financial predicament.

DEATH TAKES 1ST OF 11 CHILDREN AFTER 77 YEARS

Piper City, Ill., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Patrick O'Mara died here today at the age of 73—the first of the eleven children in the O'Mara family to die since the birth of the eldest, 77 years ago.

O'Mara was a retired farmer and former road commissioner of this district. He was the third oldest of the O'Mara children. The oldest is 77 years old; the youngest is 59.

County officials said that they doubted if such a record for longevity as that of the O'Mara family could be duplicated elsewhere.

The ten surviving brothers and sisters of Patrick O'Mara are Jerry, Michael, James, and John of Chicago, Dennis of Kankakee, William, Neal, Catherine, and Johanna of Thawville, Ill., and Mrs. Thomas Gallahue of Streator.

DEPOSIT VAULT BURGLARS' LOOT SET AT $49,950

Eight gunmen who rifled the safe deposit vault of Koch & Co., 2603 South Halsted street, early this month, obtained total loot of $49,950 in cash, bonds and jewelry. This was revealed last night in a final report submitted to Commissioner James P. Allman. Thirty-seven victims of the burglary were listed.

Ten members of two families in the building were held prisoner by the robbers, who began their work at 2 p. m. on Sept. 3 and completed their looting 14 hours later.

Of the total loot, $28,182 was in cash—one of the largest cash hauls made by criminals here this year. Jewelry comprised $9,268 of the loot, and bonds $12,500. Only 172 of the 300 deposit boxes were rifled. The principal loss was by 37 box renters listed in the police report. The heaviest loser was Joseph Kirk of 723 West 31st street, whose loss was estimated at $12,750, chiefly in bonds. Individual cash losses ranged from $5 to $5,000.

Most of the victims lived in the vicinity of the Koch company vault. In several cases their life savings were taken.

Girl and 10 Youths Held in South Side Robberies

Ten youths were held by Woodlawn police last night in connection with recent south side robberies. A 14 year old girl was also being detained at the Juvenile home, and a second girl, 18 years old, was being sought. The girl held is Vivian Van Williams of 6344 Ingleside avenue. Five of the ten youths have bene identified in holdups. They are Mike Reardon, 19 years old, and Louis Yost, 22, both of 5653 Maryland avenue; James Franks, 20 years old, 6457 Drexel avenue; Irvine Levine, 24, of 8147 Anthony avenue, and Vernon Caudle, 18, of Wheaton.

BILLION DOLLAR SLASH URGED ON U. S. GOVERNMENT

New York, Sept. 26.—[Special.]—The conviction that a billion dollar reduction can and should be made in federal expenditures, that a saving of around 100 million dollars is essential in city expenditures, and that many millions can be pared from the costs of state government are expressed by Thomas J. Watson, president of the Merchants' Association of New York in his annual report made public today.

Mr. Watson holds that only a beginning has been made in the direction of reducing government expenditures to a point compatible with the needs of business, and says the work of translating these convictions into legislative action will undoubtedly remain one of the major undertakings of the Merchants' association during the coming year.

JUDGE REFUSES TO CLEAR DAVIS IN LOTTERY CASE

Rules Senator Must Have Known of Drawing.

New York, Sept. 26.—[Special.]—A motion for dismissal of the lottery indictment against Senator James J. Davis was denied by Judge Frank J. Coleman in federal court today with the observation that "the evidence thus far adduced must justify the jury in finding there was a lottery and that Davis, almost inevitably, must have known that tickets were shipped across state lines."

The prosecutor, Louis Mead Treadwell, an assistant United States attorney, having rested the government's case, the defense then took up a complicated and confusing chain of checks by which it hoped to prove that under an oral contract the Pennsylvania senator had sold his interest in the Loyal Order of Moose for $600,000 before the prize drawings of 1930 and 1931, and that the money traced to him from that source was either in payment on the contract or repayment of loans he had made before he sold out.

Government Builds Case.

The case which Mr. Treadwell had built up was in substance that during 1930 and 1931 the Moose, of which Mr. Davis was general director, had staged a series of charity balls. Tickets to these affairs entitled the holders to cash prizes amounting to $50,000 in 1930 and $150,000 in 1931, the winners being picked blindly from a barrel containing stubs of all the tickets sold each year.

Of the $3,000,000 proceeds from the sale of tickets which went to Theodore G. Miller, head of the propagation department of the order, and Bernard C. McGuire, a professional promoter, slightly more than $173,000 was traced into bank accounts controlled by Davis over which Fred W. Jones, the treasurer of the organization department of the order, had power of attorney.

Mr. Treadwell's last bit of evidence, put in before he rested today, was that the tickets had been sent to many states by the Western Union Telegraph company messenger service through an arrangement with Miller.

Claims Buying Davis' Interest.

Mr. Jones, whose title in the order was that of secretary and treasurer of the organization department, took the witness stand shortly before the noon recess, during which Judge Coleman denied the motions made by Joseph E. Davies, one of the defense counsel.

Under the questions of Charles J. Margiotti, another of the defense counsel, Mr. Jones told of a conference between Mr. Davis, himself and Joseph A. Jenkins, who had been called in from England, where he was supreme organizer for the order in Great Britain, at which it was agreed that the contract for organization work held by Mr. Davis would be transferred to them for $600,000.

They were to assume the work, he said, and pay interest on the $600,000 at 6 per cent per year. They were to make payments on the principal as they found it agreeable, and were to assume all of the assets and liabilities of the department contracted under the management of Mr. Davis.

Tells of Paying Note.

At that time, a note held by the Fidelity Trust company of Pittsburgh in the name of Mrs. Jean R. Davis, wife of the Senator, Mr. Jones said, was agreed upon as the pivot around which the first payment under the $600,000 verbal contract would be made.

Mr. Jones then told how, with Mr Davis, who was demanded as an indorser by the bank, the new officials of the Moose organization department, he and Jenkins, borrowed $150,000 from the Fidelity Trust company and paid off the $127,000 note of Mrs. Davis, using as the collateral for the new loan the same securities which had been put in the hands of the bank in 1927 when Mrs. Davis made the one which was canceled.

Then, Mr. Jones said, after the drawing of the charity ball prizes of 1930, the propagation department under Miller paid into the organization department $100,000, which was used to cancel two-thirds of the $150,000 loan which had been obtained from the Fidelity Trust company. This, Mr. Margiotti contended, was the real explanation of the one item of $100,000 which the prosecution had contended was given to Mr. Davis out of the proceeds of the 1930 ball.

Mortgage Company Payment.

He next took up a payment by Miller of $17,850.29 to the Liberty Bond and Mortgage company of Pittsburgh, of which Mr. Davis was the majority stockholder, and Mr. Jones, who for years had exercised power of attorney over various bank accounts of Mr. Davis, was secretary and treasurer.

By the introduction of a series of twenty-four checks, the total of which was $17,850.29, Mr. Margiotti sought to show that this was the total of money which had been advanced to Miller as loans during 1929 and 1930 by the bond and mortgage company through Mr. Jones.

"What security did he put up?" Judge Coleman asked.

"None," said Mr. Jones.

"And you we a trust company?" the court asked.

"Yes, sir."

At the end of the day Mr. Jones was still upon the witness stand.

Crowd of 25,000

A crowd estimated at 25,000 yesterday viewed the antique vehicle parade which was the opening event of Aurora's celebration of Friendship week.

In the line of march were several hundred vehicles, including ox carts, stage coaches, wagons used in the civil war, prairie schooners, jaunting cars, and a hearse. The exhibit which drew the most applause, however, was an oldtime beer wagon.

The celebration will continue through Saturday. The downtown section of the city has been decorated and carnival companies have been engaged for the entertainment of attendants.

WAR SPY FIGHTS TO CLEAR NAME IN BRITISH COURT

Ex-Convict Sues Business Partner for Libel.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 26.—A mysterious Mr. "X," who was sentenced to prison for life as a spy in Old Bailey, London's chief criminal court, in 1915, figured as the prosecutor in a libel suit in the same court today.

The defendant, Ronald Black, described as an advertising contractor, pleaded not guilty and justification to charges of publishing defamatory libel.

It was stated that Black and Mr. "X" were partners in an advertising business contracting for space in laundry books. Later the pair became rivals in separate concerns.

Called Partner Ex-Convict.

The alleged libel was contained in a letter sent by Black to a group of laundries, in which he said that his former business associate was an ex-convict from Dartmoor prison. The letter further said that "like many other criminals he [Mr. X] reverted to type and we were obliged to dismiss him for dishonest conduct both toward ourselves and our customers."

During the hearing it was revealed that Mr. "X" was tried twice as a spy. The first jury disagreed but the second convicted him. He was sentenced to penal servitude for life. In 1924, eight and one-half years after his sentence, he was brought from Dartmoor to London, interviewed by officers of the secret service and given his liberty.

According to authorized accounts of foreign spies in Britain from 1914 to 1918, Mr. "X" is a British born subject of Swiss extraction and was a vaudeville artist appearing in Berlin at the outbreak of the war.

Songs Are Clews.

With thousands of Britons he was interned in the Ruhleben camp. Later he was released to undertake secret service work for Germany in Britain. He landed at Folkestone in June, 1915, and resumed his theatrical profession. Several weeks later postal censors became suspicious of copies of two songs, "Ladder of Love" and "On the Way to Dublin" mailed to an address in Zurich by Jack Cummings of the Palace theater in London.

Cummings was found to be a fictitious name. The songs were treated chemically and found to contain an account of conditions in Britain written in invisible ink between the lines of music.

The sender was eventually traced to Glasgow, where he was billed to appear at a music hall. After his conviction he informed British secret service officials on German methods of procuring information about Britain.

DEMANDS COUNTY PAY $187,500 FOR AUDITORIUM PLAN

Suit to collect $187,500 as his fee for drawing the plans of a civic auditorium which was never built was filed in the Circuit court yesterday by Eric Hall, county architect. The plans he drew in 1927 and 1928 were for a $15,000,000 civic auditorium.

The suit petitions for a mandamus to compel the county board to pay Hall his fee, which is one and one-quarter per cent of the cost of the building. The action will be heard by Judge Thomas Taylor Jr. this week.

The voters authorized a $15,000,000 bond issue for the auditorium, but the state Supreme court later declared it illegal although the county collected $750,000 in taxes in 1928 toward paying interest on the bond issue. This sum has been placed in the general corporate fund, the petition said.

Mrs. Wieland Drops Suit to Divorce Rich Dairyman

Mrs. Mae Wieland yesterday withdrew her bill for divorce against Charles J. Wieland, millionaire dairyman, before Circuit Judge Philip Finnegan. She said she did not want a divorce on the charge of adultery in her bill because stigma might be attached to her children and because she feared her husband would "go to the other woman," named in the bill as Miss Buelah Johnson, 659 Wrightwood avenue. Attorney Charles C. Colley, representing Mrs. Wieland, said he is preparing a bill for separate maintenance. Attorney Paul R. Simon, representing Mr. Wieland, said he will contest the new action. The attorneys agreed there is no hope of reconciliation.

Jury Hears Broker's Deal Called Fraud.

New York, Sept. 26.—[Special.]—A suit for the recovery of $1,250,000 from E. H. H. Simmons, who was president of the stock exchange from 1923 to 1927, filed by Mrs. Harriet J. Raldiris on June 20, 1928, came to trial today before Supreme Court Justice Phoenix Ingraham and a jury.

Mrs. Raldiris charges that between June 1, 1923, and Oct. 1, 1927, she intrusted securities worth $800,000 to Herman W. Booth, a member of the stock exchange, and that Booth converted them to his own uses, going into bankruptcy in October, 1927, with assets of $235,000 and liabilities of $4,500,000.

In his opening address to the jury, Murray Hulbert, counsel for the plaintiff, set up that the stock exchange was negligent in that it should have supervised Booth's transactions, whereas it was shown after the failure that he kept no records.

Mr. Hulbert also charged that the stock exchange was guilty of fraud, in that it represented that all members had been investigated and their methods of doing business had been found satisfactory.

Henry A. Uterhart, counsel for Mr. Simmons and the stock exchange, said the whole effort to prove fraud and negligence hangs on a single incident in December, 1924, when the exchange discovered that Booth was not keeping books and summarily ordered him to do so.

After Booth was expelled from the stock exchange in September, 1927, for not having complied with the requirements of the committee on business conduct, Mr. Uterhart said it was found that he had disposed of the securities intrusted to him by the plaintiff immediately or soon after receiving them.

TURKS OPEN DRIVE TO BRING BACK ARCHAIC TONGUE

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 26.—(AP)—A linguistic congress, launching President Mustapha Kemal Pasha's revolutionary reform of the Turkish language, assembled today in the vast throne room of Dolmabagtche palace.

Under the president's guidance the congress is storming the last stronghold of the old Turkish mentality. It will resurrect archaic Turkish words to replace the Arabic words and the Persian which form a great part of the current Turkish vocabulary.

Even the name of God will be changed from the Arabic Allah to the Turkish Tchalap.

GLENN BELIEVES REVENUE NEED WILL BRING BEER

Makes Plea for Economy in Government.

Belief that congress soon will be forced to legalize beer as a means of gathering tax revenue for the depleted national treasury was expressed yesterday by United States Senator Otis F. Glenn, speaking at a meeting of the Junior Association of Commerce in the Hotel Sherman.

"It is not a question of beer," he said. "We have beer. It is a question of wholesome brew as against home brew and poisonous alley beer. It is a question of whether we want to give 400 to 500 millions of dollars yearly to the bootlegger or to the government."

The solution of the question may be found, he said, in the definition of what constitutes an intoxicating alcoholic beverage under the Volstead act. As an example, the senator pointed out that it would be possible to change the definition from one-half of 1 per cent to 3 per cent alcoholic content.

Beer Needed for Revenue.

Congress will be driven to turn to legalized beer as a means of raising revenue for the treasury, which "several times last year caused serious doubt whether it would remain sound and solvent," Senator Glenn said.

"I believe that revenue from the income tax will be smaller than expected," he said. "We have tapped almost every source of revenue, and have added burdensome taxes to raise money.

"There must be a drastic curtailment of expenditures of federal, state, and local governments. We have just scratched the surface. Big business set an example of wild extravagance several years ago and government officials caught the fever. Big business now is setting a good example of economy. As we followed the business leaders in the days of their foolishness and folly, we should follow them now in their days of wisdom."

Describes Bonus Vote.

Senator Glenn spoke of the dramatic scene which marked the senate vote on the bonus bill, with advocates of immediate payment of the bonus crowding the gallery, and some 15,000 added bonus champions waiting outside.

"I believe that the treasury would have been unable to stand the strain which would have been placed upon it if the bonus bill had passed," he said. "I am proud to say that only 14 senators voted for the bill. It means more to every veteran to have a financially sound country than to have $200 to $300."

SOCIALIZING OF INDUSTRY, THOMAS' TOPIC

Expounds His Views in Milwaukee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Socialization of industry by confiscation if the owning class offers too violent resistance and by taxation and a capital levy if possible, were recommended tonight by Norman Thomas, Socialist nominee for President, in a speech in Eagles' hall.

Socialization by purchase, financed by taxation and a capital levy is preferable because it promises most peaceful transition from private to socialized industry, the speaker said. Violent revolution might cost more than a fair purchase price, he added.

President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt both have failed to give a detailed defense of their positions, the speaker asserted. He recognizes that no one way of transferring industry to the nation is the right way in all times and all circumstances. Confiscation of industry, he said, would be restitution.

Parades on Foot.

Liberal estimates were that there were 3,000 persons in the parade. The march started from the foot of Wisconsin avenue at the lake front after the Internationale had been sung and came up through town to the little park standing before the Union station where Thomas made his first address.

On Socializing Banks, Industry.

Mr. Thomas explained in detail his plan for socializing banks and industry. Referring to his amortization of bond issues, he said:

"These bonds also should be subject to the graduated capital levy which I am increasingly persuaded we shall have to lay on wealth to wipe out or at least reduce the burden of war and other nonproductive debt under which we stagger. This capital levy of itself would facilitate the actual social ownership of industry.

"This necessarily would not mean violence."

violent resistance of the owning class. It has not rebelled against the British taxes which are driving down great landed proprietors. Besides, an owning class only fights if it can fool a great many workers into fighting with and for it. Stripped of the cry of confiscation to alarm the man who has a little something, they cannot arouse the farmers and workers. United in the Socialist party, backed by our unions and cooperatives, we shall have power not less effective and far less destructive than any reckless appeal

DEMOCRATS CONTROL SENATE AS COLORADO PUBLISHER IS NAMED

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Democrats gained mathematical control of the senate when Gov. W. H. Adams of Colorado today appointed a member of that party to fill the unexpired term of the late Charles W. Waterman, Republican.

The lineup in the last session was 48 Republicans against 47 Democrats, with one Farmer-Labor member.

The Democrats now obtain a majority of one with Walter Walker, former chairman of the Democratic state committee, named to succeed Senator Waterman.

Governor Selects Walker.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Gov. W. H. Adams today appointed Walter Walker, Grand Junction publisher, United States senator to fill the unexpired term of the late Charles W. Waterman. Walker recently retired as chairman of the Democratic state committee.

Walker long has been active in the Democratic party in the state. His appointment by Gov. Adams is seen as a reward for service as chairman of the state central committee, which position he held until a week ago. Walker was a delegate to the last three Democratic national conventions. He was chairman of the Colorado delegation at the Chicago convention in June. He has served as state chairman for two years and in that position conducted the 1930 state campaign. Walker has been a confidant and adviser of Gov. Adams and has been in close touch with statehouse affairs.

HORNER REVEALS SOME DETAILS OF OPPONENT'S TRIP

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Eldorado, Ill., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—New chapters from the book of Len Small's "waterway" campaign for governor are being revealed from time to time by his Democratic opponent, Judge Henry Horner, and today's release, while not as humorous as others which preceded it, was wholly in charcter.

In a speech at Grayville, over on the banks of the Wabash in eastern Illinois, and at Eldorado, Judge Horner declared that while cruising Illinois waters in search of Illinois votes, Small's steamer was coaled in Kentucky and provisioned in Missouri.

"I'm told," said the Democratic candidate, "that while my opponent sat upon the upper deck of the S. S. Cape Girardeau at St. Louis telling the reporters that he was for the purchase of Illinois products, meats, bearing the stamp of a Missouri packing house were being loaded into the hold below him.

Coaled from Kentucky.

"The same action was taken when the steamer, and the government barge it towed along as a show boat, was off the Kentucky shore, coal was needed and it was bought in Kentucky.

"To my opponent, consistency is no jewel. He is making emphatic appeals to Illinois miners and Illinois laborers yet he stocks his boat in Missouri and Kentucky."

Cement Purchases Bared.

While on the subject of home state products, Judge Horner had a word to say on the purchase of Illinois cement. During Small's eight years as governor, he told his audiences, the state purchased, at a maximum, only 43 per cent of its cement from Illinois mills. The minimum was 28 per cent. Under Gov. Emmerson's administration this was raised to 70 per cent.

"When I am governor, the state will buy all of its cement from Illinois mills," the judge promised. "We urge industries to locate in this state. Illinois' laborers keep their wheels turning, and we should patronize them to as great an extent as we can."

The judge will enter the heart of the Egyptian coal country tomorrow, speaking at Benton and Carbondale.

Wayland Brooks Honored for World War Service

C. Wayland Brooks, Republican candidate for state treasurer, and Judge William E. Helander of the Municipal court, both of whom served during the war as first lieutenants with the 6th Marines and were wounded in action, were decorated yesterday with the Purple Heart by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth Corps area.

GARNER STILL THINKS SMITH WILL THROW SUPPORT TO TICKET

New York, Sept. 26.—[Special.]—John N. Garner, the Democratic nominee for Vice President, hasn't called on ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith since his last visit to New York, but he "still hopes and believes that in a short time" Mr. Smith will give his wholehearted support to the Democratic national ticket.

Mr. Garner arrived today from Washington to talk things over with the national leaders—and to see a world series baseball game—and at the Hotel Biltmore, where he will stay until Thursday, he radiated Democratic optimism.

"The ticket's mighty strong," he exclaimed. "I've been traveling a lot and I make it a point to talk to railroad men everywhere I go—porters and engineers and conductors and track men, everybody I see. They all tell me they're going to vote Democratic. Their families are voting that way, too."

"I'm up here to see the national committee about a lot of things," he said. "I've got to see about a speaking itinerary and find out whether I'm going to make a speaking tour, anyway. Maybe I won't go out on tour.

"Gov. Roosevelt is making such a fine impression everywhere he goes that maybe it won't be necessary for me to go out. They're getting fine reports about the governor—everybody's delighted with the way he looks and with what he says."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Persons whose identities were not revealed have just finished an exhaustive search of the records of the royal borough of Kensington to discover whether President Hoover ever voted in an English election, it was learned today. Mr. Hoover was a resident of Kensington from 1911 to 1914 and the investigation is said to show that his name appears on the register of voters, but not that he had ever voted.

Under the British voting system it is possible for an alien's name to appear on the register without his knowledge. Every municipal taxpayer is listed automatically and the names of ineligible voters are later removed. If no objection was made by Mr. Hoover his name would have remained on the register.

The home office also has been besieged with inquiries as to whether he was ever naturalized in England. The only reply is that his name does not appear on the list of those to whom certificates of naturalization were granted, but no answer is made to the question as to whether he ever applied for naturalization or inquired as to his eligibility.

TWO GUNMEN ROB COUPLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Simmons, 4425 Sheridan road, were robbed of $85, jewelry valued at $850 and their automobile early yesterday by two gunmen who held them up in a private garage at 924 Galt avenue.

COWBOYS CHEER ROOSEVELT; GIVE SPECIAL RODEO

Candidate Makes Address at Greenway Ranch.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Williams, Ariz., en route with Roosevelt Special, Sept. 26.—[Special.]—A presidential candidate joined today in the frolics of a crowd of true western cowboys, who staged a somewhat impromptu rodeo in his honor.

Gov. Roosevelt, having a day of rest and recreation at the ranch of Mrs. Isabelle Greenway, Democratic committeewoman for Arizona, watched the rough riding lads from ranches all around these parts doing their best tricks.

A thousand or more citizens of the state had trouped into Williams to greet the Democratic nominee, to hear him speak, and to see the show.

The governor, sitting in his automobile in a large ring of typical westerners, told them they needn't worry about competition with foreign countries after he becomes President.

It was the first time he had deigned to answer the claims put forth by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde and other Republican spokesmen that the Roosevelt program would wipe out entirely the tariff on farm and stock products and open the doors wide to the cheap goods of foreign countries.

Will Protect American Beef.

"I've been asked a lot of questions since I started out on this trip through your glorious west," the governor told the cowmen and their families today. "I haven't tried to answer most of them because they don't mean anything.

"Why, yesterday some of my Republican friends in Phoenix circulated a story that when I become President we're going to tear down the walls and let Argentine beef and Australian beef and Mexican beef come into this country tariff free.

"I don't think I need to answer that to you, my friends, but you can be sure we're going to look after the American people first. That's the best answer."

The governor was cheered with the whoops of the cowboys.

Will Visit Southland.

Mr. Roosevelt revealed that he is determined to go to the southland soon after he returns to Albany from this trip. He was telling his audience that he had come on this trip more to learn of the needs of every section of the country than to make speeches.

"After this trip I am going into the south, in Roosevelt land, where there are no Republicans at all," he said.

It was learned that while the nominee is anxious to visit Kentucky, Tennessee and other border states, principally for the purpose of telling the south he understands their problems and sympathizes with them, the Democratic war chest is getting quite low and may not stand the strain of a southern trip at this time. The governor has definitely planned a several days' visit to the sanitarium at Warm Springs, Ga., which he founded for the treatment of cases of infantile paralysis.

At midnight the Roosevelt special train was bearing eastward again to stop at Albuquerque, N. M., tomorrow morning and Colorado Springs tomorrow night.

KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

Fairfield, Ia., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Lois Flitz, 18, was killed and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Flitz of Fairfield, were severely injured last night in an automobile accident four miles east of Mount Pleasant. Robert Flitz, son of the couple, suffered minor injuries.

Republican Committee Puts Negro on Judicial Ballot

Republican ward committeemen acting as a city central committee, yesterday filled the vacancy on the Municipal court ballot caused by Judge William J. Lindsay's decision that Joseph F. Haas, who changed his name from Joseph Mill, was not entitled to twelfth place on the ballot. The committeemen picked J. Harold Mosely, a Negro lawyer, to take the place left vacant by Haas. Mosely was 15th on the list in the primary. Edgar F. Elder, who ran 13th, and whose petition resulted in the ousting of Haas, was not considered. Ald. Oscar F. Nelson was chairman of the committee and Edward F. Moore secretary.

HOOVER FINISHES IOWA SPEECH; TALKS POLITICS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—President Hoover today virtually completed the campaign speech he will deliver a week from tomorrow at Des Moines, Ia. According to White House officials, farm relief, the depression, and the steps taken by President Hoover to bring back prosperity will be the major subjects stressed by the President.

While putting the finishing touches on the address the President found time to discuss political conditions with callers from Maine, Massachusetts, and Utah. He also conferred with Secretary of the Treasury Mills and Secretary of War Hurley.

During the discussions with the cabinet members, considerable attention was paid to reports from the states where those two campaign speakers are to deliver addresses in the next ten days.

The President was told that Maine, Massachusetts, and Utah are safe for the Republican ticket barring unforeseen developments prior to the election. Representative Carroll L. Beedy [Rep., Me.], the only Republican representative to escape annihilation in Maine's recent electoral upset, assured Mr. Hoover that his state was all set to support the Republican national ticket in November.

There must be a bit of sunshine about the corners of his mouth most of the time—William Feather—his philosophical observations on the goings-on in this old world smile out so regularly in the New York Evening Post!

See what he said the other night about how fortunate a fellow is to find himself the victim of a good salesman. Worth reprinting—every word of it:

"There are few regrets over the purchase of a superior article.

"How true that is! Make a mental inventory of your wardrobe, your house, your office, your shop. What mocks you? Usually it's the bargains. The fine hat on which you spent twice as much as you intended still looks well. You are pleased with the maker, pleased with the salesman, pleased with yourself. It has outlasted three cheap hats and still looks better than any cheap hat ever looked, even on the day of purchase.

"There's profit in selling cheap things, but no profit in buying them, if you can afford something better. Most of us are fortunate that we are so often the victim of good salesmen. When they sell us their best stock they give us the bargains."

It rather gives a new meaning to that old slogan of ours, "The best is cheapest in the end," doesn't it?

ENROLL VOTERS OCT. 1-11; ALL MUST REGISTER

Old Books Discarded; New Record Expected.

Next Saturday is the first day of registration for the November election and both Republicans and Democrats began their activities yesterday to get the voters enrolled. The old registration books have been discarded and there is to be a complete new enrollment of voters for the general election. Those who do not register Saturday will have another opportunity Oct. 11.

The polling places will be open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. By reason of the intense interest in the presidential campaign this year all the political managers expect to set new records for registration. In other states which already have had their registration large increases have been noted in the number of electors placed on the books. The intensity of interest was demonstrated last week in Wisconsin, where the primaries in which the La Follette regime was overturned drew out a record primary vote for that state.

All Must Register to Vote.

Both in the country towns and in Chicago voters must register if they desire to qualify for the election. John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the election board, yesterday sent out a bulletin pointing out that no one can vote in the presidential election except those who register in person on one of the two days of registration, or who by reason of sickness or absence from the city register in the office of the election board at the city hall between the two precinct registration days.

The instructions say: "Voters who are unable to go to the precinct polling place to register on Oct. 1 [the first day of general registration], and who, by reason of absence from the city, or sickness, expect to be unable to go to the precinct polling place on Oct. 11 [the last day of registration] may make application for registration to the board of election commissioners at any time after Oct. 2 and before noon of Oct. 10, in which case their names will be entered upon the registers of their precincts."

Estimate Cost at $671,000.

The election board estimated yesterday that the two days of registration and the revision, which comes Oct. 15, will cost about $671,000. This includes the 3,029 precincts in Chicago, 45 in Berwyn, 59 in Cicero, 18 in Chicago Heights, 4 in Summit, 2 in Evergreen Park, and 1 in Stickney.

The estimate of costs is:

Pay roll of judges and clerks	$489,490
Rental of polling places	78,950
Printing registry lists	68,000
Posting notices	8,200
Registers	16,750
Printed forms, etc.	10,000
	$671,390

"The outlook," said Chief Clerk Rusch, "is that registration this year will break all former records."

300,000 Suburban Votes.

In the country towns County Clerk R. M. Sweitzer estimated yesterday that 300,000 voters will register on the two registration days. This estimate is about double the enrollment of two years ago, which was the first to take place in the towns under the new legislative act of 1929. A presidential election always brings out the vote.

"The law now requires every person in Cook county to register in order to cast a vote in the election of Nov. 8," said Dan A. Carey, chief clerk of the election department. "There is a potential vote of 500,000 in the country towns, exclusive of the five which are in the jurisdiction of the election board, and we look for a minimum country town registration of 300,000. Polling places are open from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m. in the country towns."

Elopes with Cop

SARA GWIN.

Hubert Kelsh, 27 years old, known as the most handsome detective on the Evanston police force, and Miss Sara Gwin, 22 years old, Northwestern university graduate of the class of 1932, eloped to Waukegan early yesterday morning and were married by Police Magistrate Walter D. Wright at 4 a. m. They had intended to keep the marriage secret for a time, they said.

Kelsh met Miss Gwin a year ago when he was assigned to the Evanston Country club when a student dance was given there. A heel broke off Miss Gwin's shoe during the dance and the detective carried her to her automobile, according to her sorority friends.

Kelsh is a graduate of Campion college and the son of W. J. Kelsh of Oshkosh, Wis. His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Gwin of Greenwood, Miss. They will live at 725 Washington street, Evanston.

OHIO CANDIDATES, RIVALS, DEBATE DRY LAW PLANKS

Each Charges Other with Insincerity.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Republican and Democratic candidates for one of Ohio's seats in the United States senate debated the prohibition planks of their respective party platforms here tonight, each charging the other with insincerity.

Senator Robert J. Bulkley, Democratic incumbent, summed up the Republican plank as "a futile thing saying nothing and binding no one." His opponent, Gilbert Bettman, Ohio's attorney general, called the Democratic plank a "gesture designed only to catch votes," and it only to lead "the nation into the chaos of nullification."

Asks Hoover or Curtis?

"If it is a repeal declaration," he said, "Vice President Curtis has either been imposed upon or else he is attempting to defraud the drys into voting for repeal. If it is a repeal declaration, President Hoover has defrauded Dr. Poling, whose support he accepts with Dr. Poling's avowed understanding that President Hoover is 'decisively a dry.' Who is the reliable interpreter of the Republican platform? He has not declared for repeal. Curtis? He has declared against repeal."

Bulkley argued that "the fundamental vice of the eighteenth amendment is not so much the rigid rule of prohibition—it is rather the subversion of the whole purpose of the federal constitution by making it the instrument of sumptuary law."

The Democratic party, he said, "stands forth as the outspoken advocate of unqualified repeal . . . but in the Republican convention the liberals were defeated and the plank adopted was that favoring submission of a substitute, or modification, amendment.

"Not Bound by Plank."

"Even this, however, is not advocated in a forthright manner, as the platform contains an express declaration that no one need feel bound by it. What do you say of the sincerity of purpose behind a plank which in its very terms declares that no member need be bound by it."

Bettman went into constitutional aspects of repeal as it affects both parties, saying:

"Nothing that ever went into the constitution has ever been taken out. To accomplish either the Democratic or the Republican program requires a two-thirds vote of the congress and then a three-fourths approval by the states. These are enormous hurdles to jump."

But the Republican program, he said, with its safeguard of congressional regulation to bar the return of the saloon, can take those hurdles.

Called Catch Phrases.

"In the mad rush against objectionable conditions produced in the country under the system of absolute prohibition," he said, ". . . the Democratic slogans of 'Repeal,' 'Outright Repeal,' 'Naked Repeal,' all have sounded to the people as though they promised greater cure for the afflicting ills. The truth is exactly the opposite. . . . 'Naked Repeal,' 'Outright Repeal,' are catch phrases that in this emotional period have caught the ear of the man on the street. . . .

"The circumstance that the true liberal and the true temperance man can agree upon the Republican positions does not make that position a straddle. They agree because they see that the Republican position is the only avenue to relief from conditions which both admit must be changed."

Mother Accused of Giving Poison to 7 Year Old Son

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Mrs. Catherine Whalen, 28, of East Dorset, Vt., was charged with murder today following the death of her 7 year old son, Cornelius, from poison. Little hope was held for recovery of Mrs. Whalen, herself critically ill from poisoning. Police said she took poison last Wednesday after administering a dose to her son.

FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE.

Samuel Stackhouse, 61 years old, 4002 Maypole avenue, was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning yesterday afternoon in a private garage in the rear of 4058 Maypole avenue. He had apparently left the motor running while he repaired the car.

PRESIDENT LAYS CORNER STONE OF NEW POSTOFFICE

Hoover Uses Washington's Trowel at Ceremony.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—President Hoover grasped the trowel today that George Washington used to lay the corner stone of the capitol in 1793. He splashed on a dab of mortar, then leaned down, from a shining new bucket scooped up another trowelful, and slapped that on, too.

The derrick creaked and the corner stone of the new $10,000,000 postoffice building on Pennsylvania avenue settled into place.

Mrs. Hoover a Spectator.

Standing beside the President, Mrs. Hoover, Postmaster General Brown, Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, and other dignitaries watched while a mason, wearing stiffly new overalls and an air of professional disinterest tested the gray granite block with his level and pronounced it squarely and truly laid. In the temporary grandstands a crowd of some 1,200 persons applauded.

Postmaster General Brown explained why this particular afternoon had been chosen for the ceremony. It was because today was the 143d anniversary of the founding of the postal service.

President Speaks.

At the close of the talk there was a bit of confusion. Mr. Brown had forgotten the invocation entirely. It was slipped in by the Rev. Allen A. Stockdale before Senator Smoot spoke. The President then spoke. His prepared address, like the others, brought in Washington, the early days, and the function of the postal service in knitting a far flung people into one nation.

WOMEN ENLISTED TO GET CASH FOR G. O. P. CAMPAIGN

Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, head of the women's division of the Illinois finance committee of the Republican national committee, yesterday called a meeting of women who will assist her in a campaign to solicit contributions to the campaign chest.

Among those present at the meeting were Mrs. Albert J. Bigler, Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, Mrs. Bruce MacLeish, Mrs. Everett Millard, Mrs. Howard C. Phillips, Mrs. George W. Reinecke, Mrs. Arch W. Shaw, Mrs. James D. Snyder, Mrs. Bernard E. Sunny, and Mrs. William Yager.

Mrs. Wolf reported satisfactory returns from the stream of correspondence which she is sending out to a list of possible contributors.

STAMBAUGH WILL SUIT WITHDRAWN FROM OHIO COURT

A suit brought by Mrs. Rebecca Stambaugh Stillman Webb of Chicago before her death to set aside the will of the late John Stambaugh 11., her first husband, was withdrawn yesterday in the Common Pleas court at Warren, O. The suit was begun in behalf of Mrs. Webb's two children by her first marriage, Caroline and Nancy Stambaugh, who are now 16 and 17 years old.

Mrs. Webb, whose disputes with her second husband, Elijah H. Stillman, brought her many times into Chicago's divorce courts, died after the suit against the Stambaugh will was filed in July, 1931. The suit was then refiled by Archie L. Bernstein, appointed by the Probate court here as a guardian for the two children.

The suit was withdrawn yesterday by Jacob D. Waddell of Niles, O., recently appointed guardian of the children. Judge L. B. Griffith of Warren set aside the appointment of Bernstein on the ground that the Probate court of Cook county had no right to appoint a guardian for the children when they did not live in Cook county. The children are at present at the home of their grandfather, James A. Campbell of Youngstown, O., chairman emeritus of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company.

Mrs. Webb had charged that the will of Stambaugh was made while he was under the influence of his second wife, Drusilla Sage Stambaugh, who shared the estate with her son.

Mrs. Webb's third husband was Jack Webb, a Los Angeles manufacturer.

Final Arguments Concluded on Lake Shore Car Tracks

Final arguments in the eight year litigation over the street car tracks in Lake Shore drive were concluded yesterday before the Illinois commerce commission. The case was taken under advisement, but no date was set for a decision. The case dates back to a petition filed by the commissioners of Lincoln park in 1924 asking removal of tracks laid in Lake Shore drive between Chicago avenue and Ohio street in 1920 for the Pageant of Progress at Navy pier.

VENIZELOS WINS GREEK ELECTION JUST 'BY A NOSE'

Royalists Make Big Gains, but Fail of Majority.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Sept. 26.—The Greek republic still stands. Although official final results of yesterday's general election are not yet available, at a late hour tonight it appeared certain that the royalist party, under P. E Tsaldaris, had failed to capture a majority of the parliament. The official returns will not be available for three more days because several counts are necessary under the Greek proportional representation system.

PREMIER VENIZELOS. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

Premier Eleutherios Venizelos appears, to have defeated the royalists by a nose, but it is doubtful if he can remain in power. It is estimated that the Venizelists will capture about 110 seats and the Popular party—the royalists—about 100 seats. The remaining forty seats will be distributed among the smaller parties. The communists, who previously were not represented, seem to have made the strongest showing of the smaller parties. They will have between 10 and 15 seats.

Venizelos Loses Heavily.

Venizelos' Liberal party had 183 seats in the last parliament, which was elected in 1928. His party lost heavily yesterday, while the royalists registered big gains, raising their representation from 15 to 100 seats. Most of the smaller parties were wiped out.

Venizelos said tonight that he is "satisfied" with the results because the people voted to maintain the republic. He said he would remain in power untily Oct. 24, when parliament convenes. If defeated then, he said, he will call new elections for December.

The pre-election duel between Venizelos and Tsaldaris came to a climax early in the month when the premier attacked former members of the royal family and Tsaldaris demanded his removal on the ground that he was treating with military groups. The premier promptly submitted his resignation, but was persuaded to remain at the helm by President Alexander Zaimis until the election.

Reds Win Sofia Election.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 26.—For years working quietly and efficiently, and usually under cover, the communists came out into the open with a bang here and, to everybody's surprise and bewilderment, captured a majority of the city council seats in yesterday's municipal elections.

Final returns today gave the bolsheviks 22 out of 35 seats. They polled but 19,000 votes out of 44,000. Splitting up of the bourgeois vote enabled the Reds to capture a majority of the mandates.

Sofia probably will not become the first communist capital outside of Russia, however. Premier Mouchanoff announced this afternoon that he would dissolve the city council before its first meeting because it failed to represent a majority of the electors. It is reported the premier probably will also try to outlaw the communist party.

Thief Shoots Auto Owner and Drives Away in Car

Lewis Vansteenkiste, 23 years old, of 2815 McLean avenue, emerged from a restaurant at Western and Diversey avenues last night in time to see a thief about to drive away in his automobile. Vansteenkiste jumped on the running board and grappled with the man. The thief drew a revolver, shot Vansteenkiste in the left knee, and drove away.

Washington, Ia., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Senator Smith W. Brookhart will seek reelection as the candidate of a new Iowa political party.

Accepting the nomination of the Progressive party in state convention here, Brookhart declared he was "going in the fight to win, and the fight is for you and not me."

Brookhart will oppose Henry Field of Shenandoah, who defeated him in the Republican primary, and Louis Murphy of Dubuque, Democratic nominee.

Declaring he would work with the farmers in the campaign, he invited labor and independent business to join in.

Brookhart suggested that President Hoover call an immediate session of congress and recommend a federal loan to handle the exportable surplus of agricultural products, and outlined a federal program he said would end the depression.

VESSEL REPORTS HEARING FROM MISSING PLANE

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 26.—(AP)—William G. Gunston, an amateur radio operator, reported late today he had picked up a general call to all stations from a vessel giving the call letters HKF, saying the vessel had heard from the missing Japanese good will flyers yesterday afternoon.

Japan Urges Search.

TOKIO, Sept. 27.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—The foreign office today cabled Japanese embassies in Washington, D. C., and Moscow and the legation at Ottawa instructing that the governments in those cities be requested to search for the missing Japanese good will plane.

The ship left Tokio last week for Nome and San Francisco with three flyers aboard, and was not heard from after it had got 750 miles northeast of Tokio.

REOPEN SCHOOLS IN OAK PARK ON HALF CASH BASIS

Approximately 6,800 pupils returned to school yesterday in Oak Park, as the 11 elementary schools opened for the fall term. The number of teachers was reduced from 291 to 278, and the school year started two weeks later than usual as economy measures.

During the last four months of last year the teachers were paid half in cash and half in teachers' orders, amounting to $70,000, which will be redeemed by the school board when cash is available.

James J. Garvey, president of the board of education, said yesterday the same system of paying teachers and other employés will be used this year.

ANGRY NEIGHBOR TRAPS FARMER AS DRY'S SLAYER

Harney's Brother Gets Clew for Capture.

Aitkin, Minn., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Harry Hedstrom, 42 years old, Tamarack, Minn., farmer, alleged slayer of James G. Harney, St. Paul federal prohibition agent, was arrested a mile north of Cromwell tonight after a three day search of the north woods.

After he had sheltered and fed Hedstrom today, a neighboring farmer, whose name was not revealed by officers, said to be revengeful over a business deal, went into the woods and locating Hedstrom drove him in an auto onto the highway. There three officers and Martin Harney, brother of the slain agent, were waiting. The officers arrested Hedstrom, who, they said, confessed killing Harney when he came to his farm Friday afternoon with three other agents in search of a still.

Hedstrom was taken to his farm. There officers found Harney's gun, which Hedstrom, they said, admitted he had taken from the holster after Harney was killed. The officers did not find the .22 caliber rifle Hedstrom said he used to kill Harney.

At Aitkin tonight Hedstrom made a complete confession of the killing to county and federal officials and it was announced a special grand jury will be called immediately.

The farmer, who led Hedstrom to the place of capture, talked with Martin Harney in Finnish, telling of Hedstrom's coming to his home Monday morning for breakfast and of taking food to him today at a little shack in the woods.

JAP PAPER SAYS U. S. PLANS 'RAIL LINE TO MOSCOW'

TOKIO, Sept. 27 [Tuesday].—(AP)—The newspaper Kokumin today displayed a banner headline, "America's overweening ambitions in Asia." The story beneath described plans for a railway across the United States, Canada and under the Bering sea to Moscow.

The paper said this railway would join the Trans-Siberian road and its southern offshoot would go to Istanbul, Turkey. An elaborate map printed alongside asserted that all the plans and surveys for "this, the world's longest railway, have been completed."

The newspaper asserted that Roy Chapman Andrews, who explored the Gobi desert for 21 years, was not really hunting dinosaur eggs, but surveying the railway route for the "purpose of exploiting the huge latent resources of Asia."

SEEKS TO FORM FARMER HOLIDAY UNIT IN ILLINOIS

Leader Speaks to 500 at Bloomington.

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Representatives of the National Farmer Holiday association, E. E. Kennedy of Kankakee and Fred R. Winterroth of Chebane, are trying to form a central Illinois unit of that organization here.

Mr. Kennedy, secretary of the National Farmers' union and on the national executive committee of the Holiday association, spoke to 500 farmers, trying to induce them to become identified with the new crop withholding association.

"Cost of production," he said, "is the aim of the holiday movement, and cost of production means 93 cents a bushel for corn, 51 cents for oats, 33 cents a dozen for eggs.

"The withholding of products from the market until cost of production is received is the patriotic duty of farmers. It will save the nation, assisting factory laborers as well as food producers.

"Every farmer who sells at less than cost is exerting his influence toward continuation of hard times and unemployment.

"International bankers are to be blamed for the deflation of agriculture and the low price era. By restricting credit and calling loans, they restricted the circulation of money through automatic operation of the banking laws.

GENOA, Italy, Sept. 26.—(AP)—An eleven story sea skyscraper, the 50,000 ton liner Rex of the Italia line, was ready tonight for her maiden trip to New York, and she was expected to do the crossing in six and a half days, a record for the southern route.

KING TO RETURN TO LONDON FOR CABINET CRISIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Color was given the theory that the Liberal ministers of the British cabinet, led by Sir Herbert Samuel, home secretary, are determined to resign as a sign of their disapproval of the trade agreements reached at the imperial conference at Ottawa, by the announcement today that King George will return to London from Balmoral Thursday night, five days earlier than he intended.

The resignations are said to be ready to hand in after Wednesday's meeting of the cabinet, at which a final struggle over the Ottawa trade pacts will take place between the free traders and the protectionists.

If this proves to be the case, the king will be ready Friday to accept the seals of office from the retiring ministers and induct their successors into office.

EVANSTON CUTS $242,000 MORE FROM TAX LEVY

Evanston's city council last night passed a resolution further reducing the city tax levy for the year 1931 by $242,000.

Originally the levy was $1,700,000. The cut last night, added to those previously made, reduces the levy for city purposes to approximately $1,100,000. Herbert S. Simpson, chairman of the council finance committee, said that reduction in governmental expenditures had made the slashes possible.

A taxpayers' meeting is to be held in the business offices of Northwestern university on Friday evening. Mayor Charles H. Bartlett, Mr. Simpson and other members of the council will explain what has been done to meet the demand for lower costs of government.

MINERS LET OUT REAR OF JAIL TO EVADE STRIKERS

Police Outwit Menacing Crowd Outside.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Twenty-five United Mine Workers of America, arrested after last night's riot in which a police officer was killed and eight other men were wounded, today left the city jail through the kitchen door at the rear while several hundred striking miners waited out in front for them.

Springfield and state highway police decided to spirit the union men away from the jail in taxicabs, after they had given bonds on charges of riot ing, to prevent a repetition of the bat tle in front of the Leland hotel last night. Throughout the afternoon while the prisoners were waiting for bond money to arrive from union headquarters at Indianapolis, the striking miners gathered menacingly across the street from the jail and at street corners in the vicinity.

Police Outwit Pickets.

Chief Walter L. Moody of the state highway police and twenty of his men stationed themselves in front of the jail, ostensibly to prevent an attack upon the departing prisoners, and less than fifty of the strikers discovered the ruse before it was too late to see the union men leave through the kitchen door. The last two cab loads were booed, but no attempts were made to stop them. The regular union men were headed for "out of town," according to Chief Moody.

Bonds for the prisoners at $1,000 each were approved by Police Magistrate Gene Saler and no date was set for preliminary hearing, the defendants electing to waive this formality for fear they might be attacked again. Their cases will be considered by the grand jury next week, according to Assistant State's Attorney Lee Ensel.

Repudiates Slaying Confession.

Garnett Smith, president of the Herrin local of the "regular" miners' union, today repudiated a statement he made to policemen last night that he killed Detective Porter Williams. Stabbed twice in the head and once in the chest, Smith was in a serious condition at St. John's hospital, charged with the murder. To Prosecutor Ensel he denied that he shot Williams, but begged to be left alone. "I'm in a stupor," he said.

The prosecutor said half a dozen eye witnesses had made statements that Smith shot the detective. One of these was Henry Harmony of Springfield, one of the first to reach Williams after he fell.

"Williams walked up to Smith, who was brandishing a gun," said Harmony. "He asked him to put up the gun, but Smith refused. Just as Policeman Alva Snyder grabbed him from behind, Smith fired. Williams staggered, but took the gun away from Smith before he went down."

Coroner Dye announced that the bullet which killed Williams would be removed and, together with Smith's gun, a 45 caliber automatic, sent to Prof. Calvin Goddard, ballistics expert of the Northwestern university crime laboratory, to determine whether Smith fired the fatal shot.

Sneed Denies Having Gun.

United States Deputy Marshal J. O. Bouhl told policemen that he saw William J. Sneed of Herrin, representative of the international union, shoot the detective, but Prosecutor Ensel put no credence in the statement. Sneed, who addressed a meeting of the regular miners at the Knights of Columbus hall just before the rioting, stated in jail today that he had no gun and had never carried one.

"I didn't see who shot Detective Williams," said Sneed. "The strikers crowded in on us as we were going to the Leland hotel. I was knocked down three times, once with a blackjack and once with a concrete slab that struck me on the shoulder and back of the head. They cursed me and kicked me while I was down, and I saw a lot of guns around me but heard no shots fired."

Sneed, a former state senator and now the Republican nominee for that office in his district, declared that 80 per cent of the 6,000 miners in Sangamon county want to go back to work under the new $5 basic wage scale accepted by the regular union, but that they are afraid of the pickets.

Arrested with Sneed in his room at the Leland was his 23 year old son, Carl, a law student at the University of Illinois. Young Sneed was on his way from Herrin to Champaign and stopped in to see his father. Mayor John W. Kapp offered to let him go, but he preferred to go to jail with his father, presumably for safety's sake.

Strikers Win Legal Point.

Taylorville, Ill., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Striking miners won a technical victory this morning before Judge F. Roy Dove of Shelbyville on a writ of habeas corpus for John Seddon, striking miner, arrested by Sheriff Charles Weinecke and Capt. Carl Meacham, commanding state troops, here aiding the sheriff in preserving the peace during the mine strike. Capt. Meacham released Seddon from custody a short time before court opened.

When Seddon was released there was nothing for the judge to decide except who should pay the costs of the procedure. It was here that the miners scored their victory. The costs were charged to the troop commander.

3 SLAIN IN OHIO

Columbus, O., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Ohio National Guard troops were ordered to take over control of mine No. 267 of the Ohio Collieries company at Hollister, Athens county, today, following the death of three more men in the latest flareup of southern Ohio's mine "war."

The latest killing, early today, was that of Clarmont Banfield, 18, allegedly by a stray bullet fired by mine guards at snipers.

Banfield's death was the second in the Hocking coal field in 12 hours. Boyd Vincent, 45, of Luhrig, a known strike agitator, was shot and killed by Cash Tedrow, 38, a working miner, when the former threatened to "get him."

Gov. George White, visibly irate over the refusal to end the mine warfare in the Hocking valley, ordered the mine closed after Banfield had been shot while sitting in the kitchen of his home which is about 500 yards from the mine tipple.

Tries to Die

CLAIRE DE LOREZ.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Desperate because of her socially and politically distinguished fiancé's declaration that he would not marry her, Claire de Lorez, American film actress, swallowed ten bichloride of mercury tablets in full view of the startled guests at Fouquet's, one of the most elegant cafés on the Champs Elysées.

The tragedy took place Saturday night when the cafe was thronged, but the fact was suppressed until today. The same conspiracy of silence was in effect at the American hospital and the French police are successfully withholding the name of the fiancé. He is reported to be a member of the Greek parliament. A physician who attended the woman said she probably would die.

Miss Claire de Lorez at one time lived in Chicago with her sister, Thelma de Lorez, a professional skater, at 4056 Sheridan road. The two girls were injured in an automobile accident in Evanston in June, 1921, when the car in which they were riding with other theatrical folk overturned.

NORCOTT'S RULE OF STONE & CO. IS TOLD IN TRIAL

U. S. Witness Describes Change of Policy.

J. E. Mamoser, 5104 Addison street, an accountant, yesterday took the witness stand in the court of Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward and told of the change in policy of H. O. Stone and company, real estate investment concern, after Henry F. Norcott became president in 1919. Norcott and eight associates are on trial before a jury on charges of using the mails to defraud. The charges grew out of the $14,000,000 failure of the company two years ago.

Mamoser was called to the witness stand by the prosecution after Judge Woodward had overruled a defense attack on the sufficiency of the indictment. He traced the history of the company from 1904, when he was employed, to 1928, when he was replaced by Scott Carroll, one of the defendants.

Tells of Company Before 1919.

"We dealt almost entirely in first mortgages, did a business of about $5,000,000 a year and all our customers were satisfied," Mamoser said, in telling of the company's business previous to 1919.

"How did Norcott get control?" Assistant United States Attorney Joseph A. Struett asked.

"I don't know, except he had a majority of the stock," Mamoser answered.

The answer was stricken off the record by Judge Woodward on the objection of Defense Attorney Charles F. Rathbun, who had said in his opening statement that Norcott never held the controlling stock.

Mamoser was questioned further by Prosecutor Struett to show that Norcott had been director of the company's business since 1919.

"Who was in active charge of affairs till 1930?" the prosecutor asked.

"Norcott," replied Mamoser.

Q.—Was there a change in business under Norcott? A.—Yes, there was an increase in business.

Q.—What kind? A.—Underwriting and selling bonds.

Describes 1928 Difficulties.

Attempts to question Mamoser as to the definite ventures of the company were halted by defense objections. The witness told of difficulties the company encountered in 1928 when collections on subdivisions were slow. The loans were increased instead of decreased at the banks, and bank officials complained, Mamoser said.

Andersen & Co., an accounting concern, was called in to audit the company books, Mamoser said. Then he told how Norcott received the audit.

"This looks bad," Mamoser quoted Norcott as telling a representative of the Andersen company. "I'm afraid you have made a mistake. We can't make a certified accounting to the banks on this."

Court was adjourned with Mamoser still on the stand. He will continue his testimony today.

More people use the BRITANNICA than any other encyclopaedia

If you glance around the circle you will see why the new Britannica is owned and used everywhere. Men, women and children—to the number of millions—turn to the Britannica whenever they must have sound information. They fortify themselves against misinformation, because misinformation never pays. They find in the pages of the Britannica new and economical ways to solve daily problems—whether they are problems of the home, business or school.

★In America alone more than 100,000 families own the new Britannica.

The Most Useful Set of Books in the World

THROUGHOUT the world, wherever our language is read, men, women and children own and use the Britannica.

The reason is clear: The new Britannica is widely popular because it can help so many people so much.

Every conceivable subject of human interest is dealt with in the Britannica, not anonymously, but by 3,500 of the foremost authorities of the world, who have written with the definite intention of making it entertaining as well as helpful.

And from everywhere in the wide world—from Fifth Avenue in New York to the jungles of Siam — unsolicited letters come to us from owners and users: they have bought something they wanted and needed, tested its usefulness, and are moved to express their complete satisfaction.

If you enjoy a charmed life, if you never make a mistake, if everything you do is done right, you don't need the Britannica. On the other hand, if you do not enjoy a charmed life, if you make mistakes, if the things you do are sometimes done wrong, then the New Britannica will be the most useful and profitable investment you are ever likely to make.

A Complete Library of Essential Books

In the new Britannica owners enjoy the advantages of the experience and knowledge of the foremost authorities set down in 35,000,000 words of simple and precise text.

The 15,000 illustrations in the Britannica are far in advance of those attempted in any other work of the kind. Some are exact color reproductions of famous paintings, others were painted for the Britannica by leading artists.

The maps—500 in all, 200 in color—offer a complete atlas of the world. And the index—with 500,000 separate entries—is the key to this vast storehouse of information.

Today, considering its completeness, perfection of text and illustration and its great authority, the new Britannica is the least expensive encyclopaedia you can buy. What economic conditions will do to the present low price no one knows. We urge you to buy now.

$5 Down and $5 a Month

If it is not convenient to pay outright for the books, use your credit. Under the easy payment plan, $5 down and $5 a month for a short time will bring the set to your home.

GANDHI'S VICTORY IN 'DEATH FAST' HAILED IN INDIA

he read the official announcement that the government in London had accepted the compromise reached by the caste Hindus and the untouchables.

When he had finished reading he lifted his head, smiled, and murmured to a doctor, "This will be acceptable."

Then, satisfied that the conditions for ending his fast had been fulfilled, the little nationalist leader sank back with a low moan.

Before he would partake of food, however, he insisted on prayer. The little group about his bedside sat on the ground. Rabindranath Tagore, the famous Indian poet, who came to Poona this morning, led them as they prayed.

There was not strength enough in the mahatma for him to join in the chanting, but his lips moved feebly. When the praying was ended Mrs. Gandhi held the cup of musambi to his lips. He took a few drops and sank back exhausted.

The mahatma's purpose in going on a hunger strike was to protest against an electoral system which he considered would perpetuate the great gulf between the caste Hindus and the 60,000,000 members of India's depressed classes. He particularly objected to the provision in the British plan for separate untouchable electorates which were to exist for twenty years.

The compromise plan provides that 148 seats in provincial legislatures be held by the depressed classes and that a percentage of seats in the central legislature be reserved for them. It also provides a system of primary elections. These special features are to end after ten years.

In accepting this plan, the British government pointed out that some details still remained under consideration. The official statement said this did not imply opposition by the government.

Orthodox Hindus Defy Gandhi.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SIMLA, Sept. 26.—Stubborn defiance to Mahatma Gandhi was expressed today by a delegation of extreme orthodox Hindus, who visited the viceroy, the Earl of Willingdon, to give him their views of constitutional reform. Commenting on the Poona agreement, one of the committee declared:

"Gandhi's creed of vicarious suffering shows he is more Christian than Hindu. Orthodox Hindus are quite indifferent to the subject of separate electorates. They will resist with all their might attempts by Anglicized reformers and superficial Nationalists to exploit Gandhi's fast in order to do away with all caste distinctions in Hindu society or all disciplinary regulations in temple worship. Pandit Malaviya, high state leader, has bartered his priceless religion for some political chicanery."

60,000,000 PERSONS, THE 'SCUM OF INDIA,' ARE HELPED BY GANDHI

If the Hindu-untouchable electoral agreement, accepted by the British, develops successfully and India is made a federal dominion under a constitution and parliament by the fall of 1934, as is planned, Mahatma Gandhi, by his "death fast," will have forced the bridging of a religious and caste gap which is centuries old.

This agreement to establish equality of citizenship among the Hindus is only part of the British-Indian plan, but it is vastly important and results solely from Gandhi's activity. Mainly it represents a concession by caste Hindus to the untouchables. Untouchables are to elect 148 representatives in provincial legislatures, and they are allotted a percentage of seats in the central legislature. Representatives are to be selected by primaries, the plan continuing in force 10 years. In addition untouchables are permitted to enter government service.

Untouchables are literally outcasts from the system of Hinduism. They constitute from 50 to 60 million persons of Hinduism's 240 millions, and a corresponding percentage of India's 351 million population.

Hinduism follows a number of deities and laws, but is divided into four great castes: [1] Brahmans, generally regarded as the class whose duty is religion; [2] Kshatriyas, who are rulers and warriors, [3] Vaisyas, the largest class, whose duty is to maintain cattle and agriculture, and [4] Sudras, mechanics and servants, whose duty it is to serve the upper three groups.

A Hindu is born to his class and cannot leave it by marriage, wealth, education or other cause. However, he may be cast out for a number of moral or ceremonial offenses. In such case he is regarded as dead by his caste relatives. Thus, through the centuries, the number of outcasts has grown. They are the untouchables, the "scavengers" of India, forbidden to approach caste members and subjected to innumerable indignities and repressions. It was with this pitiable section of humanity that Gandhi, born a caste Hindu, cast his lot and for whom he has forced concessions.

dian officials in London now will begin to prepare intensively for a new round table conference, which is expected to meet here toward the end of November. Its work will be to carry on where the first round table conference left off, preparing for Indian self-government.

PLAN NEW PARLEY

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Acceptance today by the British government of the plan evolved by the caste Hindus and the untouchables for settling their communal quarrel, and the action of Mahatma Gandhi in calling off his "fast unto death" are hailed here as a triumph for the patient diplomacy of Premier Ramsay MacDonald, who urged this course on the Hindus at the beginning of the round table conference a year ago.

There is doubt in the minds of some British officials, however, whether the caste Hindus will stick to their bargain with the untouchables. They have been forced to make the greatest climb down in their history by the danger that their own holy man might die. Once they have got him eating again, there is fear that they may try to "interpret" or pick holes in the settlement.

The gulf between the four castes and the untouchables, it is declared by some, is of too many generations' standing to be wiped out in a day by a ukase even of religious leaders.

If the settlement sticks, In-

TELLS WHY JAPS WANT CONTROL OF MANCHURIA

Needed as Buffer Against Russia, Leader Says.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Dr. Inazo Nitobe, independent leader of the Japanese house of peers, told 200 members of the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations at a luncheon in the Palmer house yesterday why the Japanese feel they must control Manchuria.

DR. INAZO NITOBE.

Dr. Nitobe said the Manchurian problem is too complex for its quick understanding by western nations. He said that Japan is interested in setting up a stable Manchurian government with sufficient Japanese supervision to guarantee protection of Japanese interests.

"We want Manchuria, first, to create a buffer state against Russia," said Dr. Nitobe in the discussion after his formal address. "China cannot protect Japan and the western world against the penetration of Russian communism. Already Russia has set up a soviet state in Mongolia and communist influence is moving toward us from the northwest."

Need Raw Materials.

A second reason for Japan's desire for Manchuria, Dr. Nitobe said, is because of that country's wealth of raw materials needed for Japanese industry.

"We cannot colonize Manchuria," Dr. Nitobe explained, "because our people will not go there. But because Japan has a population of 60,000,000 in a territory the size of California, of which only 15 per cent can be cultivated, we must have access to raw materials in order to sustain our people through industrial developments."

The subject announced by the Japanese peer, who for seven years was a secretary in the league of nations council, was "Japan, Manchukuo and the Kellogg Pact." Dr. Nitobe denied that Japan's recent acts in Manchuria—or Manchukuo, as that country is known in Japan—violates the peace pact.

Japanese Demand Protection.

Dr. Nitobe gave his reasons for believing that Japan was "morally justified" in the recent Shanghai warfare in response to a question by the Rev. Theodore C. Hume, pastor of the New England Congregational church. He said the 30,000 Japanese residents in Shanghai had repeatedly sought protection against Chinese violence in connection with a boycott.

Dr. Nitobe said an American told him recently in New York that the 19th Canton route army, the finest army in China, was entrenched about Shanghai when the first Japanese force of 700 marines landed to reinforce the small body of Japanese troops regularly stationed there.

"If Japan's act was premeditated we certainly selected a poor time when this splendid Canton army was firmly entrenched," said Dr. Nitobe. "But it was not premeditated. We simply did what other nations were doing and our marines were on the way to the place officially assigned to them when they were attacked by snipers and the Cantonese troops.

"In New York I was told that the 19th route army was there to attack and loot the foreign settlements of all nations in Shanghai. In Shanghai army leaders of various countries now declare that 'Japan did the dirty work for all of us.'"

RESIGNATION FROM LEAGUE MAY COST JAPAN HER MANDATES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—Persistent reports to the effect that Japan may resign from the league of nations in event the Lytton report on Japanese activities in Manchuria proves adverse aroused speculation today as to whether such a step would cost Japan her mandated islands in the Pacific.

Japan today holds under mandate from the league a group of former German controlled islands covering a large stretch of territory between the Hawaiian islands and the Philippines. These islands include the Marshalls, the Marianas and the Carolines. They menace the most direct Pacific route between the United States and Japan and in event of war would prove of great value to the Japanese. They are considered of great value as potential bases for air and submarine forces.

Japan was given a mandate over the islands following the world war and now the question is being debated as to whether the mandate in effect constituted a permanent control, or whether Japan merely acts in the rôle of steward for the league.

Chile Deports 20 Reds to Unnamed Destination

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 26.—Recent communistic activities in Santiago today led to the deportation to an unnamed place of twenty Reds. The deportees included Elias Laferte, leader of the Communist party here, and Chamudez, another prominent Moscow representative.

3-GUN HOODLUM SEIZED; HELD UP 3 DETECTIVES

Louis Longo, a three gun hoodlum who held up two policemen and a hotel detective in October, 1931, taking their guns away from them, was arrested yesterday in New Orleans, the detective bureau was notified last night. A telegram said Longo admitted his identity and waived extradition. Two detectives will be sent to bring him back.

Longo was captured in his apartment at 948 Edgecomb place Oct. 23, 1931, by Policemen Roy Kent and Guy Willoughby and Frank A. Brasuelle, a house detective employed by the Hotel Sherman. They took two guns from him and then began to search the apartment, finding jewelry taken in a Hotel Sherman stickup. Longo suddenly pulled a third gun from behind a picture and held up the three officers. His girl companion, Peggy McCafferty, helped him disarm the policemen and house detective and they then escaped.

Longo has been posing at an automobile polish salesman in New Orleans, the police learned.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"
THE RAID ON THE SABINE WOMEN
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by Saul Tepper...inspired by the story of the Roman warriors' ruthless capture of the Sabine village for the express purpose of carrying off its women (290 B. C.).

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ...the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

SEEKS TO LINK 3 PRISONERS TO BOMB OUTRAGE

State Reveals Records; Fourth Suspect Sought.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Jack Nolan, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Michael Feinberg.

De Sota Pugh, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; Earl Cantwell, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; Virginia Cantwell, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in reformatory at Dwight by Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

Frank Kuffel, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; Victor Ehlschlaegr, Vernon Ehlschlaeger, and George Johnson, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Harry M. Lewis.

Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne was trying to piece out a solution last night of the bomb explosion at the home of Judge John P. McGoorty last Tuesday evening in which a boy and a girl were injured.

He had three suspects, regarded as of varying degrees of importance, under arrest at the Chicago Lawn station and he was trying to connect each or all of them in some way with a grievance against Judge McGoorty.

Who the Prisoners Are.

The prisoners and the circumstances involving them in the McGoorty inquiry were as follows:

William McDaniels, 59 year old bootlegger who possessed 13½ sticks of dynamite which he tried to dispose of the morning after the bombing. He originally had 20 sticks of the explosive. He was identified as a man seen three nights in succession in an automobile near the McGoorty residence, the last time being 5 minutes before the bomb was thrown.

Max Kraske, 46 years old, arrested on secret information. Police say he received $500 from another man at 81st street and South Chicago avenue last week, and that he gave McDaniels $100. Kraske's police record includes an arrest last July for an alleged attempt to extort $50,000 from Jack Durand, foster son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Durand of Lake Bluff. Prosecutor Ditchburne said Kraske has associated with a gang of robbers.

Benjamin Shanks, 43 years old, indicted three years ago for complicity in a bombing. Two men caught by police as they threw a bomb against a bakery shop implicated Shanks as the man who sent them to do the bombing. Shanks was then connected with a master bakers' association. He is supposed to have fled to New York, returning only recently.

Two Live Near Bomb Scene.

McDaniels and Kraske live on the south side, a few minutes' drive from the McGoorty residence at 929 East 45th street. Shanks is a west sider.

A fourth man questioned during the day was Arthur Roberts, 32 years old, who has served one jail sentence and is now under federal sentence for dealing in narcotics. He was near the McGoorty home at the time of the explosion and then failed to go home until Saturday. After the evening session Prosecutor Ditchburne allowed Roberts to go.

"Red" Gustafson, friend of McDaniels, is being sought. He is supposed to have had a half stick of McDaniels' dynamite in his possession and at least twenty percussion caps which, if exploded, might do as much harm as that much dynamite. He assisted McDaniels in hiding the 13½ sticks in the home of a friend.

Expects More Evidence.

Ditchburne expects additional information about McDaniels from Gustafson. In bringing all the others together he looked for some helpful results. Judge McGoorty still was unable to recall any act of his which might have furnished any of the four with a motive for bombing his home.

Questioning of the prisoners was interrupted suddenly last night when Supervising Capt. John Prendergast received an anonymous call to hurry to the rear of 5108 La Salle street. He responded with a squad, and found an unexploded bomb in the rear of the place. The bomb was a 10 inch pipe, filled with black powder and bearing a fuse. Ralph Delasso, 28 years old, who occupies the dwelling with his mother, could not account for the bomb. He has no enemies, he said.

Earlier, detectives laid an unsuccessful trap for bombers at the home of Miss Rena Burns at 3506 Lake Park avenue, a city nurse. Miss Burns complained to Judge McGoorty during the day that Edward McGrady, a Negro bricklayer who was doing some work on her cottage, had been threatened by bombers. The judge referred her to police.

Quiz Son of Bomber.

Police, after investigating these bomb incidents, questioned Vito Ficke, 18 years old, of 1301 Edgemont avenue, at the suggestion of Judge McGoorty. The judge in 1930 sentenced the boy's father, Steve, to prison for selling explosives. Vito was released.

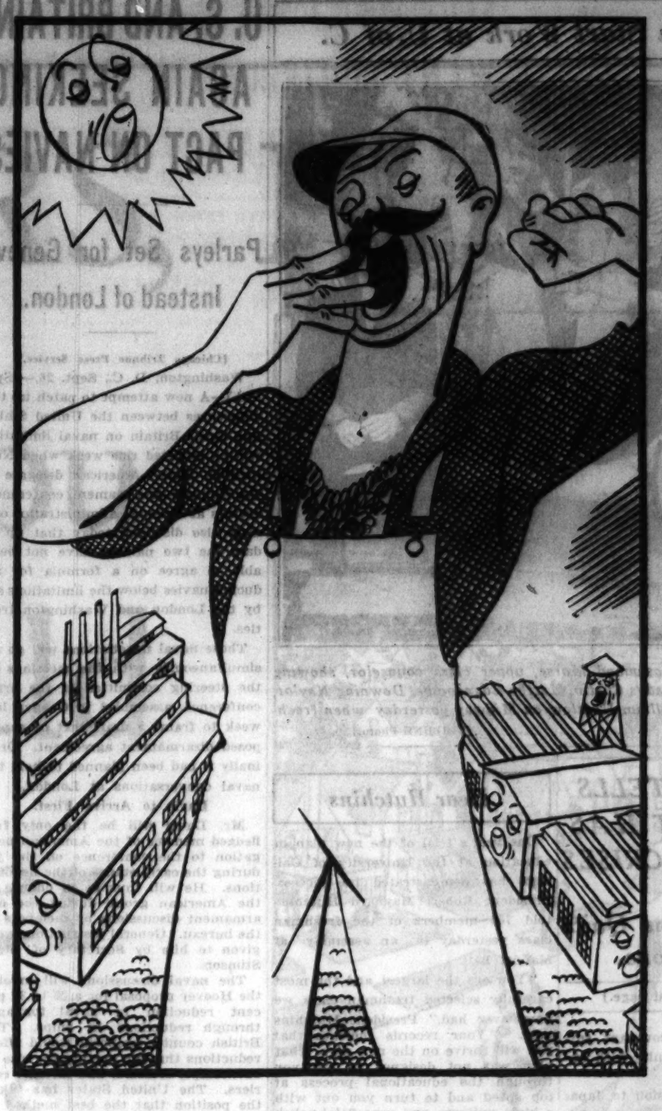
From the Chicago hospital there came word that Lee Wilbur Koeppen, the 16 year old boy injured in the McGoorty blast, is improving. He does not yet know he is blind—that his eyes were blown out—and that a part of his right foot is gone. His present interest is in the world's series baseball games which he expects to hear over the radio. His companion of that evening, Mrs. Ada Moyer, also 16 and the mother of a 4 month old daughter, is also recovering, but surgeons are still picking powder from her face.

Donates His World Series Cash to Boy Bomb Victim

Ross F. Bergh, president of Ross F. Bergh & Co., 205 West Monroe street, yesterday mailed a check for $25 to THE TRIBUNE with a request that the money be turned over to Lee Koeppen, the boy who was blinded by the bomb thrown in front of Judge John P. McGoorty's home. "It's my world series money," wrote Mr. Bergh. "I hope the cowardly rats who ruined this boy's life will be haunted with his memory for they will never be punished."

This advertisement is addressed particularly to FOOD ADVERTISERS—but we have no objections to anybody else reading it..

About Joe Spivak and the horse of another color

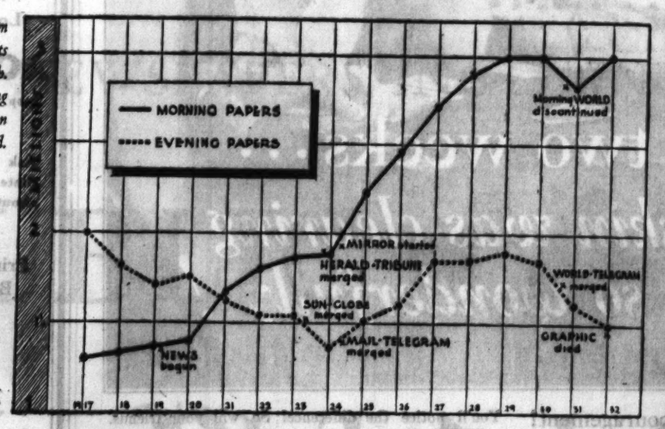


WHEN Joe Spivak has to check in at the factory at 7:30 a. m., it is unlikely that Joe gets up in time to read a morning paper. Should the town be full of Spivaks, so to speak, it is even less likely that there is an a. m. paper to read.

If, with the U. S. Census on one hand and Standard Rate and Data on the other, you will peruse manufactures and newspaper circulations, you will discern a curious relation, if not a coincidence, between evening papers and industrial towns. Where the smokestacks cluster and the populace works in overalls, the people somehow get along without a. m. editions. Cf., for instance, Canton, O., and South Bend, Ind. In such places, the workers come home of an evening to rest and relax with, if not on, the evening paper. And the national advertiser must do the same.

Pursuing this parallel, we find that in Toledo, O., evening circulations exceed morning eight to one; in Newark, N. J., five to one; in Milwaukee, almost four to one; and in Philadelphia, more than two to one. In largely industrial cities, the evening papers get the big play!

BUT take Chicago, where large numbers of the gainfully employed are not industrial workers, where white collars catch up with blue shirts—and two morning papers have about 70,000 more circulation than the four evening papers! There's a Big Idear in them figgers, folks!



Data from Publishers' Statements for March. 1917 morning circulation estimated.

And look at New York—we have nothing up our sleeve! New York is just the biggest factory town in the country, yet less than one-third of the gainfully occupied get their pay envelopes from factories. And the morning circulations bulk just about twice as big as evening!

One more statistick—and we'll close the book: New York is reading about 500,000 fewer evening papers than it was fifteen years ago! And if your space buying is not fifteen years behind the times, brother, that fact oughta have a lotta significance to you! Yessir!

WE have no kick with evening papers. They have their function, and they do their job. But we have a bone to pick with food advertisers who assume that their schedule always and everywhere should be made up of p. m. papers! After all, every chocolate bar is not a Hershey, nor every icebox a Frigidaire. In other words, circumstances alter cases.

The food medium should give coverage—because the food market is wide, with many small outlets.

The food medium should reach the largest possible number of women, and interest them.

And since foods have low margin items as a rule, the food advertiser wants the utmost for his money.

Well, the one medium in New York that fills all these requirements is NOT an evening paper! It comes out in the morning. It's The News!

THE NEWS has more circulation than the three leading evening papers combined. It reaches more families in all parts of the market than in any other paper here. It reaches more women than any other newspaper in America—and interests more! And alone, News circulation covers enough families to make sales for the 20,000 food outlets in New York City and suburbs!

If you know as much as you should about New York and New York newspapers—The News is bound to be your Number One medium. And if you don't, well, let us tell you more!

GERMANY SLAPS TARIFF ON FOOD TO AID FARMERS

Industry Objects; Fears Retaliation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUNICH, Germany, Sept. 26.—Despite protests of German industrial leaders not to curtail sales abroad through prohibitive tariffs and import contingents, these very measures were announced today by Baron Friedrich Edler von Braun, minister of agriculture, who hails from East Prussia.

The cabinet, heretofore chiefly supported by the junker landowners, hopes to obtain the votes of the smaller farmers in the general election by its action.

Consoles Foreign Nations.

"German farmers must have their place in the sun," Von Braun told them. "Some fanatics still believe the German people can be permanently supported through exports, but developments have proved we do not hold the exports in our hands."

He consoled foreign countries which will be hit by the new German measures with this comment:

"I hope they will succeed in balancing their trade by a limitation of production."

Cattle for slaughter, bacon, lard, butter, cheese, and several varieties of fruits and vegetables are among the food products for which quotas will be enforced. German wine growers, he promised, will be aided by a "generous financial harvest" together with new regulations of the old credits they have received from the reich.

Guarantees $130,000,000 Loan.

The government goes even farther to revive "dying agriculture," which industrial leaders insist has become more of a pet in the national economic scheme than ever before. Direct aid in the form of loans, subventions and gifts has been peldged, so that the reich's treasury now is the guarantor of $130,000,000 to agriculture alone.

Prussia, too, is pumping money into agriculture. In the last seven years the state has provided $264,000,000 to assist the farmer.

Interest payments on land mortgages and personal credits will be reduced by 2 per cent yearly for two years, but not below 4 per cent, the baron announced. This reduction—around $60,000,000—will be added to the capital of the loans, but will not be fully repayable until 1940.

Compulsory sales of insolvent farms can be stopped if the owners are able to show that the prices of their products are "extraordinarily below the general level prevailing since the end of 1930." Von Braun threw a small sop to the jobless with the promise that the government will again help to provide them with cheap meat during the winter months.

Industrial circles declare that the new measures will inevitably increase the cost of living, thus increasing the cost of Germany's industrial exports. Exports are also endangered by retaliatory measures, they protest.

C. F. TEMPLETON FOUND DEAD IN HIGHLAND PARK

Clifford F. Templeton, 56 years old, was found dead yesterday in the garage at the rear of his home at 930 South Linden avenue, Highland Park. A coroner's jury last night decided that he had died accidentally from carbon monoxide gas. He was the president of the Templeton Trucking company and the Metropolitan Deliveries, Ltd., both at 1037 West Adams street.

Chief of Police Edward Maroney of Highland Park said the motor in his roadster was not running, although there was gasoline in the tank and the ignition switch was on.

Templeton had planned to take his wife to a Highland Park show Sunday night but excused himself, saying he felt dizzy and would take an automobile ride to "get some air," according to a son, Clifford. He and his mother retired early, young Templeton said, and the search was started next morning when they found his father had not slept in his room.

Both companies headed by his father are in excellent condition, according to young Templeton.

NEAR STARVING, GIRL'S SLAYER GIVES SELF UP

Crandon, Wis., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Joseph Cornoski, 35 years old, a farm hand, confessed the brutal murder of Violet Snow, 16 years old, of Carter, after a grilling examination by District Attorney Francis Horne, of Forest county, tonight. Mr. Horne announced Cornoski's confession.

The Snow girl was stabbed in the back and neck as she was asleep in bed in her home Friday night. The slayer climbed the second story porch and crept into her bedroom. Russell Collins, uncle of the girl and marshal of Carter, named Cornoski as Violet's unwanted suitor and probable suspect, and search was started for him.

DE VALERA TELLS LEAGUE IT HAS FAILED IN CRISES

Disarm Bureau Quits Deliberations.

is raised against the covenant sufficiently strong it can smite with impunity."

This last obvious allusion to Japanese controlled Manchuria was followed by a warning that the only way to silence criticism of the league is "to show unmistakably that the covenant is a solemn pact of obligations which no state will find it possible to ignore."

Criticizes League's Record.

In fact, it was on the score of the league's record in the Manchurian case that De Valera wielded his shillalah most vigorously. Disarmament, he also declared, was a flop and a bluff. The Lausanne conference on reparations, he admitted, was a mild success, but he made it clear it was not the fault of the league. The league's record in solving world crises is far from perfect, he pointed out.

On the other hand he praised the league generously for helping China in a program of national reconstruction by rebuilding the dikes of the Yangtze river and in reinstating the Kroo tribe in Liberia.

His speech ended in a glacial silence.

OAK PARK SIEGE HAS AN EXCITING AUCTION SEQUEL

There was more excitement yesterday in the drug store formerly operated by John P. Lee at 331 South boulevard, Oak Park, already noted as the scene of the siege of Anthony Carderine, the Gandhi of Oak Park. Carderine, an employé of the Cunningham Ice Cream company, spent two days in the store with no food in order to prevent the removal of fixtures pending their sale to pay a judgment held by the company.

The sale was held yesterday and the fixtures, valued at $2,600, were knocked down to one A. C. Patterson for $1,400. But Patterson wasn't permitted to get the fixtures because John B. Ford, owner of the building, plans to hold a similar sale Oct. 3 to satisfy a $350 judgment he holds.

While the sale was going on a leaky gas pipe was detected and firemen called. They stopped the leak.

Hear Hutchins

One year's trial of the new plan of education at the University of Chicago has demonstrated its success, President Robert Maynard Hutchins told 750 members of the freshman class yesterday in an assembly at Mandel hall.

"You are the largest and the most carefully selected freshman class we have ever had," President Hutchins said. "Your records indicate that you will thrive on the new plan. That plan was not designed to put you through the educational process at top speed and to turn you out with a high, uniform, and superficial polish like the product of a modern automobile factory.

"It was intended to adjust a great university to the needs of the individual student. The brilliant student is not compelled to linger over subjects with which he has become familiar earlier than his classmates. The deliberate student of worth is not expelled before he can adjust himself to a new environment; he may proceed at his own pace as long as he shows promise of eventual success."

SEIZE TWO LARGE STILLS IN OLD GRAIN ELEVATOR

Two stills with a total capacity of 5,500 gallons of 190 proof alcohol were seized yesterday by prohibition agents led by Deputy Administrator A. E. Hamilton in a raid on an old grain elevator at 1421-37 West 37th street.

Four men were arrested as they operated the plant. They are Alfred Smith, 533 South Millard avenue; James Rock, 2632 West 26th street; John Dumek, 3121 South 54th avenue, Berwyn, and Julius Chesley, 1308 South Kolin avenue.

The stills had coils 46 feet high. Fermenting vats with a capacity of 100,000 gallons were discovered, and 65,000 gallons of mash was in process of getting ripe enough for the still. Dry agents asserted that supplies were taken to the plant on railroad cars.

Although it is believed the still has been in operation only about six weeks, and is valued at $50,000, expert estimators said the owners were operating at a handsome profit after writing off all costs. Running at maximum capacity, and figuring alcohol at the low wholesale price of $3 a gallon, the stills would have turned out in six weeks a product with a gross value of $690,000.

U. S. AND BRITAIN AGAIN SEEKING PACT ON NAVIES

Parleys Set for Geneva Instead of London.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—A new attempt to patch up the differences between the United States and Great Britain on naval limitation will be initiated this week when Norman H. Davis, American delegate to the league's disarmament conference, arrives at Geneva. Administration officials also disclosed today that up to date the two nations have not been able to agree on a formula for reducing navies below the limitations set by the London and Washington treaties.

Those naval negotiations will go on simultaneously with the meetings of the steering committee of the arms conference, assembled to Geneva last week to frame a draft text of a proposed disarmament agreement. Originally it had been planned to hold the naval conversations at London.

Davis to Arrive First.

Mr. Davis will be the only full-fledged member of the American delegation to the conference on the job during the early stages of the negotiations. He will thus be in charge of the American group during the disarmament discussions by members of the bureau. General instructions were given to him by Secretary of State Stimson.

The naval discussions will involve the Hoover proposal for a 25 to 33 per cent reduction in naval tonnages through reductions in ships. The British counter proposal would effect reductions through cutting the size of battleships, cruisers, and aircraft carriers. The United States has taken the position that the best method to cut naval expenses and naval tonnages was through reducing the number of vessels.

Would Retain Number of Ships.

The British government opposed any reduction in the number of its warships. The Britons suggested cutting battleships from 35,000 tons, with 16 inch guns, to 11,000 tons and 11 inch guns. They proposed reducing the maximum cruiser tonnage limit from 10,000 tons and 8 inch guns to 7,500 tons and 6 inch guns. A reduction of future aircraft carriers from the present treaty's 27,000 down to 22,000 tons also was urged. The United States opposed any cut in either the size of individual ships or the caliber of their main guns.

One plan studied by the state department for possible suggestion to Great Britain would allow each nation a certain equal fixed tonnage for each category of warship. Each nation then would be allowed to build the type and size of ship it pleased within its total category tonnage limit.

Wolf, Bank Embezzler, Petitions for a Parole

Walter Wolf, confessed embezzler of $3,666,929 from the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company who is now in Joliet prison, applied yesterday for a parole to the state board of pardons and parcies, which will hear his plea some time this week. Wolf received ten sentences of one to ten years each on ten counts last October, the sentences to run consecutively. By applying for a parole at the expiration of the customary period on each sentence the embezzler, if successful in obtaining paroles each time, would serve a minimum of fifteen years, attorneys said. If given a parole on his first sentence this week, Wolf will immediately begin serving the second sentence.

ATTORNEY LEE IS AWARDED $117,500 FACTOR CASE FEE

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday awarded attorneys for British investors 20 per cent of the $1,300,000 settlement obtained in the civil suit against John [Jake the Barber] Factor. Attorney John H. S. Lee was given $117,500 of the $260,000 counsel fee, $50,000 went to Attorney R. Wadsworth of London, and Attorney Thomas McConnell of Chicago was awarded $15,500. The remaining $77,000, which was to go to Attorney Franklin R. Overmeyer under the original agreement between the attorneys, was impounded by the court.

Judge Wilkerson ruled that Attorney Overmeyer must appear within 20 days and satisfy the court that he rendered services to warrant payment of the large fee.

Attorney Lee and his associates, on behalf of the investors, brought suit in an effort to break the $2,000,000 trust set up by Factor with three Chicago banks. The British government sought to extradite Factor for criminal trial in England on charges that he had defrauded the British investors of $7,000,000 in stock deals. Factor was ordered returned to England by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker, but the ruling was reversed in habeas corpus proceedings in the District court. The British government took an appeal, which is pending.

ONE OF TWO U. S. BALLOONS WINS BENNETT RACE

Navy Bag Is Sighted Near Warsaw.

BASEL, Switzerland, Sept. 26.—(AP)—One of two American balloons tonight was believed to be the victor in the classic James Gordon Bennett cup race, after all the other entrants had been reported grounded.

These were the United States navy craft, piloted by Commander E. G. W. Settle, which was last sighted on the outskirts of Warsaw at dusk, and the "Goodyear No. 8," unreported since the takeoff from Basel yesterday.

The only other balloon known to have gone about as far as Warsaw was the Polish bag "Gdynia," which traveled 1,076 kilometers, or about 640 miles, to Bielany, near Warsaw, where it was grounded at 10:05 a. m.

Belgian Forced Down.

The "Belgica," piloted by Ernest Demuyter, the Belgian, and intense rival of Van T. Orman, the pilot of the "Goodyear No. 8," reported tonight it had been forced to land near Gorzkowice, Poland, 150 miles southwest of Warsaw. A snowstorm was blamed.

The Spanish balloon "14 De Abril" tonight reported a landing at Malkinia, Poland. [This was taken to be Malkin-Dolny, 50 miles northeast of Warsaw.] This indicated the Spanish craft too had a chance to come in among the first three.

Race officials here said the position of the American navy baloon, carrying Lieutenant Commander Settle and Wilfred Bushnell, was excellent. It was reported headed southeastward when sighted over the environs of Warsaw at 4:45 p. m.

Workmen Grab Ropes.

Warsaw dispatches said a handbag was thrown overboard when the navy bag was flying so low at Remberpow that workmen were able to seize one of the balloon's ropes. They dodged the sandbag and released the balloon.

The german balloon "Stadt Essen" came down at Zelechow, Poland, and was credited with a distance of 632 miles. The Swiss bag "Victor de Beauclair," down at Kalisz, less than 30 miles across the western Polish border, was given a distance of 532 miles.

HELD AS AN EMBEZZLER.

Thomas A. Pait, 30 years old, 2018 Greenleaf avenue, a former ticket agent, was held to the grand jury in bond of $5,000 yesterday by Judge Edgar A. Jonas on a charge of embezzlement of $5,700 from the Grand Trunk Western railroad company.

BUTTER AND EGG MEN ASSAIL U. S. LENDING POLICY

The 26th annual convention of the National Poultry, Butter and Egg association opened yesterday in the Hotel Sherman. I. W. Bickley of Philadelphia urged poultry and butter and egg wholesalers to organize and combat the government practice of lending money to certain groups at low rates of interest at the expense of private concerns.

Turkey prices can be expected to set a record low price in retail stores for Thanksgiving and Christmas and New Year's as well, according to N. C. Durham, representative of a New York commission house.

The need for better refrigeration of eggs was told by Clara Gebhard Snyder, foods and nutrition director of the American Poultry Industries institute.

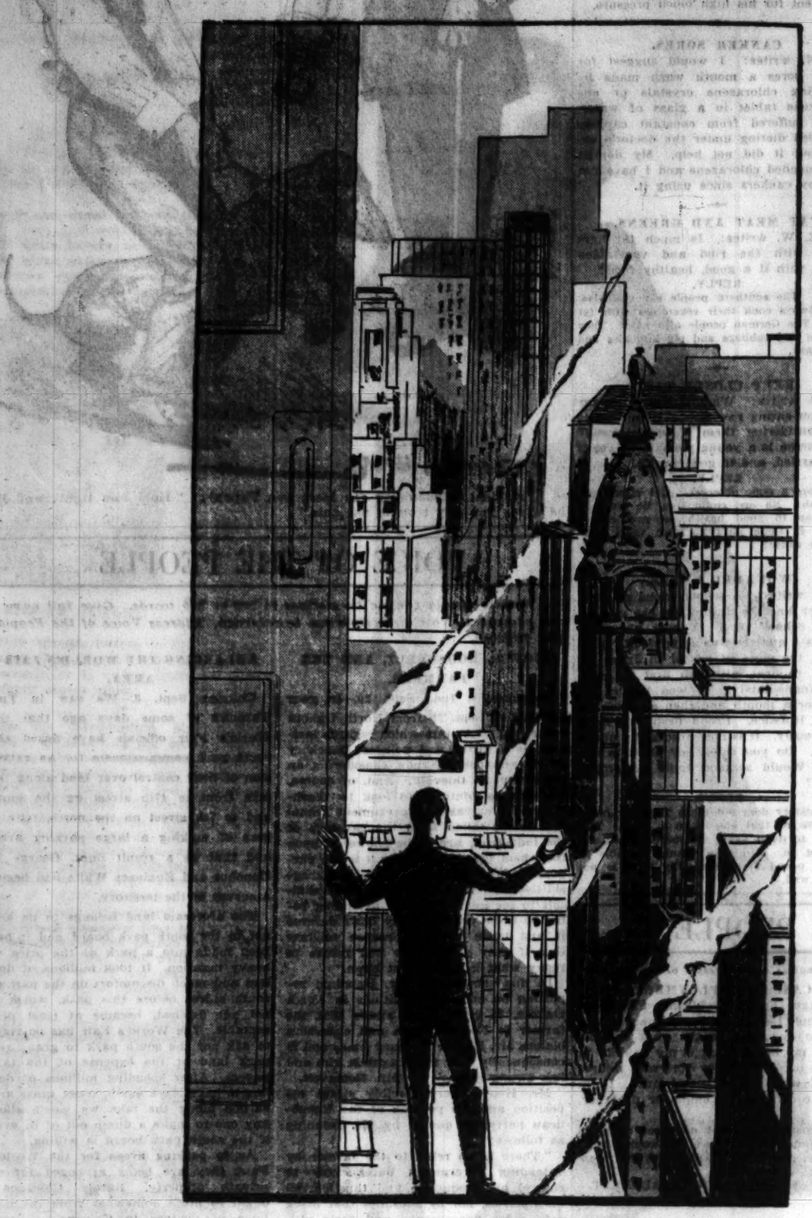
"BOTH DOORS, PLEASE!"



if you would enter this market

There are two doors that must be entered if you seek to establish anything like adequate contact with the homes and families of the great Philadelphia market.

Through one door you enter A. B. C. Philadelphia with its 470,378 families—2,069,661 people. Through the other door you enter Philadelphia's A. B. C. suburbs with their 372,689 families—1,639,832 people.

It is this door to the suburbs that so many manufacturers fail to open, yet behind it are more people than live in the suburbs of any other American city, with the single exception of New York.

No one Philadelphia newspaper affords better than 38% coverage of the A. B. C. suburban area. To miss the other 62% is to miss more people than live in the cities of Milwaukee and Indianapolis combined . . . is equivalent to withholding your sales story from nearly a million potential purchasers in the suburbs alone.

Use both doors in entering this, America's third market. You can do it through the Curtis-Martin Newspapers—and only through them. Curtis-Martin Newspapers provide complete market coverage—not fractional coverage. They give you circulation of a size and responsiveness no other medium or combination can approach.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

WHY ILLINOIS GOES BEGGING.

A delegation has returned to Illinois from Washington with the assurance of the Reconstruction Finance corporation that another 5 million dollars of reconstruction money will be available for relief in this state. The money will keep the relief stations going for a few weeks longer, but it is, of course, far from sufficient to maintain operations at their present scale through the winter. Chicago and Illinois have still to solve the problem of raising the additional sums needed.

No one with any pride can observe these repeated begging expeditions to Washington without a feeling of humiliation that Illinois is not taking care of its own unfortunate. The people of Illinois ought to support their own charities. More especially, Chicago ought to be paying the expenses of its own relief organization. If Illinois and Chicago are not doing their full duty in this particular it is for just one reason: the burden of federal taxation on Illinois and Chicago is so heavy that no additional load can be carried.

How burdensome federal taxation has become is indicated by the fact that the Chicago metropolitan area in 1931, a year of depression, paid more than 183 million dollars in internal revenue taxes to the federal treasury. That same year the total of taxes collected in Cook county for all state and local purposes was less by at least 20 million dollars. The money that Washington is taking out of Chicago is far more than adequate to care for all the city's unfortunate. The relief agencies are asking for 36 million dollars. The United States government took 183 million in 1931. If it were not for the extortions of the federal government Illinois would have no great difficulty in looking after its own.

DISARMAMENT.

Americans following the discussion over Germany's armament must be impressed or depressed by a sense of irrepressible conflict. We certainly sympathize with the British feeling that a controversy over armament is unfortunate at a moment "when it is so necessary that attention and energy should not be diverted from efforts which are being undertaken, and are so urgently needed, to restore production and the commercial prosperity of the world." But that is a view it is easier to adopt by that side of the controversy which finds advantage in the status quo in armament, or, like ourselves, is relatively, at least, unconcerned. It is true the American public does not like to see Germany headed toward another huge armament, especially if its policies are to be directed by the pre-war rulers of Germany. They would prefer to see other nations reduce armament to the present German level rather than German armament raised to the level of its great neighbors. Yet there is reason in German impatience with the delay of other signatories to the Versailles treaty in fulfilling the promises of reduction in that document. There is reason in their impatience with appeals to the sanctity of a treaty which these signatories are so slow in effectuating.

The British recent pronouncement declares that "his majesty's government can give no countenance or encouragement to the disregard of treaty obligations." But the actual situation behind all this solemn diplomatic verbiage is that after twelve years the armament of the signatories of the Versailles treaty remains about where it was and overwhelmingly superior to that of Germany, and that the prospect of substantial reduction is at this moment very weak.

Exhortations to respect the obligations of treaties are not very impressive in this situation, to say nothing of the consideration that the treaty was imposed by force and force today resists not only its revision but its fulfillment so far as that fulfillment would benefit Germany.

We do not think it would be conducive to the welfare of Europe, including that of the German people, that Germany should reëmbark upon an armament competition with the other great powers, especially if her policy is to be dominated by Hitler or the men behind Von Papen. But we can see little advantage in legal argumentation and the avoidance of the controlling realities. The truth is that France wishes to keep Germany in a state of military impotence and Great Britain wishes to postpone Germany's naval revival as long as possible. For this, in candor, we cannot blame them, but we are unable to see any advantage to the cause of international understanding from the diplomatic hocus pocus of which European chancelleries are so fond. No doubt it has some value in domestic politics, though we can hardly believe it deceives any one, except perhaps ingenuous American partisans and sentimentalists. Adjustment of armaments, since it must on the whole favor Germany, will be postponed as long as possible, and it will be brought about, not by legal arguments, but by the operation of forces. Americans with their naïve faith in words need especially to learn to look through the forms of old world diplomacy to the realities which they clothe, and sometimes disguise, but do not control.

Meanwhile, persistent rumors that our government has been in consultation with the French and British governments and has given its informal approval to their policy respecting German armament are occasion for some disquiet in the United States. Washington has denied these rumors, but official denials are frequently not to be taken at full face value. It is too easy to deny the form while the underlying fact is otherwise. We have had too much experience of informal visiting by our emissaries, especially Mr. Stimson, to assume that he has not been drawn by the canny French and British foreign offices into conversations which may in effect support their policy and oppose the effort of Germany to obtain an immediate equalization of armament or at least reliable assurance of action toward that end. Officially, we are told, our government has not taken a position on the German demand for equality. Officially we are only interested that the armament conference shall proceed and therefore that Germany shall not withdraw from it. But if we are whispering with Simon and Herriot behind the arras, is that likely to reassure Berlin?

The fact is that we have no business to be monkeying at all with the buzz saw of European armament.

RALLYING THE LUNATIC FRINGE.

Senator George W. Norris, who clings to the name Republican and bolts the ticket, is chairman of the new National Progressive league. Senator Costigan, Democrat of Colorado, is vice chairman. The purpose is to rally the liberals and radicals to Gov. Roosevelt. Mr. Norris and Mr. Costigan thus put themselves in position for three hearty Bronx cheers from the lunatic fringe. To the liberals Mr. Roosevelt is an amiable dodo with good manners. To the radicals Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hoover are tweedle-dee and tweedle-dum.

The liberals will have tea with Norman Thomas; the radicals want buckets of blood with Comrade Foster. Mr. Norris, who has esteemed himself as a friend of the proletariat and an enemy of privilege, will find that he is regarded as a decoy used by the capitalistic classes to do their will upon the masses. His revolt will be laughed at as something without head, feet, or pin feathers. A radical Mr. Norris is. He is tickling the giant's nose with a blade of grass and thinks he pounds its head with a lethal club. The radicals will put him in Fauntleroys with a white sailor collar and tell him to go roll his hoop in the park. The liberals may smile indulgently at him. The little boy has not grown up.

Mr. Borah pursues the safer course. The Idaho senator, drawing his toga up from his collar button to cover his head, goes into a state of communion with the universal spirit and finds his candidate and his plan somewhere in the further reaches of the cosmos. All alone he enjoys the ecstasies of political determination unplumbed, uncharted, unexplained and unearthly. As was said of the sublime estate of the English duke, Mr. Borah is to be contemplated, not criticized. Neither liberal nor radical can harpoon him. He sees something, but they don't know what it is. It may be the apocalyptic lightning. How vain he makes Mr. Norris seem. Whatever plan any one else has, Mr. Borah has something better, and he is alone in its possession.

THE HITCH HIKE NUISANCE.

The council committee on traffic and public safety, the Chicago Safety council, and several civic organizations are inaugurating a drive against hitch hiking. The uniform traffic code declares that "it shall be unlawful for any person to stand in a roadway for the purpose of soliciting a ride or employment from the operator of any private vehicle." But this has not yet been effectively enforced, and Charles L. Rice, president of the safety council, says that hitch hiking has become a problem of serious proportions in the last few years, endangering life and limb and adding to motor accidents by causing motorists to swing into the lanes of opposite traffic to avoid hitting hitch hikers, bringing cars to a sudden stop with resultant rear end collisions, menacing the safety of the person soliciting a ride, etc.

The council also reminds motorists that they are taking chances in admitting unknown persons to their cars. A year or two ago there was a succession of offenses by criminals taking advantage of good natured motorists. On the other hand the well intentioned hitch hiker takes the chance of boarding a car with some criminal.

Hitch hiking at this time seems more frequent outside of the city on the country roads than in the city, and rural counties should take action against it. Perhaps the measures adopted in Chicago will bring this about. The practice should be penalized throughout the state.

TWO-WAY POLICE RADIO.

[Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.]

Police departments that have used radio to transmit information to cruising police cars will be interested in the outcome of a two-way radio experiment to be made by Howard A. Seyse at Buffalo. Mr. Seyse has obtained permission from the radio commission to use high frequencies and low power in his experiments, during which he will send messages from station to automobiles and from automobiles to station.

Use of police radio sending stations to speed police on their way to emergency calls has been successful in all sections. In Philadelphia, where the man power of the police bureau is below the number needed, the police radio has helped to make the work of the force more effective by speeding police cars to required destinations and has made up a little for the lack of sufficient patrolmen. It would be better, however, if police cars could communicate with the police radio station directly, without stopping to use the nearest available phone. This is especially desired so that if attacked by unequal numbers police in patrol cars can summon help.

If the Buffalo experiment with high frequencies and low power is successful, it may be possible to assign experimental frequencies for the use of police in cities that adopt the method. Two-way police radio would be one more advance in the scientific warfare against motorized crime.

No clarion call shall ever summon me
Into existence forth again to fare

Doesn't that sound like an election in Chicago or New York or any other city or town in these great United States? BAD TEETH, ANGINA, AND BLOOD PRESSURE.

THE following story is well vouched for:

A prominent preacher and educator began about ten years ago to suffer with a pain back of his breast bone and in his heart region. The pain came in attacks. Between these spells he was reasonably comfortable. He was in the hands of very competent heart specialists equipped with apparatus for making electrocardiograms. A diagnosis of angina pectoris in its early stages was made.

As time went on and the spells did not become increasingly disabling some doubt arose as to the correctness of the diagnosis. Finally, principally for other reasons, he had all his teeth removed. It was not so very much of a sacrifice, since the teeth were crippled veterans of many wars and not much good anyhow. Not very long after the teeth were lost the chest pain folded up and faded away.

This was several months ago, and the supposed anginal pains have never returned and are almost forgotten.

Every physician can recall one or more stories like this. One is of a man who had diabetes. At any rate, he had glycosuria and a lot of associated troubles. He had his teeth out and his diabetes disappeared.

This is one side of a picture. However, thousands of persons have sacrificed their teeth because of rheumatism, neuritis, pains in the arms, and a variety of ills, and thereafter have not been one shade better than they were before. And, what makes matters worse, no one can tell which cases will be improved by removal of the teeth and which will not. It is pure gambling, although not so covered by law.

There is another part to the story with which we began. This clergyman and educator has high blood pressure. It ranges all the way from 225 to 160. It has a marked disposition to run the scale from high C to low B, or whatever high and low may be in musical language. The point to be made here is that when a high blood pressure runs the scale, shoots up and drops down, emotion is the major factor and thickening of the arterial walls is a minor.

Perhaps all persons who have high blood pressure should deny themselves the luxury of indulgence in emotions; but, if the high pressure is the result of thickening in the artery wall, emotional calm will not accomplish much. If, however, it is of the scale running type the man who practices optimism, acquiescence, resignation, complacency, calm, poise, freedom from worry and anxiety, who takes life as it comes, and smiles—such a man is having the best possible treatment for his high blood pressure.

A. E. W. writes: Is much fat ham boiled with the rind and vegetables cooked with it a good, healthy food?

WOUNDED KNEES.

F. C. writes: A school friend of mine hurt her knee by falling on the cinders in the school yard. A spot about as large as a quarter was scraped off. This was at the close of school in June. It refused to heal, although first aid was given immediately. It was treated at home for a month and then a physician treated it twice. Proud flesh was in it continuously. It is now practically under control. Do you think her blood is impure? Would a good tonic be proper for her?

REPLY.

The history does not mean that her blood is impure or that she needs a tonic. Tell her not to do it again and beyond that she need not go. Any skin wound is liable to develop proud flesh, especially if it is not treated well.

NO CIVIC PRIDE HERE.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—[Friend of the People.]—Lawrence avenue, approximately between Kedzie avenue and Central Park, seems to be unusually and unnecessarily neglected in so far as cleanliness is concerned. The sidewalks are continually strewn with rubbish and paper, and although most of the residents of that community are complaining about this condition, yet no one seems to do anything about it. I. M.

Report is made that Lawrence avenue between Kedzie and Central Park avenues is cleaned daily, but merchants and householders are very careless, apparently having no sense of civic pride in keeping their neighborhood in a presentable condition, as there is no cooperation whatever on their part. Repeated notices have been served to desist from practice of scattering refuse about. Notices will be served again, and unless improvement is noted drastic action will be taken to enforce compliance with city ordinances. JOSEPH J. BUTLER, Superintendent of Streets.

PENALTY PROVIDED.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—While I was sitting outside in the court, just outside of my door on the first floor, trying to recover from a severe indisposition, a flowerpot fell on my right hand from above on the second floor, necessitating medical attention. Who is responsible, the landlord or the tenant? The landlord has his building insured against accidents resulting to his tenants. M. H. C.

Sec. 4240 of the city code reads in part as follows: "It shall not be lawful for any person to place or keep on any window sill, railing or balcony, top of porch or any other projection from any house or other building in the city, any flowerpot, . . . unless the same is securely and firmly fastened or protected so as to render it impossible for any such pot, . . . to fall into the street. Any person violating this section shall be subject to a penalty of not more than fifty dollars for each offense."

The compensation act does not apply to casual employments, hence you would not be liable on the facts stated unless you were in some way to blame.

DOWER RIGHTS.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a piece of property is left to the children with a dower right to the widow in this state, and the widow does not live on the property for a number of years, does she lose her dower right or is that secure while she lives, whether she occupies the property or not? Her right would continue. Residing on the property is important for purpose of homestead, but not for the purpose of dower.

1. Yes, as far as the facts stated are concerned.
2. Not for this purpose.
3. A complete answer would be of undue length.
4. No. We advise you to employ an attorney.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 27, 1916.

LONDON.—Combles, the German base in the Somme sector and one of the three main objectives of the French and British forces when they began their famous drive on July 1, has capitulated, but not until nearly every German defending the village was killed. Hardly had the news of the fall of Combles reached London before Gen. Haig advised the war office that Thiepval, key to Bapaume, one of the other objectives of the drive, had crumbled before the attacks of the British. The onslaught also carried the high ridge to the east of the town and a strongly fortified redoubt. Thiepval has proved a stumbling block in the advance of the British left almost since the beginning of the offensive, when a check at Gommecourt was suffered. Its fall gives to the Anglo-French forces the whole line of low hills which slope to the plain, of which the town of Bapaume is the center.

PARIS.—The war office makes the following report concerning fighting on the western front: "The battle continued successfully today. North of the Somme the entente allied troops increased their gains of yesterday considerably, having attained within a few hours the objectives assigned for the second day of the struggle. This morning the French troops resumed the offensive and captured one entire section of Combles, situated to the east and south of the railway. Our patrols entered into conjunction with the troops of the right wing of the British army, who were cleaning up the northwestern part of Combles. Shortly afterward the whole village fell into our power."

VIENNA.—Vulcan and Szurduk passes in the Transylvania theater, which were won recently at heavy cost to the Austro-Germans, have been evacuated, according to the war office statement tonight. The communication says that the passes were given up before a "far extending encircling movement by strong Russian forces."

LONDON.—Thirty-six persons were killed and twenty-seven injured in last night's Zeppelin raid, it was officially announced.

PETROGRAD.—German troops, after a fierce artillery preparation yesterday, launched an attack against the Russian trenches north of Lake Kaldychev, says the official statement. The Germans were repulsed with great losses, the statement adds, leaving a large number of killed and wounded on the field.

EL PASO, Tex.—Annihilation of Carranza garrisons at Santa Ysabel and San Andreas, Chihuahua, during sudden attacks by Villa bandits on Sept. 22 and 23 was reported to the United States army intelligence department, according to an announcement from military headquarters. It was stated that Gen. José Cavazos, in command at Santa Ysabel, returned to Chihuahua City Sept. 23 with a mere handful of his command of 400 men, the rest having been killed or put to flight by the bandits. At San Andreas on Sept. 22 the bandits attacked the command of Col. Zuazua, which was said to have been wiped out, Zuazua himself having been killed.

NEW YORK.—Notwithstanding the command of a group of radical leaders that organized labor in New York go on a general sympathetic strike tomorrow in all industries to aid the strike of the street car men, there is not likely to be a general walkout of union laboring men. To what extent the strike will materialize is dependent upon whether the various industrial unions follow the leadership of the most radical element or heed the counsels of conservative officers.

NEW YORK.—Not content with setting a new major league record for consecutive victories yesterday, Mc. Graw's Giants went joyfully on their winning way at the Polo grounds today and again defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, this time by a score of 6 to 1. It's now twenty-two victories in a row.

HOOVER, ROOSEVELT, AND THE FARMERS.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 20.—In your editorial of Sept. 20 from North Dakota you state: "A state which regards laziness as a virtue and political quackery as statesmanship is now considering an experiment in thievery. And, of course, the citizens continue to look to Washington for salvation. Government grants and loans, taken from the earnings of the industries, are to be showered upon the wheat farmers. Unless it is the purpose of the government to encourage shiftlessness and dishonesty it is difficult to see any reason for extending relief to these people. They don't deserve it and there is ample reason to fear that if they get it they will refuse to repay what has been lent them."

In this same paper Mr. Henning, reporting on political conditions in North Dakota, in great gusto states that the farmer in North Dakota and elsewhere blames Mr. Hoover for hard times and is consequently very much against him and has swung strongly to Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Hoover very forcibly states his position and the position of the Republican party, as quoted by Mr. Henning as follows:

"There is no relief to the farmer by extending government bureaucracy to control his production and thus curtail his liberties, nor by subsidies that bring only more bureaucracy and their ultimate collapse, and I shall continue to oppose them."

Now, it seems that Mr. Roosevelt is promising the opposite of what Mr. Hoover states and, therefore, editorially THE TRIBUNE favors the principles of Mr. Hoover and not those of Mr. Roosevelt. On this basis and many others I do not understand how THE TRIBUNE can support Mr. Roosevelt and the Democratic party. The only conclusion that I can come to is that THE TRIBUNE is guided in its course by prejudice and not by good sound judgment. Mr. Roosevelt appeals to many by speaking in generalities about the tariff. Specifically he insinuates that he is going to correct the tariff when the only move he can make different from Mr. Hoover is to lower it. Really this will bring more foreign goods with foreign low class labor to the detriment of the present American market. Mr. Roosevelt plainly wants to put the tariff back into politics with all of its log-rolling evils that have affected it for such a long period.

President Hoover's stand on the bonus question is plain, forcible and correct, whereas in spite of the demand from many prominent Democrats, notably Mr. Al Smith, Mr. Roosevelt is very quiet on this very important question which so affects the economic conditions of this country. JOHN B. WELCH.

COUSIN EVE IN POLAND.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—As a Chicagoan of Polish parentage, I wish to pay THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE a well deserved compliment for the excellent articles on Poland contributed by Cousin Eve. The two articles which have appeared in the past two Sunday editions of THE TRIBUNE were avidly read by countless Chicagoans of Polish extraction. Cousin Eve's account of her trip to Poland made interesting and colorful reading and the tone in which they were written shows impartiality and a thorough understanding of her subject. CHESTER D. 10,000 USELESS CLERKS.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 12.—May I suggest that you arrange to have published a complete list of all bureaus and special departments that could be dispensed with? Give the title, number of employés, cost, etc., so that the public may read the actual lists. I understand there are 10,000 useless clerks in Washington. W. A. MARQUA.

ENLARGING THE WORLD'S FAIR AREA.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—We saw in THE TRIBUNE of some days ago that the World's Fair officials have asked the south park commissioners for an extension of their control over land along the lake front to 47th street on the south and to 7th street on the north, with a plan of making a large parking area, and that as a result Supt. George T. Donohue and Engineer White had begun a survey of the territory.

The aforesaid land belongs to us and not to the south park board and it has been made into a park at the price of heavy taxation. It took millions of dollars and much discomfort on the part of south siders before this park, which is not yet finished, became at least presentable. The World's Fair has no right to ask nor the south park to grant any park land at the expense of the taxpayers. After spending millions of dollars to have black earth, trees, grass and shrubs along the lake we won't allow any one to make a dump out of it, even if the south park board is willing.

As to parking areas for the World's Fair, they are being arranged for on private property. Surely Chicagoans ought to profit somewhat from the millions of visitors to Chicago. Citizens here are getting a bit peeved with the way the south park board rents and disposes of city parks as if they were the board's private possession. The parks along the lake belong to us and we refuse to allow them to be used for any other purpose. And we're still wondering how the south park board dared to do away with money which was to be used for the erection of the 35th, 43d, and 47th street bridges and build no bridges!

Why, he could get Grove, Simmons, Walberg, Foxx, Earnshaw from the A's added to what he's got and still get nowhere. He would have Simmons at shortstop and Foxx pitching before the season was over. He has let the following players get away: Cissell, Reynolds, Hadley, Campbell, Thomas and many others.

HE WANTS A BICYCLE CLUB.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Does any one know of a bicycle club in Chicago for adults or any group of people who have bicycles and like to ride? When I was abroad a short time ago it was very interesting to me to see the large number of people everywhere who rode bicycles in lieu of automobiles around the city or on holiday trips into the country. It is a good, healthful sport, not strenuous, and I am wondering if there is any interest in it here at all. A. C. HARPER.

D. H. Lawrence Letters Reflect His Confidence

Show Noted Author at Peace with Himself.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Letters of D. H. Lawrence," edited by Aldous Huxley. [Viking Press.] Published Sept. 24.

IF the world believes that modern men and women are too busy to write letters, and that the art of letter writing went out when telephones came in and the telegraph companies began urging every one "Don't write, telegraph," I offer them in refutation "The Letters of D. H. Lawrence." Lawrence was 45 at the time of his death in 1930, and the first letter in the volume was written when he was 24. In those 21 years he wrote enough letters to fill 860 large pages of print, and that mass of correspondence is culled from an incalculably vaster mass.

ALDOUS HUXLEY.

In his introduction Mr. Huxley says: "In selecting the letters which Lawrence's correspondents have so generously placed at my disposal, I have been guided by a few simple and obvious principles. Trivial notes have not been reproduced. Nor, in most cases, business letters. [There is, for example, an enormous correspondence referring to the publication and distribution of the first Florentine edition of Lady Chatterley. This has been omitted altogether.] A certain number of passages that might have given pain to the person mentioned in them, or that deal with personalities which it did not seem right or decent to make public, have been cut out."

And pay very close attention to that phrase "which Lawrence's correspondents have . . . placed at my disposal." How many hundreds of letters from D. H. Lawrence are in existence that were not placed at Mr. Huxley's disposal is to be forever unknown, and the many letters from him that were never saved by their recipients would pile Ossa on Pelion. For Lawrence was not a world figure in literature in his early years and his letters probably settled into the Nirvana of a wastebasket as most letters from struggling artists fare.

D. H. Lawrence must have been as prolific a letter writer as Mr. Ellis Parker Butler's pigs were pigs. He wrote one time in 1913 to Lady Cynthia Asquith, "Because I feel frightfully disagreeable, and not fit to consecrate myself to novels or to short stories, I'll write a letter. I like to write when I feel spiteful; it's like having a good sneeze." Apparently he wrote letters as lesser men would get drunk or play bridge or take a long walk . . . as a specially efficacious relaxation. Although some of the later letters—during the war and in the period when his health was broken—do sound "frightfully disagreeable," most of the letters have an oddly cheerful sound, an oddly unpugnacious attitude for a man who was constantly at war with the world in his creative work.

Mr. Huxley explains in his fine introduction that fact by making it plain that Lawrence was never at war with himself, that he wrote what he wrote because he, as D. H. Lawrence, had to write in that exact fashion and about that exact thing. He did not, therefore, suffer from that nervous tension that tears an artist to shreds when he knows that he is doing work foreign to his inner urge. If it had not been for Lawrence's confidence in his own creative rightness life would have been untenable for him. As it is, one of the most obvious characteristics of the letters from the beginning to the end is his absolute certainty that his work is as it should be. He almost never criticizes his own work adversely, and when he does he often adds a postscript saying that the novel or the poem or the short story is good—as he did to Harriet Monroe in 1914: "Take care how you regard my war poem—it is good," after he had written in the body of the letter "I don't care what you do with my war poem; I don't particularly care if I don't hear of it any more."

One finds very seldom in the letters commendation of other novelists' or poets' work, but there is no sense of jealousy in the matter, merely the incontrovertible fact that to Lawrence life was of a definite and really very simple pattern and any work which did not fit into that pattern was neither inspiriting nor even interesting to him. What that pattern was Mr. Huxley makes more clear than any other person who has written intimately about Lawrence.

As examples of the art of letter writing Lawrence's letters are not masterpieces. He reserved, as he rightly should, his greatest creative forces for his creative work. I think also that the fact that none of the letters is to his wife, Frieda, whom he loved, one judges from his letters, above every other human being in the world and who was apparently the only person he felt intimately close to, perhaps has something to do with their seeming extremely interesting letters only and not, in themselves, inspired.

To any one at all in touch with or interested in the literary history of the last twenty years they are fascinating for the material and the personalities which they contain, and they certainly belong on the shelf of every collector of modern literature, and to the student of Lawrence they are the sun which illumines and makes fertile the cosmos of his creation.

Good Morning!

Give thanks! From out the all encircling good has emerged a horror film with a new idea!

"The Most Dangerous Game" is scare ridden from start to finish. Your hair refuses to lie flat from the moment the owner of a yacht cruising in shark swum seas refuses to follow his captain's earnest advice and steer clear of a certain channel, till the climax which sees a motor boat speeding away from a perilous island bearing two young people who for six reels have been in most frightful danger.

Those two doughty soldiers of fortune, Merian C. Cooper and Ernest Schoedsack, who are forever penetrating uncharted wilds with their trusty cameras to bring back fascinating adventure movies — remember "Grass," "Chang," "Rango"—?—wrote "The Most Dangerous Game."

They have certainly turned out a hummer, that is acted, directed, staged and photographed to the nines. The authors, you will note, assisted at the megaphone.

This is the sort of story that must have none of its secrets revealed beforehand if it is to be properly enjoyed by an audience. So, I hand you "The Most Dangerous Game," heralded, but unsung. [Leave the children at home.]

See you soon.

D. A. R. to Present Marker at Former Indian Village

The George Rogers Clark chapter of the D. A. R. will present a marker to the forest preserve board today to mark the site of a former Indian village near the River road, north of North avenue. The exercises will be held at 4 p. m.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

—BY— H. A. RIPLEY

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

THE ART GALLERY MYSTERY.

This was not Prof. Fordney's first visit to the famous art gallery of the multi-millionaire Michael Carter. It stood about 100 yards in the rear of his palatial suburban estate. The floors and stairs of the two-story gallery were richly carpeted and the walls hung with priceless masterpieces.

Alfredo Baroni, connoisseur and collector for Carter, ushered Inspector Kelley and Fordney down the long hall at the end of which was located a private office. There were no sounds of footsteps as they walked along and Kelley turned to see if his friend was following. Entering the office they found the millionaire stretched on the floor, a revolver clutched in his hand. Fordney closed the door and lowered the window, shutting out the wind and rain, as Kelley asked: "You called headquarters yourself, Baroni?"

"Yes."

"Well, tell us about it."

"I had walked back from town, those muddy footprints by the body are mine, and got caught in the storm. I had just come in the front door and reached the top of the stairs when I heard a loud report that seemed to come from here. I dashed down again, ran through the hall and found him like this!"

"Why, yes. Upstairs."

"H'mmm . . . I thought so!"

"Any one besides you and Carter have keys to the gallery?"

"No."

"Why aren't the office windows barred?"

"I really couldn't tell you."

"Take the gun, Baroni," said Kelley handing it to him. "Now, where did you stand when you shot Carter?"

WHAT AROUSED KELLEY'S SUSPICION?

(See solution on page 28.)

BY RHEA SEEGER.

SOMEBODY should be decorated with a chest full of medals for inventing fashion openings . . . what the average clothes conscious shopper would do without these intriguing events is something to shudder over.

You can slide out of home base early any of these delightfully brisk mornings, anchor your most becoming hat on the slippery side of your curls, wrap your newest frock around your ribs and dash to the shop with the rest of the excited gad-abouts and do your semi-annual fashion snooping.

Lounging in massed formation, you can languidly or enthusiastically, depending upon your temperament, spend two or three fast moving hours luxuriating in the most fascinating pageant ever presented to clothes hungry females.

Even with the most skimpy of imaginations, you can get all the thrill of a Paris press opening when you wander into a swanky display of what the 1932 clothes hound will wear this coming winter . . . you will see gowns and dresses, coats suits, ensembles, frocks with trick names, the newest pet ideas of French designers in costume jewelry, hats and the "little things" that complete a costume so perfectly.

If the new models this year don't leave you gasping and stunned with their originality and femininity, then nothing ever will. This year, we have gone picturesque with a decided flair for suitable clothing for each and every personality. Once again we can be different and yet be fashionable. Even the wandering waistline still lingers wherever it looks best according to your streamlines . . . skirt lengths are blissfully ignored, that is, that great decision is practically left to your own discretion.

Once again, the models are designed for all ages, gay young things wear the extreme silhouettes that only extreme youth can wear with the proper dash . . . dignified sophisticates wear the chic ensembles that only a sophisticate can wear. Evidently it's not only safe, but also knowingly fashionable to be your age!

After two or three sessions of being an appreciative audience, the final and most lasting impressions are these . . . sleeves, an inexhaustible supply of sleeves . . . large, ample, abundant sleeves, on dresses, coats, suits, and even lingerie and negligees. It may be a most important year for presidential candidates, baseball teams, depression charts and what have you, but it's a ten to one chance that after all the shouting and fighting is over this year will go screaming down into history with the pandemonium caused by the new capacious sleeve.

The second impression is the sore throat effect . . . everything you wear this season will have tight, terrifying modest throat or necklines, the higher, the tighter the better, even square necklines are so contrived that they spread over your shoulders for width but close dangerously in on your windpipe.

The third impression that clicks through the haze of seeing so much, is the new tunic skirt idea. Some generous designers, not satisfied with merely one long tunic, double the first idea with two slenderizing tunics that flare in a long V line up to the back waistline.

Since there are so many dresses that button demurely down the back very little is done about front decorations, but how they do accent these back buttons and back closing devices. Not content with stringing all the buttons they can fasten on, the designers outline a lot of these back effects with braid, embroidery and other fancies. The casual observer will probably pause to wonder how, and when, and where, the solitary clothes hound is going to be assembled in her newest back buttoned frocks.

Some Common Beauty Fears Now Dispelled

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Does cold cream grow hair on the face?"

"Isn't it harmful to stop perspiration?"

"Doesn't powder clog the pores?"

These are but a few of the questions put to me about cosmetic things.

"Isn't a permanent injurious to the hair?" is another frequently put query.

"Isn't eye makeup bad for the eyes?" And so on and so on.

When I'm asked about cold cream growing hair on the face I point to the theatrical profession as proof of what the face will stand in the way of cream. If cold cream grew hair, they who have to use cream several times a day would surely put the circus bearded ladies out of commission, wouldn't they? As a group, the stage professionals have excellent skin. True, they may have had the asset to begin with, but if there were anything to cold cream as a skin detriment, they'd suffer the same as any one else, wouldn't they?

As nearly as science has been able to discover, superfluous hair is linked with the glands. And even though lanolin or sheep base oil is used in a cream there is no authentic support for the belief that because the sheep is woolly, you'll be. Even depilatories, sometimes accused of encouraging hair growth, have been disproved as such trouble makers. Scientific study proves that the hairs do not increase in size and length.

As for the charge against stopping perspiration as being an unhealthful practice, it would be did one stop perspiration over the entire body. But as this latter day habit of arresting perspiration is practiced it is checked only in limited areas, and no possible harm can ensue.

There may have been a time when a permanent meant a succession of oil treatments to restore the gloss and softness to the hair. In some cases of hair condition and of inefficiently given permanents there may still be cause for concern. But there is no longer need for the terrific drying heat, the strong caustic lotions that formerly were in use.

Harmless lotions are used today and hair is not exposed to terrific heat temperature in the better, uptodate salons.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The parent has some right in molding his or her child and the home plays, after all, the most fundamental rôle in educating children, in the opinion of Mrs. Hugh Bradford of Sacramento, Cal., president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

She presided yesterday at an executive committee meeting in the Edgewater Beach hotel, where a tentative program for the year for the Parent-Teacher associations of the country, including 1,500,000 members, was mapped out preparatory to a three day meeting of the national board of 100 members opening today in the hotel.

In an interview following the meeting Mrs. Bradford, a pleasant faced, motherly woman with waving gray hair, who is a grandmother and who taught school in the days before exerts became gravely exercised over the awful responsibilities of "educating the child to take his place in society" and education became an industry on a major scale, spoke of the objects of her association and of her own views on education and children.

When schools begin to take over all the functions of the home, teaching children morals and manners as well as spelling and arithmetic, they are assuming too much responsibility, in her opinion, Mrs. Bradford said.

"It is the education of the parents that our organization concentrates on this year," she said. "We're having three new committees, on radio education, character education, and rural service. We hope to promote radio programs by which parents may learn new methods in education: how to teach addition by subtraction; reading without spelling, and so on.

"Parents all over the country form study and discussion groups and deal with such problems as child behavior. If a child has temper tantrums, should he be spanked?

"In rural communities and in cities parents are afraid to be called old fashioned parents. In 'our character education' we hope to show parents how they should conduct themselves to be good examples. If they aren't honest with their children, they can't expect honesty."

Mrs. Bradford then pushed back her gray locks and sighed.

"You know, with my first child I never let her cry, I always picked her up," she reminisced. "I knew nothing of psychology. With my second child, I still knew nothing about books on child behavior, but I knew enough not to spoil him. Now when my grandchildren misbehave my daughter knows just what to do for them. Of course, sometimes we old fashioned mothers learned through common sense."

Mrs. Bradford was asked whether she thought the modern child, the product of so many trained educators, specialists, and parents striving to understand his complexes and deal with them properly, was superior to the child of other generations.

"Well," she said, "all I can say is that he ought to be."

Elinor Durbin Wedding Will Be Held Today

Will Become Bride of Sartell Porter.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE chapel of St. Chrysostom's church will be the scene this afternoon of a small but notable wedding when Miss Elinor Durbin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher M. Durbin, becames the bride of Sartell Prentice Porter, son of Harry H. Porter and Mrs. Prentice Porter.

The service is to be read by the Rev. Dudley S. Stark at 4:30 o'clock in the presence of the families and a very few intimate friends. After the ceremony there will be a reception at the residence of the bride's parents, 1449 Astor street, to which a few more friends have been invited, but it, too, will be small.

Miss Durbin will be attended by Miss Betty Frey and Mrs. Robert Ward of Providence, R. I., and John P. Porter will serve as best man for his brother. Ushering will be the bride's younger brother, Winfield T. Durbin II., another brother of the bridegroom, Henry H. Porter Jr., Philip Elting, Price McKinney of Cleveland, John L. Bradley of Colorado Springs and Charles McCormick of San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter will spend their honeymoon in England and Ireland, returning to Chicago about Dec. 1.

Betty Brawley Sets Debut Date.

Attractive Miss Betty Brawley has decided definitely about her debut party. It is to be a tea on Saturday, Nov. 12, at home, which is at 1448 Lake Shore drive. Miss Brawley is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Brawley, and she finished at the Wheeler school in Providence, R. I., a year ago, taking a post-graduate course there last year. During the Christmas holidays Dr. and Mrs. Brawley will give a buffet supper for their daughter.

Mrs. John W. Gary will entertain the women working for St. Luke's fashion show at luncheon today at 1 o'clock at the Fortnightly. Mrs. Gary is general chairman and treasurer of the committee in charge of the show which is to be given on Oct. 25 at the Stevens hotel. A business meeting will precede the luncheon today.

More about the house party Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank gave last week-end at Butternuts at Lake Geneva for her two debutante nieces, Miss Lucy Fairbank and Miss Frances Bell: in addition to the girls who were there, the Misses Jane Boyce, Nancy Avery, Nancy Traylor, Mary Senior, Josephine Patterson, Marjorie Goodman, Marie Swift, Jean Schweppe, the two guests of honor, and Mrs. Fairbank's daughter, Janet, the young men in the party were Thomas Sterling, Charles Hume, C. R. Larrabee, Stokely Webster, Walker Smith, Daggett Harvey, Dexter Fairbank, Harry Pulsifer and Palmer Dawes, and of course Mrs. Fairbank's sons, Kellogg Jr. and Benjamin.

A treasure hunt was arranged for Sunday morning and Miss Lucy Fairbank and Mr. Sterling found the treasure, a handsome silver cup. In spite of the fact that the weather was pretty cold for swimming, the young people spent the rest of Sunday swimming and playing tennis.

There were quite a few smaller house parties at the lake over the week-end, the junior Albert F. Madleners having with them Miss Eleanor Dennehy, Miss Dorothy Ranney, Dick Simmons, Joseph C. Belden Jr., and the Herbert McLaughlins. The John S. Coonleys were with the Sangston Hettlers, and Dr. and Mrs. William Finnie had as their guests the Ralph Milmans. The Finnies, by the way, have taken Lawrence Viles' house in Lake Forest for the winter and are moving down next week.

At the harvest home party at the Lake Geneva Country club last Saturday night new officers for the coming year were elected, Albert F. Madlener Jr. being the new president. Henry C. Bartholomay is chairman of the house committee; H. N. Gifford, secretary, and Henry P. Isham, chairman of the greens committee.

Seven Girls Sail for Schools.

Six young Chicago girls and one who doesn't live here, but whose mother was a Chicagoan, so she always is considered as partly belonging to Chicago, sailed the end of last week to be "finished" abroad before they make their debuts next year.

They are Miss Jean Wilhelm, Miss Peggy Hixon, and Miss Helen Hunter, who sailed on Friday for Paris, where they will attend Miss Schoff's school, and Miss Fanny McPherson, Miss Josephine Templeton, Miss Mary Reid, and Miss Mary de Tarnowsky, who sailed Saturday to enter Miss Nixon's in Florence.

Jean is a daughter of the Frank E. Wilhelms of 2430 Lake View avenue; Peggy is a daughter of the Robert Hixons of Lake Forest; Helen is a daughter of the Robert Hunters of Santa Barbara—Mrs. Hunter was Gwendolyn Mitchell of Chicago, and the family visits here frequently—Fanny is the daughter of the Donald McPhersons of Winnetka; Josephine is the Kenneth S. Templetons' child; Mary Reid is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan S. Reid, and the other Mary is Dr. and Mrs. George de Tarnowsky's daughter.

Mrs. Robert J. Thorne will return to Lake Forest in about a week from the east, where she has taken her youngest daughter, Narcissa, to school. Narcissa and her sister, Laura, spent last winter studying abroad, and Laura is on this year's list of debutantes, although no definite plans for her formal presentation have been announced yet.

Mrs. Edmund J. Doering Jr. will arrive at home the end of this week from the east, where she and her family spent the summer. Mrs. Doering's mother, Mrs. Edward T. Jeffery, already has returned.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Neil is mystified by the peculiarities of Miss Bundy, who is broken in health and mentally disturbed. She has hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff. He and his wife, a common, illiterate couple, occupy the lodge, and hold a strange influence over Caroline. Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half Russian niece, beautiful but fiery tempered, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline puts Neil in charge of the library in the daytime, cautioning him to admit no one. She tells him her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly meetings in the library. Neil has a friend, Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, who lives with his sister, Rachel. Neil has lunch in Bath with Rachel and Tasha. He sees Tasha hold a secret meeting with a strange man and later sees her pay the stranger's bill in the tearoom. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. Neil accidentally meets Tasha in a jeweler's store, where she is selling some jewels.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

FRIENDLY INTERFERENCE.

"Don't worry about me. I shall get the money in one way or another. I've got to."

Something rather grim in Natasha's tone made Neil look at her quickly, but she did not notice the glance.

"Now," she said determinedly, "that's finished—except for one request I have to make. Don't, please, mention this to the Gisbornes."

"Right—I promise. Now, let's go and see 'Love Behind Bars.' It looks just the kind of maudlin stuff that acts as a soothing powder. Then we'll drop in at the King's Arms and see what sort of cocktail they can make."

In the darkened cinema she sat as far from him as the seats permitted, afraid, perhaps, lest he should try to bestow some tactual consolation. His thoughts centered round the man in Bath, ever and again connecting him with what she had said about the time getting short. The idea in his mind was not a pleasant one. Once he ventured to ask if her brother were in a position to assist her. She did not answer at once, finally muttering so low that he could hardly catch the words, "Michael can't help."

Her evasive reply bore out his own theory, namely that Michael did know, had uttered protests and denunciations which made it impossible to approach him. Why, why, he asked himself, must the finest women waste themselves on cads and bounders? His own sister was an example. She was seeking divorce now from the husband every friend had warned her against.

"I've been a dreadful beast, I know. Don't, please, think I'm not terribly grateful. I didn't even thank you, but I do now."

She disappeared into the garage with an air of finality. However, he hung about on the terrace waiting for her and when several minutes had passed and she still had not come out, he looked in at the window to see what kept her. What met his eyes amazed and disturbed him—Natasha, leaning against the car, face hidden, shoulders shaken by weeping!

He took two quick strides in her direction, only to waver and turn back. No, she would resent the intrusion.

Miss Bundy was in their midst again, physically greatly restored. She was still obeying the mandate about early hours and no excitement, though it was patent to all beholders how much she chafed under the restraint. She had a way now of slipping down to the lodge for private conferences, and only a few days after her reappearance Neil, returning from an early ramble and pausing to hang up his coat in the lobby, heard her sending a telegram which plainly showed how the wind blew. The name Braselton made him stop and listen. Wasn't Miss Braselton the head mistress Natasha had mentioned as her aunt's one close friend?

The guarded voice at the telephone continued: "Bellingham, Gloucestershire. There—have you got that correctly? Many regrets; have been ill and must ask you to postpone visit here. Writing. Signature, Caroline."

Late that afternoon he entered the drawing room to find himself face to face with an imposing woman who, seated before the fire, was calmly disposing of a solitary tea. A traveling coat and gloves lay beside her on the sofa; a smart turban framed well waved gray hair. He was about to apologize and retreat when she beckoned to him with authority and, fixing a pair of piercing brown eyes on him, bade him sit down.

"You are Mr. Starkey, of course." Her voice, though magisterial, was admirably pitched. "You see, I know all about you, and I particularly want a word with you before Miss Bundy comes home. Perhaps I'd better introduce myself; I am Emily Braselton."

Neil sat down. He wondered if the visitor had failed to receive the telegram putting her off, or if she had come in spite of it.

Although she looked the sort of woman not to be trifled with, she had definite poise and charm. Keen witted and worldly, she was so different from his hostess that he was inclined to marvel at the friendship between the two. Probably it dated back to early days. The flattering questions she asked about the biography showed she could be diplomatic, and so did the ease with which she steered the talk round to the topic of Miss Bundy's health, but now preliminaries had been dispensed with, her face darkened, and her eyes took on an added penetration.

"Mr. Starkey, I am much concerned over the situation in this house. Miss Bundy's recent attack is not half so ominous as the rumors which have been reaching me. Tell me plainly. In what ways do you find her altered?"

"Sometimes it's hard to separate cause and effect," Neil temporized. "You see, till my stay here I had only seen Miss Bundy once, so how can I judge what she was like before? Personally, I mean. High blood pressure, of course——"

"That's neither here nor there." She sounded slightly impatient. "When I was here just before Christmas I am positive there was nothing abnormal about her blood pressure. Nervous excitement is all very well, but what is causing that excitement? Should you say, for instance, that she is being subjected to some malign influence? What I want is a direct yes or no."

Neil, not yet knowing Miss Braselton's reputation for calling a spade a spade, was decidedly disconcerted.

"The possibility has occurred to me, but frankly I don't know how to answer your question. When you say malign influence——"

She interrupted him again with good humored scorn. "You can't deceive me, Mr. Starkey. You know as well as I do that Caroline Bundy is being victimized, preyed upon. Blackmail is an ugly word which I hesitate to employ, but call it what you like, have you observed anything at all peculiar in her relations with——" She paused, looked about, and lowered her voice portentously—"Natasha Andreyev?"

At the unexpected name Neil almost jumped out of his seat. Natasha——! So this was what her innuendoes had been leading up to!

"I'm afraid I don't understand you," he returned stiffly. "Perhaps you'd better explain."

She shot him a shrewd glance. "Very well, I will. I have good reason to suspect the young woman I've mentioned of trying to extort money by means of pressure—more, that she remains here solely because of the hold she's managed to obtain. You, obviously, may be ignorant of this. I asked merely in case you had noticed any indication of such a state of affairs."

"Absolutely none. You'd like my real opinion," he said coldly. "Well, here it is: If Miss Bundy is under any evil influence you must look elsewhere for the agents. Not far off, either. Do you know what I mean?"

"Perfectly," she nodded. "The bailiff and his wife. O, don't imagine I'm overlooking their part in this. Indeed, that would supply just the leverage for a calculating third party to make use of. That is exactly what I fear to be the case—that poor Carrie has been acting stupidly, and that Natasha, by threatening to make damaging statements, is keeping her in perpetual terror."

Neil had now reached boiling point. "Please get this right, Miss Braselton," he said. "Miss Andreyev knows no more of the real situation than you or I. She's badly worried over Miss Bundy. I'm moreover quite positive she never receives a penny over and above what she earns."

"H'm," remarked the other, as though to say, "You believe that, of course. You would." After a second she continued with a change of tone, "And now, as to the actual nature of these meetings with Mr. and Mrs. Tilbury. I myself suspect spiritualism. And you?"

"And if it is spiritualism," he retorted, "what of it? Why the exaggerated secrecy?"

"Ah! you don't know Caroline as I do. She is painfully sensitive to ridicule, like her father before her. The traditions of exact science, you understand, and in the present case the knowledge that her taking up with inferior people is sure to be criticized. Besides, how do we know there isn't some extra dangerous feature, some definite thing which is wrecking her morale and making her an easy prey for the unscrupulous?"

James Cagney May Play in Pickford Film

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 26.—Negotiations are under way by the Mary Pickford studios to engage James Cagney as leading man for "Shantytown," Miss Pickford's new picture, which is about to start work. This would seem to indicate that the final chapter in the Warner Brothers-Cagney salary battle is about to be written.

Kenneth MacKenna owns one of the finest collections of Shaviana [and I don't mean moustache cups, either] in the world. First editions, manuscripts, letters, pamphlets, pronunciamentos by Bernard Shaw fill a whole room. Ken says he figures this collection will keep him in his old age. Ken, aside from the Shaw collection, is quite a bibliophile; he says the big thrill of his life was the day he was able to pay $1,000 for a Doves press Bible.

Fernando de Toledo, Spanish portrait painter of considerable renown, thinks the most amazing thing he has seen in the United States is Hollywood's collection of platinum blondes.

Only he phrases it "platinum blonde is not the proper name; I call that shade of hair desert sunshine."

He says no one sees hair like Jean Ha w's in Europe, and it is the most fascinating thing in the way of modern female beauty he ever noticed.

"Even if beauty is artificial, beauty is its own excuse for being," the painter said, "and it is immaterial that nature itself did not endow these wonderful young women with hair of that incomparable hue."

The third feature film about southern chain gangs is being started. This one is Universal's. It's called "Laughter in Hell," and is by Jim Tully, with Tom Reed adapting it. Pat O'Brien is the lead, and Gloria Stuart is the sex interest. The other two chain gangs films are "Liberty Road," with Dix, and "I'm a Fugitive from a Georgia Chain Gang."

Hardie Albright is the only movie actor who is on the official list of puppeteers published by Paul MacPharlin in his "Repertoire of Marionette Players." Albright makes his own puppets, models their faces and dresses them, and has written many marionette plays.

Sue Carol and Nick Stuart, traveling in vaudeville since a few weeks after the birth of their baby, report a grand time in Kansas City with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, who with their "Congorilla" were on the same bill. They went night flying with the Johnsons, who are testing out planes for their next expedition. Sue got a wire to come back to Hollywood for a test opposite Lew Ayres in his next film, but the vaudeville contract looked better.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"My son, 15 months old, is full of mischief and deviltment. He minds me when I say, 'no, no,' or 'you mustn't do that,' and I try not to put anything in his way to tempt him, but when he goes to mother's house he finds plenty to be annoying about, not that mother minds, but just the same I hate to see him touch and want things."

If he didn't touch and want things at a year and a quarter old, that would be something to worry about.

At 15 months a baby is getting intense interest and often excitement out of his sense of touch. Then he's got to use his new power of locomotion and other growing muscular controls. He must be given every chance to do so.

At home avoid the words, "don't touch." Satisfy his sense of touch whenever possible and then you will be able to intelligently enforce occasional denials, because he will be satisfied.

When you're visiting a place like his grandmother's where you go often, let him feel more at home. Take him on a tour of inspection, talking about, and looking at him with the things that fascinate him most. Let him handle what he can, then restore it to its place. Move a fragile thing—or say an infrequent "no."

Then take some toys he is especially fond of with you, or better, keep a few playthings at his grandmother's which will interest him because they are unfamiliar.

As to long and frequent visits of a more formal nature—at this age, I wouldn't!

Our leaflet, "Don't Touch, How Not to Say It," may be helpful. It is sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelop.

from having spent the summer at Harbor Point, are leaving next week for New York, where Jean will enter the French school for her last year of "finishing." She was at Dobbs for the last three years and she will not be a debutante until next year.

Pauline Seipp at Vassar.

Miss Pauline Seipp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Seipp, has left for another year at Vassar, postponing her debut until next year. Mrs. Seipp will return on Friday, having accompanied her daughter east. The Seipps plan to keep open their Barrington residence until late in the season.

Miss Betty Alexander, daughter of the James G. Alexanders of Lake Forest, is another of the girls who has decided not to "come out" this year, although she will be at home, having graduated from an eastern school last June.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Schwarz are motoring homeward from their summer holiday at Nantucket and probably will arrive in Chicago this week-end. They stopped in New York for several days last week and are now in Washington for a short stay.

The Morris L. Johnstons' Dearborn parkway residence, which has been closed all summer while its owners have been occupying Mrs. James O. Heyworth's house in Lake Forest, is being made ready again for occupancy. Mr. Johnston will return to town on Friday and Mrs. Johnston, who is convalescing from an operation at the Presbyterian hospital, is expected to be able to return to her residence next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charls B. Goodspeed returned home yesterday, Mr. Goodspeed having gone to New York to meet his wife upon her return from a brief European trip.

Bartle Bulls Sail Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartle Bull left the end of last week for Quebec to sail this coming Saturday on the Empress of Britain for England. The Bulls plan to live in London and already they have started negotiations for a house in a fashionable neighborhood, so I'm told. Mrs. Bull is the former Rosemary Baur and she and her husband stopped in Chicago for a visit with her mother, Mrs. Jacob Baur, on their way to England after almost a year's honeymoon trip around the world.

Mrs. Aldis J. Browne is not expected to return from Osterville, Mass., until the middle of next month. Mr. Browne and their sons, Aldis Jr. and Secor, returned last week and the boys will depart shortly for schools in the east.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Simpson of 942 Lake Shore drive will return on Friday from a summer stay at Menlo Park, Cal.

Take Home in California.

Mrs. Cecil Clark Davis and her mother, Mrs. Mary Louise Clark, have taken La Bergerie, the Clarence Mitchells' house on Mountain drive in Montecito, for six months. Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Clark, who summered at Marion, Mass., are expected to arrive at Santa Barbara on Nov. 15.

Mrs. Cyrus Bentley of 1505 Astor street has returned from a long visit with Mrs. Frederick T. West at Court Hill in Pittsfield, Mass., Mrs. West's daughter, Mrs. Perry M. Shepard of Geneva, N. Y., is at Court Hill now. Additional notes from the Berkshires: Mrs. Keene Addington and Mrs. James O. Hinckley of Lake Forest were in Stockbridge recently. Mrs. John W. Walsh and Miss Judith Walsh of Winnetka are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Holloway of Glencoe at Tamarack college at Tyringham. Miss Kate Buckingham gave a luncheon recently at her residence in Lenox, Bald Head, for Mrs. Tracy C. Drake and Miss Helen Drake, who were her house guests.

Miss Marion Daughaday, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos C. Daughaday of Winnetka, is entering Radcliffe college this fall, which will hold its formal opening ceremony today. Among other Chicago girls who are entering the college this year are Miss Jane Snyder, also of Winnetka; Miss Margaret Prince of Lake Forest, and Miss Florence Henry of 4532 Drexel boulevard.

Mrs. Waller Borden, Mrs. Howard Linn, Rene Weiller, the French consul; Abraham Poole, Andrew Reburi, and Ambrose C. Cramer are to be among the judges who will award the prizes for the best costumes worn at the Latin quarter fête at the Drake Friday night.

If you were thinking of wearing a smock and beret, don't expect to win a prize, for that costume will pass the inspection of the admissions committee at the door, headed by Thomas Tallmadge, but it certainly won't be awarded a prize in the grand march for being the best lady's costume or the best gentleman's costume. The best costumed couple and the best costumed group also will be given prizes, and the person wearing the most Gallic costume. The grand march is scheduled to start at 11:30 o'clock.

Proper Care Assures Late Garden Bloom

BY PAUL POTTER.

In well planned flower gardens bloom may be maintained late into the fall, and Chicagoland home owners would profit by studying the means by which the flowers are maintained. With the peculiar weather conditions which are prevailing at this time—and which also prevailed last fall—there can be outdoor flowers continuing into late October and November.

Roses, apple and cherry trees, and even some of the spring blooming shrubs have started blooming again. Last year the blooms continued into December. But this freakish action of nature cannot be relied upon by those who wish to maintain outdoor gardens even when leaves are falling from the first mild frosts.

For those who desire the prevailing fall colors of yellow, orange, and shades of red and brown there can be more to the garden at this time than the goldenrod, sunflowers, and daisies which open fields also contain. Zinnias and straw flowers, as well as some of the late hardy asters, can be included.

Those gardeners who have a bed of hardy outdoor chrysanthemums will obtain late fall color. The season is prolonged by keeping the stems tied up and by disbudding to secure larger flowers.

The fringes of a garden will keep their color when ageratum, foliage, or lobelia have been used. Barberry or "firebush" hedges, now turning from green to red and brown, add to the coloring effects supplied by the berry producing shrubs, sumac and woodbine.

Just as careful planning and fall attention to the flower beds prolong the season now, so can gardeners hurry the spring blooming by preparations in the next few days. A bed of wildflowers, nestled in bushes or low trees, will supply first blooms in March or April.

These will be followed by the spring flowers from bulbs that are set out now, of tulips, narcissus, hyacinth, snowdrops, or chionodoxas. In the rockery the earliest blooms will come from blue scillas, the golden hued winter aconite, and such early peeping species of tulips as the Kaufmanniana. Dog tooth violets, sometimes called trout lilies, the checkered lily, and spring snowflake also belong in the earth niches of rock gardens where early flowering is desired.

Chicago Birth Rate Decline Follows Trend in America

The sharp drop in the birth rate in Chicago during 1931 was not unique in that it followed the same trend in the registration area of the United States as shown in a statistical bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company received by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health.

The Chicago birth rate per 1,000 population in 1930 was 17.1. In 1931 it dropped to 15.3, or 10.5 per cent below the previous year. The decline in the 1931 rate in the United States birth registration area below the 1930 rate was 5.8 per cent, or less severe than in Chicago. In the registration area the birth rates were 18.9 in 1930 and 17.8 in 1931.

"Over a period of many years past, a downward trend has been observed in the birth rate in the United States and throughout the civilized countries of the world. This trend has been due to several causes, chief among which, there can be little doubt, is the increased dissemination of knowledge of birth control and its growing practice among the masses," said the article.

Statisticians in the health department pointed out that Chicago preeminence as an industrial city likely caused the city to suffer a decrease in the birth rate greater than the average for the registration area, basing their belief on a statement in the insurance company article which said the decline is much more pronounced in the industrial population.

School Children to Get Special Rates at Opera

School children of Chicago may see performances of the Chicago Stadium Grand Opera company on Saturday nights at reduced prices, it was announced yesterday. Dr. J. Lewis Browne, director of music for the board of education, suggested the reduction to Impresario Maurice Frank, and Mr. Frank discussed it with Sidney N. Stroiz, president of the Stadium, who agreed that the best seats would be sold for a dollar to school children and to school teachers also. Other seats will be available at 75 cents and 50 cents.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Robert P. Lamont, wife of the former secretary of commerce, is in her Washington home for a few days making it ready to turn over to the assistant secretary of the treasury and Mrs. James H. Douras Jr. of Chicago, who have leased the place. Mrs. Lamont will visit her two daughters, Mrs. Belknap and Mrs. Saltzman, in New York before returning to her home at Lake Forest.

Mrs. William A. Culbertson, wife of the American ambassador to Chile, has taken an apartment at Wardman Park hotel for the winter, the greater part of which she will spend here. She will have with her her daughter, Miss Junia Culbertson, who was presented to society in Chile and in Washington last season. Miss Jane Culbertson has returned to school.

The secretary of the interior and Mrs. Wilbur have returned to their apartment at the Mayflower for the season. Mrs. Wilbur has been for several months in their home in California.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick, formerly of Chicago, have returned to their home on Massachusetts avenue after spending the summer in Europe.

Children Get Clothing for School Wear

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The School Children's Aid society began the distribution of new clothing and shoes yesterday to destitute children. The number to be cared for may reach 120,000 before next spring.

Last year 61,000 children, pupils in the Chicago public schools, were able to continue their studies because the society clothed them. This year, according to Mrs. George Allen McCorkle, president, the demand may be more than doubled, so great is the increase in the acute demand for clothing among school children. The society hopes for sufficient aid to meet the demand.

A steady line of children seeking an education despite their ragged clothing poured into the headquarters of the society in the Dante school, 840 South Des Plaines street. Bundles containing sweaters, dresses, skirts, shirts, trousers, underwear, stockings, and shoes, all of them new and durable, had been dispatched during the day to the neediest schools for 700 such children. But these boys and girls could not wait.

Julia, 13 years old, a sixth grade pupil, produced for Mrs. McCorkle's inspection a pair of soggy shoes that had once boasted French heels. She wore no stockings.

"I've had only one pair of new shoes—those you gave me last year," said the girl as she revealed the bottoms of her bare feet through the broken soles. "A janitress gave these to me last summer and I cut down the heels to make them more comfortable and tied them on with string."

From the rows of waiting children certain manners of their dress stood out. There was Clarence, 8 years old, a Negro lad whose trousers were held up securely with a rope. He had no stockings; his tennis shoes had no soles; he wore no underclothing beneath his thin shirt, which was almost in shreds.

There was Alfred, 11 years old, whose shirt and trousers received from the School Children's aid last year were freshly laundered, but worn into holes; and there was Tom, 7 years old, who was all ready for the third grade despite his lack of underwear, his one shirt, and faded corduroy trousers his mother had lengthened from the top with a piece of the lining.

Some of the girls especially became visibly excited as the new black stockings and shiny new shoes were slipped on their feet. For the most part they took little outward delight in their new possessions. But relief was written upon their faces—no more would they have to face their schoolmates in rags.

"These children are recommended to the aid society by the principals of the schools and all of them have been investigated by truant officers," Mrs. McCorkle said.

"Last year we spent $135,741 on the work. We took in $136,692. The Chicago public school children and some of the teachers contributed $82,832 toward that amount in their annual Thanksgiving collection, the Joint Emergency Relief of Cook county gave us $39,986, and clubs and individuals $4,171. We are asking the relief committee to give us $50,000 this year. The increased poverty of school children will demand, however, much more than we spent last year. They must be clothed or else go without their schooling."

The society was founded by Mrs. Murry F. Tuley in 1857 and reorganized the following year as a standing committee of the Chicago Woman's club. There are several cooperating women's clubs.

1 Gown May Have New Lives by Deft Transformation

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Fashions are taking their cue from wartime tactics and are going over the top in true poilu fashion. They are out to win victory for frocks that need rejuvenating, sobering or brightening details. Capelets, collarettes, bibs, etc., are some of the chosen weapons. These are the particular French fashions that are doing their bit to offset a depression-depleted wardrobe. Old frocks for new is their martial slogan.

With these over the top fashions, the sleeveless frock may take sleeves to itself at a moment's notice, a dark frock take on a fresh, light note, and, likewise, the light colored frock a restraining one. To old frocks it gives a new lease of life. This applies to both day and evening clothes, and it does away with the prosaic collar and cuff set. If you have followed these columns faithfully you will have learned many of these transformation tricks. And in the sketch today you see some new methods that Paris is advocating.

In the upper part of the sketch is a collarette jacket, which is shoulder blade length in back. It slips on over a frock like a jacket, and it has short sleeves banded by double ruffles. This particular collarette is in black velvet, but it may be in any color. In the center of the sketch is an elongated bib, which slips on over the neck and ties at the center back of the waistline. It also has short sleeves with double ruffles. This bib merely covers the front of the frock and is cut out in a V at the sides. It is in white crêpe satin. At the bottom of the sketch is shown a capelet that is almost elbow length, and held closely around the throat where it is knotted at the center front. This is also in black velvet, and may be worn for either day or evening. Of course it could be in another fabric, or in fur.

New York, Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney left their Manhasset home for Philadelphia to visit friends before going to their camp at Upperville, Va., where they will observe their second wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. David Sherman Baker and their family are returning on Oct. 1 from Narragansett Pier, where they spent the summer, and will go to their home in Lake avenue, Greenwich, Conn.

Mrs. Clifford Day Mallory and her daughter, Miss Margaret Mallory, of Old Church road, Greenwich, Conn., are to arrive from Europe on the Roma. They have been abroad more than two months, motoring through Germany, Italy, Switzerland, Austria, and Czechoslovakia.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Munson, who have been at Port Chester for the summer, will come to the Ambassador to remain until Jan. 1.

VITAMIN B IN BRAN, RESEARCH REVEALS

Also Has "Bulk" to Further Assist Elimination, and Iron for Blood

One of the functions of Vitamin B is to help tone the intestinal tract, and promote elimination. Now, laboratory experiments show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains this valuable vitamin.

In addition, ALL-BRAN brings a plentiful supply of "bulk"—which provides the "ballast" needed to exercise the intestines.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Inside the body, it is different from the way you see it in the package. It absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, milder, more palatable.

Another healthful element brought by ALL-BRAN is iron. Tests show this cereal has twice as much usable iron as the same weight of beef liver.

Check common constipation—with its frequent headaches, loss of appetite and energy—by eating this delicious cereal. How much pleasanter than taking pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Frozen Dessert Enticing Close to Fall Meals

Food Value Enhanced by Sweet Cake Base.

BY MARY MEADE.

These gay, golden fall days see us of the pots and pans, jelly molds and the sandwich trays torn between conflicting emotions.

All summer we have jubilantly answered the cry of parched appetites by serving chilly secrets from the refrigerator freezing trays or faithful ice and salt churn. Clear glamorous ices, creamy mousses, sherbets, frappés, ice creams—islands of chilly delight in long, hot days.

But now, with the intoxicating tang of cool days and chilly nights turning thoughts away from those coldest foods, frozen dishes do not so much appeal. Yet the need for toothsome, "self-preparing" simple desserts still remains, and it is the wide awake cook who has discovered that now's the time to turn her refrigerator into the creator of another family of cool delights—refrigerator puddings—or, perhaps, to you—refrigerator cakes.

These enticing "toppers off" for sturdy fall meals have been fairly mushrooming up the last few years since "refrigerator cookery" is so much the modern and proper thing to do. What's more, they are as varied as they are numerous and pleasing.

PINEAPPLE REFRIGERATOR CAKE.

4 eggs, separated.
30 to 35 lady fingers.
1 teaspoon lemon extract.
2 cups whipping cream.

Cream the butter till soft, then add the sugar and continue creaming until fluffy. Beat the egg yolks until lemon colored, then beat them into the butter and sugar mixture. Fold in the flavoring, then the stiffly beaten whites. Split the lady fingers and place the flat side down over the bottom of a torte pan. Cover the lady fingers with one-third of the sugar mixture. Place over this one-half of the pineapple and cherries which have been mixed together. Over this spread one-half the whipped cream, then second layer of lady fingers, sugar mixture, fruit, and cream. Top with a third layer of fingers and the remainder of the sugar mixture. Let the cake stand in the refrigerator at least twelve hours.

BUTTERSCOTCH ICE BOX PUDDINGS.

A much simpler, but to many just as delicious, refrigerator dessert may be made from a simple butterscotch custard chilled in a mold which has been lined with slices of sponge cake, finely rolled vanilla wafers, or other cookies. For the custard, blend 1½ cups of medium brown sugar, and 2-3 cup butter until soft and creamy, then stir in one cup of scalded milk and three well beaten egg yolks. Cook in a double boiler until thick, pour into the lined pan, and chill over night. If a spring sided torte pan has been used, unbuckle and remove the sides, serving the pudding in wedges with a topping of whipped cream.

This last refrigerator deliciousness is a bit out of the usual run of ice box desserts. It is a delectable dessert roll made of dates, nuts, and marshmallows, combined with finely rolled cracker crumbs. And it's just as tantalizing as it sounds! Use one cup each of the first three ingredients, all chopped fine. Blend well, and then work in eighteen finely rolled graham crackers. Add one tablespoon of lemon juice, and then, if necessary, enough top milk to make the mixture packable. Form into a roll three inches thick, wrap in waxed paper and place in the refrigerator. This little dessert will keep a week or more if covered. When needed, cut in comes, slices are neatly whacked off, and back it goes to await the next emergency call. Let the roll stand over night before cutting.

Born Flirt Can Make Serious Chap Miserable

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Some girls are so constituted that nothing in trousers escapes their flirtatious eye and smile. And heaven help the poor male miscreant who falls in love with one of her! If he's jealous by nature, as is "Eric," the most recently reported victim of one of these flirtatious ones' lures, he's in for a lot of misery!

We women have seen one of these sisters of ours operate! They'll beam on the ice man, the truck man, the collector, or anything in male guise that crosses their path. They don't mean any more by this beaming than eating a chocolate.

Sometimes we women, looking on at the machinations of one of these born vamps, are amused; sometimes chagrined, and sometimes a bit disgusted.

But the poor devil who falls in love with one of her can't be amused. Each trifling glance at another male is a bad pain in the heart to him. He can't be convinced that it's a gesture without meaning to the girl.

If he could get the idea into his aching head that it doesn't mean a blessed thing in so far as the girl's real feeling is concerned he could save a lot of heart pangs. But it all goes against the grain of the possessive trait of the man in love. It's questionable if he ever can be trained to look on tolerantly at the flirtatious female's antics.

So, he either has to resign himself to his bad break in falling for one of these born peace disturbers, or try out the old cure of letting her have a spell of her own medicine. Cures have been reported effected in this way. Every time she flirts he takes his cue to look around for a pretty girl [or plain] to beam upon. His excuses for so doing may be presented as hers have been—just perfectly harmless little moments in life. Either that—or pulling some good cave man stuff on the lady. Telling her where to get off at and letting her understand how little of that sort of thing you'll stand for.

HOW OLD?

He doesn't look a day over fifty.

When your system is stagnant and you feel sluggish, headachy, half-alive—don't waste money on "tonics" or "regulators" or similar patent medicines. Stimulate the liver and bowels. Use a famous physician's prescription every drug store keeps. Just ask them for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin.

This appetizing syrup is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. One dose will clear up almost any case of headache, biliousness, or constipation. But if you want to keep in shape, feel fit the year 'round, take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin every few days. You'll eat better, sleep better and feel better in every way. You will never need to take another laxative.

Give the children a little of this delicious syrup two or three times a week. This gentle, natural stimulant makes them eat and keeps the bowels from clogging. And saves them from so many sick spells and colds.

Have a sound stomach, active liver and strong bowel muscles that expel every bit of waste and poison every day! Just keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin on hand; take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. See if you don't feel new vigor in every way. Remember, it is the tested prescription of a physician—and it isn't expensive.

The Sun has no Circulation in CACTUS FLAT

The Sun has no circulation in Cactus Flat, N. Mex. Nor has it any circulation in Broken Bow, Neb. . . . Devil's Lake, N. D. . . . Milo, Me. . . . Bluefield, W. Va. . . . Paso Robles, Cal. . . . or points west.

The Sun is a New York newspaper. It is made for the people of New York City and the surrounding suburbs. Although it is interested in the welfare of all good people everywhere, its job is to give the people of Metropolitan New York a good newspaper to read and advertisers a good medium with which to sell their merchandise in this rich territory.

Nearly all of The Sun's circulation (96 per cent.) is right here in New York city and the suburbs . . . the small, compact area within a 50-mile radius that has 11,800,000 people, 19.9 per cent. of all income tax returns in the country, 25 per cent. of the returns on incomes of over $5,000, 27 per cent. of the nation's bank deposits, 12 per cent. of the retail sales and 24 per cent. of the wholesale sales of the country.

If you want to sell something to the inhabitants of Cactus Flat, N. Mex., The Sun can't help you. It's too far away. But if you want business in the New York Market, The Sun can do a lot for you. It has a larger home circulation among the better-class families here than any other evening newspaper . . . and manufacturers and merchants alike think so much of The Sun as a business getter that for more than six years they have placed more advertising in it than in any other evening newspaper.

CUBS SPEED EAST; OPEN WITH YANKEES TOMORROW

FANS GIVE TEAM BIG SENDOFF AT UNION STATION

Players Worried--About Eats.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 26.—[Aboard Cubs Special.]—All along the line this afternoon the Cubs, bound for better or worse in the impending world series with the Yankees, were the conquering heroes on wheels.

A thousand members of the great American rooting society wished them the best possible luck as they boarded their Pennsylvania flyer from the Chicago Union station at noon.

Factory workers hung out of windows, waving energetically as the train proceeded. Freight train crews mounted to the tops of box cars to do their share of God-speeding the journey. Itinerants on the soft portions of the right of way rose up from their couches to make motions indicating they hoped the Yanks wouldn't go in too heavily for the home run stuff.

Lunch Is Big Concern.

While all this was going on outside the car windows everything was serene inside. The players' greatest concern at the time of departing was lunch. The menace of Ruth, Gehrig, Lazzeri, Dickey, Gomez, Ruffing, and others had no depressing effect on the appetites. Neither did the player authors display any anxiety about the stuff somebody else would write for them under their name at about $500 for the privilege. The player authors didn't even bring along portable typewriters to give their act a convincing touch. The players' wives, of course, carried pad and pencil with which they hoped to approximate the winners' and the losers' ends of the receipts.

As for the Cub athletes fretting about what might happen, there was no indication. The fans who accompanied because they deem it a privilege to speak to folks who can get their names in the papers seemed to have less confidence than the athletes themselves. Those who must do the work if a world title is to be brought to Chicago for the first time since the White Sox beat the Giants in 1917 went about their business in the fashion that prevails during the regular season when matters are less tense. They just played cards, joked, or slept with their heads hanging over a seat arm.

Grimm, Koenig to Be O. K.

Andy Lotshaw, the eminent trainer who parades under the name of Doctor, was the most enthusiastic member of the travelers. Andy claimed all of his men, as he terms them, were in perfect physical condition. He thinks the charley horse now attached to Manager Grimm's leg will have spent itself inside another 24 hours. He predicts that Mark Koenig's afflicted left wrist will not keep him out of the series and that Woody English will have no trouble with bruised fingers. If the good doctor is wrong in these particulars it will be just too bad. Andy also admits that even the losers' end is worth carrying home.

The feeling is gradually spreading that if the Cubs are to succeed in this big event it will be up to Charley Root and Guy Bush. There is no question about the courage of either. Bush, who must pitch the opener unless Manager Grimm gets a new idea, has the stuff, but isn't as fine on control as must be necessary against a mauling outfit such as the Yanks. Root, in about two-thirds of his starts, has had great control. He doesn't have the stuff of Bush, but on a good day will throw the ball about where he wants it. It is that sort of pitching that can stop the Yanks as well as ball clubs with less distance power.

Warneke the Mystery Man.

The above leaves Lon Warneke, the leading winner of the Cubs' season, out of the picture. But this is purely speculation. Freshmen star in world series conflict only about once in a decade. The original Joe Bush was started by Connie Mack against the Giants way back in 1913 and he responded with a brilliant victory. On this basis another newcomer is about due to shatter the managerial idea that the event is too big a spectacle for fellows who are shy on experience. The hitch in the Warneke case occurs in the fact that he has not been going well of late and also a suspicion that his success in his own league has created a feeling of overconfidence.

The Cubs will reach New York about 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and a couple of hours will be consumed by getting settled in rooms and eating the customary midday meal, of which the athletes partake freely. After the eating ceremony there will be rehearsal at the Yankee stadium. The boys want to hit a few if possible into the right field bleacher. They also want to acquaint themselves with the shadows thrown by the triple decked grand stand. After the practice they can go back to their hotel and take things easy, if possible.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 26.—The Yankees went through a practice workout this morning at the stadium and will hold another in the forenoon tomorrow before getting down to business Wednesday in the first game of the world's series with the Cubs.

The Yankees appeared fit upon their return from the semi-Arctic regions of Boston and even Babe Ruth had gained enough strength to gallop around the bases in something under five minutes flat.

The fans are curious about Ruth's recent stomachache and are holding off on the betting until they see the big fellow in action. Ruth appears to have entirely recovered from his illness, but still lacks a bit of being up to his old standard.

Yankees 3 to 5 Choice.

Sportsmen from all sections of the country are trickling into town for the series and the bookmakers are offering the following odds with no great number of takers:

Yankees to win the series, 3 to 5; Cubs, 6 to 5; Yankees to win two games in row, 5 to 4; to win three games in row, 5 to 2; to win four games in row, 4 to 1; Cubs to win two games in row, 3 to 1; three games in row, 7 to 1, and four games in row, 15 to 1.

New York can take its world series or leave it and the town never gets steamed up as far south as Times square over a ball game, but out in the vicinity of the stadium the 7th Regiment band is getting tuned up for the celebration and other preparations, from laying in an extra supply of hot dogs to providing cages for ghost writers, are well in hand.

Ruffing to Pitch.

Charley Ruffing, the big coal mine boy who throws righthanded, will face Guy Bush of the Cubs if nothing happens between now and Wednesday. Joe McCarthy, Yankee manager, has not put his official sanction on the selection, but then Mr. McCarthy had a lot on his mind today what with the Red Sox batting his boy Johnny Allen out of the box yesterday. It was to have been the afternoon of Allen's 18th victory.

It is McCarthy's opinion that Bush is the toughest Chicago pitcher the Yankees will have to face. The Yanks like fast ones, but they like them straight across the plate and Bush is a curve ball artist.

May Use Pennock.

The Yankee manager had picked Allen to start the third world series game—the opener in Chicago—but his failure against the .250 hitting Red Sox who batted him all over the park has given McCarthy a wee bit of a headache.

Right now the plan is to open with Ruffing, follow with Gomez and let coming events decide on the pitcher for the third game. It is possible that old man Pennock may have to step in.

Tony Lazzeri came back from the west with a lame shoulder. But it is fit once more and Lazzeri is eager to get going. And Lou Gehrig is another Yankee member who is counting the hours until Wednesday afternoon. Gehrig has gone the entire season without missing a game. The Yanks are rather proud of their statistical record, for they have knocked the daylight out of the Major league record for consecutive games without being shut out by scoring in every one of the 154 games they played. This came on top of 55 games at the end of 1931. That's a grand total of 211 in a row.

Ticket Sale Below 1928.

Other statistical souvenirs included a winning streak of ten in a row, a losing period of only three consecutive defeats; four shutout victories in succession, and Gomez's winning streak of 11 before he lost a game.

The Cubs will follow the Yankees tomorrow with a two hour workout in the stadium, and then will retire to the Commodore hotel. The Yankees have not broken any records for an advance seat sale, as advertisements in the papers told of plenty of good seats still for sale.

The demand for seats has been steady, according to Ed Barrow, the Yankee business manager, but not up to the 1928 sales. Barrow, however, expressed confidence that the stadium would be packed to its 60,000 capacity at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday. The series record to be beaten is 63,600.

Bill Klem Opens 16th Series as Umpire Tomorrow

New York, Sept. 26.—[Special.]—When William J. Klem steps into Yankee stadium to officiate in the world series Wednesday it will be his 16th since 1908 and a new record for umpires in the major leagues. Klem was chosen to officiate in the series by President John Heydler of the National league today.

Heydler also announced the selection of George L. Magerkurth to work with the American league umpires in the series. William Dinneen and Roy Van Graffan were chosen by the American league yesterday.

Vines to Marry Former College Mate Saturday

Pasadena, Cal., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Ellsworth Vines Jr. of Pasadena, holder of the United States and Wimbledon singles tennis championships, applied for a license to marry Miss Verle Low today. The ceremony will take place in Pasadena Saturday.

Vines, in applying for the license, gave his age as 20, and said his mother, Mrs. Caroline Vines, would sign the application. Miss Low gave her age as 21. She attended college with Vines. A trip to Australia is planned by the couple.

SCHMELING PURSE IS TIED UP BY CARNERA'S SUIT

New York, Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Max Schmeling's purse for his fight with Mickey Walker was attached tonight, pending the outcome of a $100,000 suit filed against him by Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight.

The attachment was ruled today by the Supreme court late this afternoon. The Italian charges Schmeling failed to fight him in September, 1931, after he had signed for the bout. Schmeling is scheduled to appear in court Wednesday.

Bill Killefer Injured in Crash; En Route Home

Butler, Pa., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Manager Bill Killefer of the St. Louis American league baseball club, was injured today when the auto he was driving crashed into a culvert near here. Killefer was enroute to his home in Chester from Detroit, where the Browns ended the season yesterday.

Baer Stops Griffith in 7th; 9,500 See Tuffy's Last Stand

Tuffy Griffith, grown old in the six years he has shuffled across the resined canvas of many rings, his eyes dimmed from constant squinting under brilliant lights, came to the end of his fighting career last night in the seventh round of his bout with Max Baer at the Stadium. Referee Phil Collins stopped the fight and Baer was awarded a technical knockout.

Tuffy, the young Tuffy who came to Chicago from Sioux City, Ia., in 1927 to see Tunney whip Dempsey, and who stayed to win the greatest following accorded any Chicago fighter, always has been handicapped by his size. He weighed 188 pounds last night, only 13 pounds over the light heavyweight limit.

Baer Pounds Him Six Rounds.

This disadvantage Tuffy had overcome every time he whipped a Levinsky, a Gagnon, a Paulino or a Risko. But last night Baer, the smart Jewish boy from California, enlisted another ally, youth. Max, 16 pounds heavier than Tuffy, more powerful, with the confidence of his youth, hammered Griffith for six rounds. In the seventh Collins called a halt, and Tuffy, tears streaming down his face, was led to his corner.

A crowd of 9,500 saw Tuffy lose. Many came, of course, to follow the progress of Baer. But the top balcony, jammed to its last seat with hundreds of loyal west sides Griffith fans, gave Tuffy his usual quota of enthusiastic cheers. They roared their approval when Tuffy, last to enter the ring, jauntily leaped over the ropes. They stood and cheered again when less than 30 minutes later Tuffy stumbled down the steps in defeat.

Griffith lost the first round. From the opening exchange of blows, he lost ground to Baer. Griffith's spirit carried him through the second and third rounds on even terms. But Griffith held Baer even only by calling on strength he sorely needed to husband for the long minutes ahead.

Fourth Ends Tuffy's Hopes.

The fight almost ended in the fourth. As far as Griffith's waning hope of victory was concerned, it was the end. Baer's body punches had gradually sapped Tuffy's strength. In the closing seconds of the round Max shot his right to the head until Griffith, barely conscious, bounced back into the ropes, his sagging knees refusing to support his weight. At the bell Tuffy wobbled, stiff legged, towards his corner, weaving the path of a drunken man.

In the sixth Griffith again went to the floor. A short right to the heart dropped Tuffy on the seat of his trunks. But only for a second did Griffith stay down and before Max got the range, the bell concluded the round.

The end came after a minute of fighting in the seventh. Almost unable to defend himself, Tuffy fought on, a victim for the first straight punch. Then Referee Collins stepped between the men and Baer was declared the winner.

Receipts Are $21,829.20.

Griffith, who once received $25,000 for giving King Levinsky one of his first boxing lessons, didn't fare so badly last night financially. The gross receipts were $21,829.20. Griffith will receive 22½ per cent of this after taxes are deducted and his purse should be approximately $3,900. Baer will receive 30 per cent, or a few hundred over $5,000.

Dazzo Beats Pallazola.

Dempsey Shakes Kearns' Hand; Is Hatchet Buried?

New York, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey created the major sensation at the Walker-Schmeling bout tonight. He shook hands with Jack Kearns.

The bitter feud between Dempsey and the man who managed him into a world's heavyweight championship had become proverbial in fistic circles and had left the men so far apart that mutual friends had abandoned all hopes of ever getting them together again.

But, tonight, just before the main bout went on, Dempsey was called into the ring and dashed over to grasp Kearns' hand and mutter a greeting.

Kearns, who now manages Walker, said he was as much surprised as any of the boxing writers and could offer no explanation.

New York, Sept. 26.—A humane, almost motherly, quality, which Jack Kearns had never before manifested in the ring, this evening ended the fight between Max Schmeling and Mickey Walker at the end of the eighth round. A crowd of 50,000 saw the bout, which was held in the Garden's Long Island bowl. The result was a technical knockout for Schmeling, as Walker sagged in his corner, with his left eye swollen shut and a queer cut in the corner of his mouth, imparting a grin of hilarity out of keeping with his condition.

Kearns hopped into the ring as soon as the bell ended the eighth and called over the referee, Jack Denning, to receive his surrender on behalf of Walker.

Knocked Down in First.

Walker had been knocked down once in the first round with a straight right to the jaw for a count of seven, the bell interrupting the toll. He took another bad smashing on the left ear and spun around the ring on rocker heels in the second, but did not fall. Walker then came on to give Schmeling much annoyance and a few moments of distress in the ensuing rounds up to the sixth, which was slow and restful for both parties. He was the aggressor again in the seventh, winning with a good plurality, but in eighth he came completely apart and went down for two nine-second periods under a beating that dressed up the fight with that gorgeous gruesomeness which marks the really artistic fight.

Walker had been evading Schmeling's rights to the head from the second round on and seemed likely to win by outmauling the methodical and single-handed German if he could just remember to duck. But early in the eighth he forgot and Schmeling hacked him on the ear with a right chop, apparently no harder than some others which he had resisted quite well. The punch sent Mickey staggering to his left along the ropes toward his own corner, lifting his feet high but setting them down one upon the other, for they wouldn't track and his legs were tangling.

Max Follows It Up.

He was pawing at his left eye with a squashy red glove and distributing a scarlet smear over his swollen features. Schmeling jumped after him, hammering his head again and again with the right. Walker turned and made a petulant swipe at him with his left but lost his balance and stumbled the width of the ring, where Schmeling got him against the ropes and pounded him down.

Mickey squatted there, grinding his glove into the distorted eye and fumbling on the resin dusted floor for his rubber mouthpiece which had slipped from his beaten lips. He found it and mouthed it half-way into position before it was time to rise. He lurched up, still working the rubber protector with his lips in an effort to affix it over his teeth as Schmeling charged at him, firing the right at the head.

Mickey reeled into a corner. His face was a hospital case now, but he wouldn't fall and with a surge of strength, pride, and anger made a pass at Schmeling with his left glove. It spanked the German's face with a defiant but harmless smack and Max resumed the execution with the right.

Back to the ropes where he had just picked himself up Walker stumbled, with Schmeling popping him excitedly. The thumping beat him down for nine more seconds and again he sat confusedly, rubbing his eye, with a crying expression on his face except for the fixed mirthful lift of the scar where his mouth had been ripped.

Kearns Breaks Down.

This was not at all like Kearns, whose appetite for punishment has always been equal to his man's resistance. But when it was over he peered through the ropes and said, "Well, Mike couldn't see a damn thing and his face was cut through, so he's too good a fellow to get his head knocked off and maybe get him killed like that. He's too good a kid. He was going fine up to the eighth, but then the Dutchman popped that eye out on him and he couldn't see, so I called the game."

Schmeling had won the first two rounds strictly with rights to the head, the only punch he offered all evening with the exception of a few mauling thumps in the clinches, which were merely gestures.

The third, fourth, and fifth were

Van Wie, Orcutt Tie for Medal.

West Peabody, Mass., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Miss Helen Hicks, the champion, failed today to qualify for defense of her national women's golf championship in the 18 hole qualifying round of the 36th annual national tournament over the Salem Country club course here. She is one of the few champions in history to surrender her crown without entering match play.

Starting with a hook that carried her ball out of bounds on her first tee shot, the Long Island girl, who gained fame by winning both the Canadian and U. S. championships before she had reached the age of 20, never succeeded in getting her game under control. She missed out by one shot with a score of 89.

That failure, together with two record tying rounds by Miss Maureen Orcutt of Englewood, N. J., and Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, members of this year's international team, were the day's outstanding events.

No Play-Off Necessary.

There were ninety-four starters and at the conclusion of the day's play there were thirty-two with scores of 88 or better, thus eliminating the necessity for a play-off.

Miss Enid Wilson, British champion, finished third, two strokes behind Miss Orcutt and Miss Van Wie, whose par-equaling 77's tied the qualifying record made by Mrs. Alexa Sterling Frazer at St. Louis in 1925 and equaled by Miss Ada Mackenzie at Cherry Valley, L. I., two years later.

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, winner of the crown on five occasions, got up from a sick bed to qualify for the fourteenth time with a score of 80, which put her in fourth position. Had it not been for three holes on which she got into difficulty as a result of faulty tee shots, she would have done even better than that.

While Miss Hicks was the only star dropped out by the low scoring, the records show that only once in recent years has 88 been the high score to win a place in the championship. She score today would have kept Miss Hicks out of the 1929 championship tournament at Oakland Hills, but would have qualified her for match play on almost every other occasion.

Tree Lends Helen Aid.

After her unfortunate drive on the first tee she hit another ball that would have earned the same fate had it not been for a friendly tree, whose branches kept her ball within bounds. Her lie was none too good and she had to waste a stroke playing back on the fairway. Her next shot fell short of the green. She finally holed out in 7. It was a discouraging start and she could never get it out of her mind. Her driving, generally her forte, was completely off. She also was failing to hit the greens on her approach shots.

With all her trouble, Miss Hicks managed to get out in 43, and her chances of qualifying were fair until she ran into a 7 on the 15th after taking a 6 on the 352 yard 13th.

Miss Wilson, the British champion, started with an easy 4. A 4 at the next hole, after playing a spoon from a downhill lie, was followed by a 3 on the short third and by a 5 on the fourth. Two fine wooden shots left her only a short way from the green on the 463 yard fifth hole. Her 4 on the sixth was excusable. Then she began to make errors, three-putting the seventh and the ninth.

Walker Is Knocked Out by Schmeling

Walker's by a large plurality, for he was tearing in like a mad kid in an alley fight, whaling the German with lefts to the body which made him pause to think, and batting him on the ears with swings of both hands.

Walker Takes Seventh.

There was a minute in the fifth when Walker stood Schmeling in a corner and worked on him as though he were a body bag in a gym and, moreover, when Schmeling came off the ropes he came off running, not fighting. The sixth was an intermission for both men, and Schmeling won it more or less by default, but Walker outnumbered him again in the seventh.

There were a great many honorary customers among the ringside trade, for the sales had been slow in the afternoon and the firm had been unusually generous to the nonpaying trade. One-eyed Connelly, last seen at the International Golden Gloves bout in Chicago, was among the customers admitted for the sake of their interesting society alone.

George Getz, the Chicago coal magnate and amateur gorilla culturist, attended in his official capacity of visiting prize fight commissioner. The last time he came to a fight here he presented at the gate his solid gold, engraved perpetual ringside pass given him by Tex Rickard in Chicago at the time of the second Tunney-Dempsey fight and the gatekeepers told him it was no good.

Pat [Dick O'Hara] Joyce Attends.

Pat Joyce, the midwestern railroad magnate, who was silent partner to Mr. Getz in the production of the Tunney-Dempsey affair, also attended. Mr. Joyce is better remembered in the sport business, however, for his dashing charger, Dick O'Hara, which took two hours to run the Kentucky Derby a few years ago. Mr. Joyce started his steed as a harsh and cruel jest on a poor swindler who organized a $5 sweepstake on that Derby and sold 25,000 tickets, all on Dick O'Hara, on the assumption that nobody would be mad enough to pay the fee for starting him.

Dick O'Hara started and the lottery was thrown into financial difficulties when all 25,000 holders of Dick O'Hara tickets demanded the $50 apiece which had been promised to those who drew starters. This act of Mr. Joyce will long be remembered as the most unkindest trick ever done on the American track and a foul example of man's inhumanity to man.

Walker Blames Impaired Vision for His Defeat

New York, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Mickey Walker's head hung low tonight. It just seemed to him, as he sat on his rubbing table, while his trainer, Teddy Hayes, plastered up his wounds, that the fates, and nothing less, were against him.

"Max Schmeling never did hurt me until I couldn't see, and the punch that closed my eye was the strangest thing that ever happened to me," he said.

"Coming out of a clinch in the eighth round, he hit me a light right hand uppercut. It glanced off my right eyebrow. I thought he'd cut it.

"Then the next thing I knew the eye was swollen shut. I could see three Schmelings in front of me. I was helpless."

Walker doesn't think much of Schmeling's punching power, insists that he was the stronger of the two until the right uppercut ruined his vision.

"He's a good puncher," he said, "but not a knocker-out. He hit me in the first round when I was cold and careless. But he didn't hurt me.

"I could hear him grunt time and again when I hit him in the body with left hooks. In the seventh round he was gasping."

Jack Kearns, his manager, was equally upset.

"I'll turn him loose among the middleweights again," he said. "And we'll fight our way back. He'll lick Schmeling yet, but I couldn't stand to see him take any more punishment tonight when he couldn't see."

There wasn't a mark on Schmeling's face. He smiled at the thought of the game little fighter who stood and tried to slug it out with him.

LUKATS SHIFTED TO FIRST TEAM AT NOTRE DAME

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Two important changes in the Notre Dame varsity lineup were made today as a result of Saturday's scrimmage against the freshmen.

Nick Lukats, a letter winner in 1930 who did not play last year because of injuries, was advanced to the first team at left half back, replacing Mike Koken. Koken had held the post through spring practice and up until today. Lukats ran wild against the frosh Saturday.

Laurie Vejar and Charley Jaskwich will be first string quarter back alternates, while Emmett Murphy probably will call signals for the shock troops.

TWO HURT AT PURDUE.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Dutch Fehring, veteran Purdue tackle, and Doxie Moore, promising right half back, were both out of uniform today as the result of injuries in the freshman game Saturday. Fehring suffered a recurrence of an old knee injury, while Moore has a wrenched back. With Fehring out, Paul Emmons, reserve center, was shifted back to tackle.

BADGERS HAMMER FROSH.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's football team today showed signs of improvement when it held the freshmen squad without gain during a half hour scrimmage. The varsity then took the ball and marched through the freshmen line for an average of seven yards on each play.

RAIN AT MICHIGAN.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Rain kept the Michigan team indoors most of the afternoon while coaches worked on a defense against Michigan State plays. Rod Cox, end, who was out of Saturday's scrimmage, was back in uniform but limped badly.

ILLINI SCRIMMAGE.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Concentrating on the faults brought out in the freshman-varsity game Saturday, the Illinois football squad went through a long drill on fundamentals, plus a scrimmage today.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

They are calling the Cubs the surprise team of 1932 baseball. That, no doubt, is due to the fact that only three out of 80 writers picked them to win the National league championship.

Here's hoping the Cubs keep on surprising 'em in the world series. I noticed the other day that a poll of experts for one of the press services was something like 27 to three in favor of the Yankees. That is the best omen of success Chicago has had.

Calling the Cubs a surprise team is somewhat of an exaggeration. Perhaps they didn't stand out as did one or two other clubs at the start of the season, but they figured to be contenders. It was generally agreed it would be an open race. It turned out to be a rodeo. The Cardinals, Giants, Pirates, and Cubs were the favorites. With no team ranking far above the others, it was obvious that anything might happen.

There is a possibility that the world series may answer the problem the boys have been sawing at for a great many years: Is the hitting superior in the American league or is the pitching superior in the National?

The Cubs admittedly have the best pitching staff in the National league. The Yanks have a lineup bulging with fence busters. Maybe it doesn't mean a thing, but I thought you would like to know.

Jimmy Foxx, the Athletics' slugging first baseman, wound up the season with 58 home runs, two short of Babe Ruth's record, but 17 more than the Babe collected this fall. So it won't be long until some one will be writing that Foxx has left Ruth in the shade.

Maybe so. But we must not forget that it was Ruth who started the home run business. Until he came along nobody had hit more than 27 in a season. Babe slammed 29 with Boston in 1919. Men like Frank Baker were known as home run kings when they poled 10 or 12.

Ruth has been a home run hitter for 14 years. He was the pioneer in this department of play. He made the game over. They had to change the ball to slow it down. That is why he draws baseball's biggest salary at 38.

Chicago's 41 to 0 victory over Monmouth may be nothing to shout about from the housetops, but I don't imagine Noble Kizer, Bob Zuppke, or the coaches of other Big Ten teams on Chicago's schedule are wildly enthusiastic about the score. It has been a long time since the Maroons whipped any team so thoroughly.

It was only a few days ago reports found their way into print that Coach Stagg was to be sidetracked at the end of this season—his 41st on the Midway—for a younger man. They may be urging him to stay before the 1933 campaign is finished.

It is my opinion that Stagg will retire when he is convinced he no longer is physically able to carry on. And he admits he never has felt better in his life.

Life as an athletic director holds no appeal for him. He wants to coach, for, as he says, if he is of any value at all it is in the contact he has with young men on the football field. That contact will be lost when he gives up the gridiron.

TONSILLITIS ADDS HANLEY TO N. U. CASUALTY LIST

Coach Dick Hanley's name was added to the Northwestern casualty list yesterday. He is nursing a severe case of tonsillitis and his physician advised him to remain indoors for another day. Coach Hanley watched Saturday's varsity-freshman game from the press box.

Meanwhile the Wildcats went through a light workout under the direction of Pat Hanley, line coach. Most of the regulars were in need of rest. Saturday's workout against the frosh left many with minor bumps and bruises which will require a few days to heal.

The opening game with Missouri Saturday at Dyche stadium carries an appeal of double barreled variety for both teams. The Wildcats will be out to avenge the 14 to 13 defeat administered by Missouri in 1927. In addition the Tigers are coached by Frank Carideo, who as quarter back at Notre Dame, twice led the Irish to victory over Northwestern.

On the Missouri coaching staff also are Elmer Sleight and Paul Calvert, former Purdue stars, who, along with Carideo, comprise the youngest coaching staff in the country. Sleight is 25 and Carideo and Calvert each are 24. Sleight and Carideo have been out of school two years, while Calvert, who played end at Purdue, was graduated last spring.

WORKS ON MAROON LINE.

Coach A. A. Stagg, though satisfied with the demonstration made by the Maroons last Saturday, yesterday went to work on the least satisfactory phase of Chicago's play, the offensive line functioning. In the morning the Maroon ends had a lengthy lecture, and in the afternoon two lines had at each other for several hours, with the coaches analyzing every fault.

Saturday's victory gave the Chicago squad the needed morale to build them up for the Yale game at New Haven on Oct. 8. The Chicago team came through its first game without noticeable injury. Al Summers will be out of practice for a few days with a cold.

Scrimmage will be resumed today. Several promising new men joined the ranks of the freshmen yesterday, including Jay Berwanger, full back from Dubuque, and Jim Gold, tackle from Tilden. George Mahoney returned to the varsity backfield group after an absence of a few days due to an injury.

C. G. D. A. FINISHES BUSIEST SEASON IN ITS HISTORY

Handicap Tournaments Set Record for Turnouts.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The last page has been torn from the Chicago District Golf association's competitive calendar for 1932, thus completing one of the organization's most successful seasons. In addition to conducting its own regular tournaments, the C. D. G. A. supervised the local qualifying rounds for the national open and amateur and also took over the direction of a number of invitational meets, notably the Pater-Fillius, long a fixture at Midlothian, where it originated.

The feature of the association's schedule, as usual, was the district amateur championship, decided over the difficult No. 3 course at Medinah last month. Dick Martin of Sunset Valley, former conference champion from Illinois, won the title by defeating Hank Bowbeer of Riverside in the final match. One of the high lights of the meet was the establishment of a new course record of 70 by Art Sweet of Ridgemoor in the first round of play.

Handicap Play Is Popular.

The most pleasing development of the year to officials of the C. D. G. A. was the increased turnout for the handicap events sponsored by the association at intervals throughout the summer. This probably was due largely to the caliber of the courses chosen for play this year. The winners were Jimmy Garard of Flossmoor at Calumet, George Dawson of Glen Oak at Glen View, Dick Martin at Exmoor, Jack Westland of Sunset Ridge at Beverly, Chick Evans of Edgewater at Bob o' Link, Doug Casey of Riverside at Olympia Fields' No. 4 course, and George Dawson again in the final event at Glen Oak.

The second series of Illinois state championships conducted by the C. D. G. A. took place at Champaign, with Warren Dawson of Glen Oak retaining the title he won last year by rallying on the final eighteen holes for a victory over Dick Martin. Jim Foulis of Ruth Lake won the pro crown by finishing a stroke ahead of Harry Hampton of Beverly, while Eddie Loos of Lake Shore and Harry Radix of Ridgemoor, vice president of the association, carried away the pro-amateur honors.

Newcomers Make Showing.

A number of promising youngsters hitherto unheard of arose during the C. D. G. A. junior play. In the medal event opening the season at Ravisloe, Bob Bohnen of Midlothian and Edward Schildberg of North Shore were the winners. The latter went on to win the class A title in the annual tournament at Mission Hills by defeating William Walrath of Kildeer, Dartmouth sophomore, in the final. Alfred Favelli of Lake Shore took the class B crown with a victory over Tom Saielli of Exmoor.

The caddies and caddymasters also settled the problem of who will be champions for the next year. John Lindstrom of Oak Park led the west side club toters' quartet to its second consecutive team championship over the home course and also won the individual title. The caddymasters' tournament, held separately this year at Glen Oak, went to W. S. Beardslee of Lake Shore, who nosed out Spec Hammond of the home club by one stroke.

Huggins Makes Pipgras When Even Pipgras Was Dubious

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 26.—No victory that George Pipgras may achieve in the world series between the Yankees and the Cubs, no hollering and whooping and going-on of the customers in praise of his curious name, can possibly thrill him as much as certain doings which took place in Pittsburgh on an October afternoon in 1927.

Then, as a mature and overdue freshman pitcher, he beat the Pirates in a world series game to justify at least the stubborn faith which Miller Huggins had shown in him over the course of several seasons. That elation happens once and never happens again.

Pipgras had been up and down for five seasons and there were many times during that period when only two people on earth believed he would ever make a major league pitcher. One of those who was not very confident. That one was Pipgras. The other one, Miller Huggins, felt certain of it and kept on investing wages and upkeep in the development of an earnest, diligent young fellow with a long, strong arm who minded his own business and kept on trying.

Pipgras came off an Iowa farm in 1921 to accept a part time job throwing baseballs past his fellow hicks and a scattering of baseball derelicts in a sort of league in South Dakota.

Red Sox Took One Look and Backed Down.

Somehow, the Red Sox heard tell of him at the end of that season and spent a trifle to buy him and bring him up for spring inspection. But nobody on the Boston club saw the obscure promise in Pipgras that Huggins was to detect on first glimpse, so the Red Sox gladly parked him in Charleston, S. C., for the season of 1922. Even more gladly they peddled him off to Huggins in an autumn trade. They had paid something for a look and now that they had looked at Pipgras, they were glad to get their money back. The look had not been worth the price, but Huggins was a manager who knew what to look for in a raw ball player and how.

Huggins toted him to Florida in 1923 and again in 1924 and paid his wages and keep and the freight around the league both seasons, but used him only for occasional innings. Ruth was the big man of the ball club, noisy and bumptious in the full enjoyment of his early powers and fame and the team was otherwise composed of a roystering, swaggering crowd whose social escapades and feats on the ball yard totally obscured the ambition and raw talent of a recruit pitcher.

In 1925 Huggins parked him out in the Southern league and in 1926 he found a place for him in St. Paul, which is the attic and catch-all of the Yankee club. But he did not let go his hold on Pipgras and in the spring of 1927 up bobbed the big, ambling Dane from Iowa once more in the Yankee camp at St. Petersburg for still another trial. He had been out with the Yankees, off and on ever since the spring of '23 and Huggins was asked to say why.

Well, Huggins thought, Pipgras might make a pitcher yet and this might be his year. He had the strength, the raw talent and the disposition. It was his year, he made the varsity at last and when the world series came off, Miller put him in against Vic Aldridge of the Pirates.

Huggins Deserves All the Credit.

Pipgras was no juvenile now. He was 28, after his wanderings, but this was his first season as a pitcher with a regular ticket and there never was a world series game pitched with greater caution, determination, and physical sincerity. He threw his whole character at them with every pitch and beat the Pirates, 6 to 2, allowing only seven hits. Only the day before Wilcy Moore, another farmer, had beaten the Pirates in a relief job, so the wires sang to the cows and chickens and new mown hay that night as the Yankees rolled back to New York.

The next year he won twenty-four games for Huggins and beat the Cardinals in one of the world series games and ever since then he has been a strong, reliable right-hander on the 'varsity, barring the season of '31 when they took his appendix away and, on his recovery, somebody smashed a finger on his throwing hand with a drive.

He was erratic in the beginning, probably because he always tried so hard with his physical power without knowing how to use it sweetly.

Pipgras has had a hard, discouraging time and he owes his arrival at the top of his business as much to the shrewd, stubborn judgment of Huggins as to anything he has done himself. But for Huggins, he might have become an unappreciated drifter and might have drifted down and out several years ago.

TWO NIGHT GAMES.

Washington and Jefferson will play two night football games this fall, one with Detroit at Detroit, Oct. 7 and the other with St. Xavier at Cincinnati, Oct. 21.

POACHERS FIND WARDENS KEEP MORNING VIGIL

BY BOB BECKER.

Baseball fans have their world series to worry about this week, but game wardens in Illinois already are in the middle of an international series that is giving them much work these days. On one side are migratory birds, symbolical of an agreement between the powers of the United States and Canada. On the other side are poachers' shotguns. Game wardens are returning umpire's decision that are sending some of the poachers into the courts.

We heard about this battle a few days ago when we visited the Fox lake country with Walter Hamberger, the Illinois warden covering that district. Inasmuch as the jacksnipe have come down from the north and mudhens are swimming around on Grass lake by the hundreds, a few hunters are trying to kill these game birds before the season opens. But they are not finding the attempt successful. Hamberger and an associate warden are lying in wait in the marshes early in the morning for violators.

Mudhen Season Opens Oct. 16.

The season for hunting mudhens or coots doesn't start until Oct. 16, at noon. Therefore, hunters who fire on these birds before that time are courting trouble. A few days ago one would-be snipe hunter was caught with a bag of jacksnipe. The affair sent him to jail for 30 days, since he didn't have money for his fine.

The mudhens on Grass lake are so tame that you can almost catch them with your hat. On our visit we saw flocks ranging in size from a handful of birds up to 400 or 500.

The question of rice hens came up on our trip around Grass and Fox lakes. What is a rice hen in Illinois and when is it legal to shoot them?

Season on Gallinules Open.

Apparently, Illinois hunters are referring to the gallinule when they speak of a rice hen. Hamberger, the warden, and several residents of the northern Illinois lake country agreed on that. The gallinule is a member of the Rallidae family which includes the coots, rails and gallinules. It is about 13 inches long. When on the water it resembles a mudhen or coot, and generally frequents the marshy shores of lakes and ponds. On Grass lake we saw them just a few feet from the tall vegetation which grows up to the water's edge. They are very shy, too. When we attempted to get close to them for a long look through binoculars they walked gracefully into the weeds.

As far as we can determine from a careful reading of the Illinois game code there isn't a thing in the regulation about hunting these birds. Therefore the government regulation will prevail. The season is set from Sept. 1 to Nov. 30 in Illinois.

In the Wake of the News

ORIGIN OF "LUCKY SEVENTH"

THERE has been discussion in this column, prompted by the query of a youthful fannette, of the origin of the "Lucky Seventh" inning, preceding which spectators at baseball games almost universally arise and "stretch." This is supposed to bring good luck to the home team.

While the custom has been in vogue many years, none recalled its beginning until Henry P. Edwards, a veteran baseball reporter, now manager of the service bureau of the American league, advanced facts which seem to end the controversy.

According to Edwards, the originator of the custom was a New York fan of some 40 years ago when the slogan of the New York Giants, managed at that time by Jim Mutrie, was "We are the people." The fan's name was Gen. "Hi-Hi" Dixwell, noted for his rooting proclivities.

According to the accepted yarn, the Giants were trailing in a game by several runs and the crowd was apathetic. Whereupon Dixwell arose from his seat, with his exuberant and infectious enthusiasm, and yelled to the crowd "Get up for luck, the Giants can win this game." The fans did so. The Giants then batted out victory in the seventh and the custom was established, spreading to all parts of the country.

Pitching or Batting.

Pitching, according to tradition, decides most world series. If it is pitching, the Cubs, on advance dope, have the better of the argument. If it's batting, the odds are with the Yankees. Cubs pitchers will face harder hitting than most opponents in the National league gave them. National league sluggers, on the other hand, have not been so powerful against the Cub battery stars when the latter bore down. It's any one's guess. We'll string with the Cubs.

Football Retrospect.

In our inaugural football forecast for 1932 we landed on 26 winners, 1 loser, and two games tied. Five games we attempted to pick were not recorded, possibly through schedule changes not generally announced. Our loser was California against Santa Clara, the latter a coast college which has a habit of doing such things.

WHIRLWIND, USED BY MAROONS, IS NEW SHIFT PLAY

Coach Stagg Keeps Pace with Football Styles.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Almost without exception, the major collegiate football teams have adopted some form of a shift in recent years to screen their attacking formations. In some cases the players shift from a standard offensive formation, such as in the Notre Dame shift. The huddle also constitutes a shift.

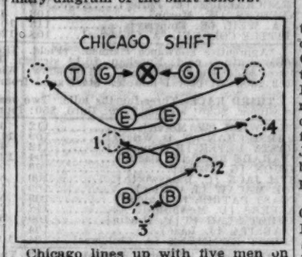
The advantage of the huddle is two fold. It permits the players to hear the signals, and it also screens the formation until the last possible second.

Coach Stagg is teaching a new form of shift at the University of Chicago this year. Mr. Stagg has invented and used about as many forms of shifting lines and backs as any coach in football.

Flanker Gains Ground.

The flanker formation used by Chicago in recent years is well known. Against Monmouth college last Saturday the Maroons used the flanker three times, gaining considerable distance with it twice.

Much mention has been made this year of Chicago's new shift. It has been named a "whirlwind shift." As used against Monmouth, it apparently was designed to screen the backfield formation, for the line remained balanced, that is, with three linemen on each side of the center. The primary diagram of the shift follows:



Chicago lines up with five men on the line of scrimmage. The ends are brought back of the center. Back of them in pairs, but two or more yards apart, are the four backfield players. The tackles and guards also are spread out. At the signal to shift [after the play is called], the guards and tackles close in to the center. The ends cross, the end on the right crossing behind the end on the left.

The Backs Shift, Too.

The four backs shift to the formation called for by that play. They may shift into the standard kick formation, or a single wing back formation [to the right or left]. The diagram indicates how they shift to a single wing back formation to the right. Number 4 is the wing back. For a dash off tackle or around end the ball is passed to No. 3. For forward passing, No. 2 received the ball and retreated to make the pass. This player also can take the ball for an apparent off tackle play and then pass interally to No. 3 for a wide end run.

Coulon Is Denied Permit to Hold Amateur Bouts

Johnny Coulon's application to the boxing committee of the Amateur Athletic union for a sanction to hold amateur bouts was denied yesterday at a meeting of the committee. Two other applications also were received.

The application of the Marigold Athletic club was granted after assurance had been given that gymnasium equipment would be installed and that all profits would be turned over for support of amateur athletics. The application of the Evanston Athletic club was held up pending investigation.

Bill Demetral was spokesman for nine Chicago wrestlers, who appeared before the state athletic commission yesterday to make a formal protest against the appearance of Jim Londos and his group at the Coliseum Oct. 10. Demetral stated his fellow wrestlers could not obtain work in Chicago because of the so-called Londos clique.

A bout between Primo Carnera and Tiny Austin at White City Oct. 10 has been sanctioned by the Illinois commission.

TWO TEAMS TIE IN PRO-AMATEUR GOLF TOURNEY

The regular pro-amateur event of the Illinois Professional Golfers' association yesterday at the Biltmore Country club resulted in a two way tie for first place, the teams of Byron Harcke of Northmoor and Clare Cummings of Biltmore and Don Hamilton of Beverly and Roy Smith of Biltmore finishing with best ball cards of 69. Jim Foulis of Ruth Lake shot the best individual score, a 70, two under par.

Tied at 70 were John Drucker of Chicago Golf and George Murdock of Biltmore, Bob MacDonald and F. C. Stamm of Biltmore, Jim Foulis and Harry Greeder of Biltmore, and Jack MacDonald of Southmoor, and H. E. Mitchell of Biltmore.

BY FRENCH LANE.

From out of a muddy racing program at Lincoln Fields yesterday there came an Illinois owned and bred two year old, which may be a mighty race horse one of these days.

Spicson, which races for L. M. Severson of Chicago, bred on Mr. Severson's thoroughbred nursery near St. Charles, gave that promise when he cantered to victory by five lengths in the best race on the program. He beat a fairly stylish band, but it was the the way he did it that gave the 7,500 who braved rain to visit the track the impression that he is destined to develop into a great performer.

Ten Lengths Behind.

Going down the back stretch with mud spattering into his face and eyes Spicson was 10 lengths behind. Stuyvesant Peabody's Pent House was leading the pack, Single Stripe was running third, and Bichloride, a fashionable Kentucky colt, was fourth. It appeared that Spicson could never catch up.

Rounding the bend, Jockey T. P. Martin took Spicson to the outside to escape the flying mud and the big chestnut began to eat up ground. He passed 'em all and as he headed into the stretch his nose was in front. In just about a furlong he had made up the 10 lengths.

Then it was that Spicson really began to turn on speed. He almost ran out of sight of those which were chasing him home. Single Stripe saved second money and Bichloride ran third. Spicson splattered the six furlongs through the mud in 1:15 2-5 and did it easily. He never was extended at any time. The tip had spread that he was a real runner. He was backed heavily and paid $6.30.

His Daddy a Good Performer.

Spic and Span, the daddy of Spicson, is at the head of the Severson stud. In his heyday he was a good handicap performer. Jenny Dear, the mother of Spicson, formerly raced in the Severson green and pink jacket. She was a noted mud runner.

Spicson is a big fellow and has a tremendously long stride for a 2 year old. The old theory is that a long striding horse doesn't like to run in the mud, but Spicson scoffed at that idea when he went into action.

4 ON SIDEWALK CRUSHED WHEN AUTO RUNS WILD

Hit and Run Driver Kills Unidentified Athlete.

Three boys and a man were injured last evening when an automobile, out of the driver's control, swept up on the sidewalk at 16th and Paulina streets and pinned them against a wall.

Frank De Carlos, 14 years old, 1641 Washburne avenue, suffered a fractured skull and other injuries. John Raggio, 12, of 1726 West 13th street, had a leg broken. The others hurt were George Vaughan, 14, of 1536 West Roosevelt road, and Harvey Shostel, 52, of 1065 West Madison street.

Driver Held by Police.

A tattooed man about 30 years old, believed to have been a pugilist taking his road work, was killed last night by an automobile, whose driver failed to stop after the accident, at Belmont and Pioneer avenue, River Grove. The victim was clad only in running trunks and tennis shoes. He wore a ring with the initials V. E. G.

Year's Death Toll 842.

William Remick, 78 years old, 7315 Oakwood avenue, Lyons, died yesterday in the Berwyn hospital of injuries suffered Sunday, when he was struck by an automobile at the Des Plaines river on Route 4.

These two deaths increased the county motor toll since Jan. 1 to 842.

Four women and a man, members of a party en route from Chicago to Cleveland, were severely injured yesterday at Angola, Ind., when their automobile overturned in a ditch. They were Mrs. Louis Eisenstein and her daughter, Flora, of 4158 Wilcox street, and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Feldman and Mrs. Fannie Rottenberg, all of New York, who were visiting the Eisensteins. Feldman was driving.

New York, Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Dorothy Hall, actress, and Neal Andrews, well known in theatrical circles, are to be divorced. The action will be brought by Miss Hall and she will go either to Mexico or Reno for the decree "as soon as possible." They will separate immediately.

The actress and Mr. Andrews, who were married six years ago, have put their signatures to an agreement which reads: "We have decided to separate by mutual agreement in the best of faith and with nothing but good will toward each other."

Supplementing this statement Miss Hall of the glistening blonde locks said today: "We feel we'll be far better friends living our own lives than we are married."

Dorothy Hall, a native of Bradford, Pa., is now featured in "Lilly Turner," current at the Morosco theater. She has advanced steadily in the last three seasons. She won tributes from the critics for her performance in "Lilly Turner," as she did for her portrayal of the title role in last season's "Child of Manhattan."

C. R. BALZER, 43, ARMOUR EMPLOYE 20 YEARS, KILLED

Carleton R. Balzer, 5734 Winthrop avenue, who had been connected with the sales department of Armour & Co. for more than twenty years, was killed yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding skidded on a road two miles east of Wanatah, in Porter county, Indiana, and overturned in a ditch.

Mr. Balzer, who was 43 years old, formerly was European representative for Armour. He was in London during the war and later was stationed in Copenhagen where he was a member of the Royal Yacht club, the Royal Auto club and the King's Golf club. He returned to Chicago about five years ago.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Evabelle Page Balzer, and a daughter. Funeral services are to be held in Rosehill cemetery chapel at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

Russia Renames Ancient City in Honor of Gorki

MOSCOW, Russia, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The great city of Nizhni-Novgorod, chief center of navigation on the Volga river and famous in medieval Russian history, has been renamed "Maxim Gorki" for "soviet Russia's foremost man of letters," who was born there. The fortieth anniversary of Gorki's literary activity was celebrated yesterday. His pen name is also to be perpetuated in the city of Moscow, replacing Tverskaya as the name of the main street. [Gorki's real name is Aleksei Pyeshkov.]

Head of British Munitions Supplies in War Dies; 65

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Col. Sir Percy Girouard, director of munitions supplies for British forces in the world war in 1915 and formerly governor of Northern Nigeria and of the East Africa protectorate, died today after a long illness. He was 65 years old. Col. Girouard was born in Montreal and educated at the Royal Military college, Kingston, Ont.

PARISH SCHOOLS SEEK TAX FUNDS TO KEEP RUNNING

Ask Public System to Take Them Over.

Bay City, Mich., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—The parochial schools of the diocese of Grand Rapids are facing a critical financial condition similar to that of Chicago schools. Lack of funds may necessitate the closing of several parish schools.

Disruption of the organization which educates 23,000 in the diocese of Bishop Joseph G. Pinten is threatened through the depression and failure of banks in which funds of the various schools were held. The schools are supported by voluntary contributions of parish members and a tuition fee of $1 a month for each child.

Appeal to Public Schools.

Unemployment has resulted in the inability of many parents to meet the fee and a drop in the contributions. Bank failures have wiped away reserve funds.

Many of the parochial schools have appealed to the public schools for support. They offered a program under which the public schools would hire the parochial school houses and sisters as teachers pointing out there is no legal objection.

Under Michigan law public schools receive from $18 to $20 a year for each school child from the state regardless of attendance in parochial schools. In the Grand Rapids diocese this income from parochial pupils is estimated at $460,000 or far more than enough to tide the schools through their present crisis.

Counter Proposal Made.

Superintendents of public schools have refused the proposal offering as a counter proposal to take over all parochial school children by shifting pupils. The counter proposal has been rejected to date by parish priests, but several have expressed the fear they will have to close their schools and leave the pupils go where they can.

In Bay City Father L. P. Krakowski has already closed the parochial high school and the kindergarten. In St. Stanislaus school, he said, he will be forced to refuse admittance to children unable to meet the tuition fee and those unable to pay will perforce go to public schools. The schools normally have an enrollment of 2,500 pupils.

New Quarters Occupied by Goodwill Industries

The Goodwill Industries opened its new headquarters at 1841 West Congress street yesterday. The building was once the West Division High school, later the home of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and until last year the University of Illinois Medical school building. It has now been converted into a workshop where sewing machines and hammers will be in action in the hands of 300 handicapped men and women employed in the reconditioning of discarded furniture and clothing. The material will be resold at a few cents an article in the various stores conducted by the organization. Walter C. League is superintendent of the Goodwill Industries.

H. W. Buckingham Dies in California; Ex-Chicagoan

Henry W. Buckingham, 64 years old, formerly of Chicago, and a cousin of Clarence Buckingham, in whose memory the Buckingham fountain in Grant park was erected, died suddenly yesterday at his home in Pasadena, Cal., according to word received here yesterday by Joseph E. Otis, vice chairman of the board of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company. The late Mrs. Buckingham was the former Florence Otis, a sister of Mr. Otis.

J. W. Dickinson, 80, Killed in Auto; Ex-Chicagoan

John W. Dickinson, former Chicago cement manufacturer, was killed yesterday in an automobile accident at King City, Cal., according to a message received here by relatives. Mr. Dickinson, who was 80 years old, left Chicago about fifteen years ago to engage in banking at Scarsdale, N. Y. He had resided in California for the past year. His brother, T. G. Dickinson, is president of the Marquette Cement company.

Legion Post Votes 175 to 3 Against Bonus Payment

The Advertising Men's post of the American Legion yesterday voted 175 to 3 against immediate payment of the soldier's bonus. The poll was taken at a luncheon in the Hotel Sherman.

HOPELESSLY ILL, ACTOR, WAR VETERAN KILLS SELF; LEAVES NOTES

New York, Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Anthony Paul Kelly, dramatist and scenario writer, was found dead today in his apartment where he had inhaled gas. He left a note to the police explaining he could not endure a hopeless illness any longer. He left a request that there be no religious rites at his burial.

He had also written to Mrs. Anna Delaforce, a friend, that he had intended to end his life, asking her to inform his two brothers and friends.

Kelly was 35 years old and a world war veteran. Until recently he had been in the Mount Vernon hospital, Mount Vernon, N. Y.

"This is a plain case of suicide," the note said. "I am hopelessly ill and I can see no sense in prolonging this agony. Kindly notify the American Legion and the U. S. veterans' bureau. They, I believe, will bury me. Please notify my brothers Charles T. and Edward J. Kelly, 75 Van Buren street, Chicago, Ill."

"Three Faces East," with which Mr. Kelly made his bow to the legitimate stage in New York after an experience of several years in the films, was a mystery melodrama dealing with German spies in England during the war. He married Miss Grace Canary in 1921. They were divorced.

COURT BATTLE OF STATES LOOMS IN DORRANCE TAXES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Pennsylvania, through a decision by the State Supreme court today, laid a claim to approximately $21,000,000 in inheritance taxes from the estate of Dr. John T. Dorrance, founder of the Campbell Soup company.

The decision, holding that Dr. Dorrance was a resident of Pennsylvania at the time of his death, presaged a possible legal conflict that may reach the United States Supreme court, as New Jersey is expecting to collect inheritance taxes of $12,000,000 on the ground that the home of Dr. Dorrance was in that state.

In its decision the Pennsylvania Supreme court said the estate had been estimated "at a figure exceeding $115,000,000."

"We are not impressed with the argument that Dorrance owed a moral obligation to the state of New Jersey by virtue of having accumulated his vast fortune there," the majority opinion said, "or in the words of the appellees, that 'both in law and in justice New Jersey was entitled to tribute from John T. Dorrance, while to Pennsylvania he owed no such debt."

"The large profits which came to him through his ownership of the Campbell Soup company represented the results of nation-wide sale of his products. His money was acquired from the country at large and not from any particular state. Moreover, Dorrance was by birth a Pennsylvanian."

The court held specifically that from Nov. 14, 1925, when the Dorrance family moved from Cinnaminson, N. J., to Radnor, Pa., "until his death, almost five years later, Dorrance was domiciled in Pennsylvania."

Eva Davenport of Former Stage Fame Dies Aged 74

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Mrs. Neal T. O'Brien, who as Eva Davenport won fame on the stage during two generations, died here today at the home of her daughter. She was 74 years old, but had been on the stage until six years ago, playing last in "A Student Prince." Her earlier successes were in "Patience" and "Pinafore."

George Hayward, Aurora City Commissioner, Dies

George Hayward, 66 years old, a city commissioner of Aurora, died yesterday at his home of a heart attack. He was a native of Aurora and owner of one of the largest grocery stores in the city. He is survived by his widow, Maude; a son, Frank, of Portland, Ore., and three grandchildren.

Thomas Boyle, 46, Excelsior Sales Manager, Is Dead

DR. BILLINGS' WILL DIVIDES $300,000 ESTATE

Daughter Given Bulk; Employes Share.

The will of Dr. Frank Billings, dean of Chicago physicians, was filed yesterday with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin of the Probate court. It leaves an estate of $300,000 to his family and employes.

The will, in the shaky handwriting of Dr. Billings, was written last July 1. It creates a trust fund for the young sons of the doctor's daughter, Mrs. George R. Nichols II. The sons, Frank B. and George R. III., are to receive the income of $50,000 until they reach the age of 25 when the trust is to be divided between them.

Leaves Fund for Secretary.

A trust fund of $25,000 is created for Miss Mabel Marsh, 4054 Oakenwald avenue, who for 27 years was secretary to the doctor. At her death the principal is to go to Mrs. Nichols.

James J. Horne, 2239 Lincoln avenue, who was the doctor's chauffeur for 27 years, is to receive $5,000. Each of six maids in the employ of the family for more than 3 years will receive $100 for each year of service.

Daughter Co-Executor.

The balance of the estate will go to Mrs. Nichols. The daughter is co-trustee of the trusts with the Northern Trust company and executor with the trust company. Homer D. Dines of the law firm of Cooke, Sullivan & Ricks, is the attorney.

The will is to be submitted to probate before Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner next week.

Dr. Billings died in his home at 1550 North State parkway Sept. 20 at the age of 78. He numbered among his patients many of the business leaders of the city of the last generation and founded several of the city's largest medical and scientific units.

RITES TODAY FOR LOUIS C. HABER, WHO DIED AT SEA

Funeral services for Louis C. Haber, 5618 South Racine avenue, veteran south side merchant, will be held in the chapel at 3125 West 63d street today at 2:30 p. m.

Mr. Haber, who was 72 years old, died at sea on Sept. 4. His wife, Mrs Caroline Haber, was the winner of a $1,000 prize in THE TRIBUNE's Washington bicentennial crossword puzzle last spring, and decided to use the money in taking her husband to Europe. He had been ill for several months. His death occurred while they were three days out, en route from New York to Hamburg. The body was brought back to Chicago on Saturday.

For more than forty years Mr Haber had conducted stores on the west and south sides. Besides his widow, he is survived by three daughters.

No Matter What Your Age No Need Now to Have

Gray Hair

Now Comb Away Gray This Easy Way

HAVING gray hair is no longer necessary, no matter what your age. Keeping hair gray is risky because it screams "you're getting old." To allow gray hair to cheat you out of your job, or the love and happiness younger looking men and women enjoy, should never be permitted. To end gray hair worries all you now have to do is to comb your hair once a day, for several days, with a few drops of Kolor-Bak sprinkled on your comb. All the gray disappears like magic within a week or two. So perfect are the results, and so gradual the change, that a user reports his friends forgot he ever had a gray hair, and even when told, still insisted he had never done a thing to his hair. Ending gray hair handicaps, now that you can get Kolor-Bak, the clean, colorless liquid, is inexpensive, quick and easy.

How It Works

Using Kolor-Bak right at home, without any mess, without any stickiness, without any soiled linen, you'll find as pleasant and nice as using water. To end gray hair handicaps—to impart youth-like color again to ugly graying locks—to avoid heartaches, loss of positions and promotions—to look years younger and far more attractive, go to your nearest drug or department store today and get a bottle of the original and genuine time-proven Kolor-Bak.

TRY Complete Treatment FREE

SEND NO MONEY. NO C. O. D. NO OBLIGATION.

Just mail coupon—and we will send postpaid enough Kolor-Bak for even the heaviest head of hair. Use it all if necessary—watch how the embarrassing gray completely disappears. Don't send a penny. No C. O. D. No Obligation. This is our daring new way of introducing Kolor-Bak to those who have not yet learned its magic. If you really want to look years younger rush Coupon or postal card today. This liberal offer is for a limited time only. If you delay you may be disappointed.

SEND TODAY

UNITED REMEDIES, Inc., Dept. 79-K. 365 E. Illinois St., Chicago.

I accept your liberal offer of enough Kolor-Bak for even the heaviest head of Gray Hair—to try absolutely FREE. I send no money—I pay no C. O. D.—I am not obligated to buy any. You send it postpaid.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 26.—Bond prices were mixed today, with mild profit-taking in speculative rail issues and continued underlying demand for high grade corporation bonds.

After opening higher, prices of speculative bonds eased during the remainder of the session. News affecting the rail outlook was colorless, though an optimistic interpretation was placed in quarters upon the action of the interstate commerce commission in approving immediate payment of $1,200,000 of the Nickel Plate loan application.

As for the remainder of the market, United States governments were active and strong, while good demand cropped out for miscellaneous issues, including Argentines and Germans.

Rail Prices Ease Slightly.

No great uneasiness was occasioned in bond circles by today's slight easing of rail prices, since this division of the market had a sharp advance at the close of last week.

Bond men continue to stress the firmness of high grade bonds, pointing out that institutions are taking up the floating supply of such issues. Gains in high grades today included both rails and utility issues.

Moreover, institutional buying is noted in relatively inactive bonds, chiefly in the rail list. Such buying is particularly encouraging since such bonds, owing to their poor marketability, are unlikely to return soon to the market.

Hits New High.

Continued absorption of United States government securities lifted the price of the new treasury 3¼ per cent note issue, dated Sept. 15, to a new high at 100 7-32 on the offered side of the market. Other issues were active and higher, market interest veering toward Oct. 15 financing, with much of the discussion turning toward the possibility of an issue of long term bonds.

Protection and Prompt Aid.

The Home Loan bank plan, the newest vehicle created by congress to relieve the pressure on the harassed purchasers of modest homes, comes closer to the hearthstone than any other phase of the federal government's anti-depression drive. There is invested in small homes in the country today approximately twenty billion dollars. Investors of so large a sum have a right to protection. The Home Loan bank system, it is hoped, will furnish protection and immediate help where sound business judgment makes it possible.

The nation's home owners are divided into three classes. First, there is the family with a long term mortgage that has just fallen due. From $2,000 to $10,000 is due to be paid. This usually means not only the mortgage but, in addition, commission charges, delinquent taxes and interest.

The second class takes in those people who have an amortized mortgage—usually a monthly payment loan—the payments including both principal and interest. Through reduced income it is impossible to keep up the payments stipulated in the agreement. The need here is to keep up interest and taxes and possibly extend principal payments over a longer period of time, which means refinancing.

The third class includes those families who have paid off all incumbrances but into whose homes have gone their entire savings, and who now, because of unemployment, bank failures, or some other misfortune, desire to draw on their savings. Ordinarily, they could secure a new mortgage.

TO THE EDITOR: I have a home on which all taxes to date are paid, valued for taxation purposes at $12,000. A mortgage of $1,000 is due on Nov. 1 and I am informed by the —— National bank, which holds same, that it is too small for them to handle. Other banks and insurance companies inform me they are not making loans at this time. I would appreciate any suggestion you may offer where such a loan can be secured. E. O.

ANSWER: From the facts stated the loan wanted appears to be most desirable. We suggest you try several building and loan associations, especially one of those who have subscribed to the Federal Home Loan bank system. You might also try to secure an extension on your present loan for one year, offering to pay 1 per cent commission. If you have any difficulty, write the Home Loan bank, Evanston, Ill., describing your property and requesting an application for loan. We understand the local Home Loan bank will not be in active operation until Oct. 15. The officers and personnel have not been announced, but your letter will be held in Evanston and immediately forwarded this organization when they taken over the new work.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Cloth inquiries were fair at the market opening today. Prices were steady in rayons, cottons and burlap. Demand is broadening for silks and wool goods from the cutting trades.

TIME DEPOSITS OF BANKS SHOW UPWARD TREND

Financial Situation Continues to Gain.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Banks throughout the country continue to improve their condition. They have not yet arrived at the point where they are lending more money to industry, but increased loans usually follow rather than lead business recovery.

Yesterday the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago issued a report showing that the time deposits of banks throughout the country belonging to the federal reserve system had increased $17,000,000 in the week ended September 21.

This is not a large increase, considering the total amount involved, but it represents movement in the right direction. The improvement in bank deposits has been under way for several weeks.

Draw on Reserves.

Other things being equal time deposits tend to shrink in a period of business depression because that is the time when people out of work and those who have sustained business or market losses are drawing upon the reserves that they built up during good times.

It is reasonable to conclude, therefore, that quite a substantial amount of the money that is gradually being withdrawn from socks and safety deposit boxes is going back into bank accounts—more than enough, at least, to offset the withdrawals necessitated by hard times.

Even though the banks have not begun to pour credit into business the whole credit picture has been considerably brightened since early June when public confidence was at its low ebb. Faith has been restored in the nation's banking structure.

Do Not Need Credit.

One of the chief reasons why banks are not pumping credit into industry is that industry doesn't need it. The results of a credit survey conducted by the national industrial conference board showing that many corporations were carrying on without asking bank loans have already been published.

Chicago bankers say that they have made the same discovery. Many companies that have already enjoyed an upturn in volume, they say, are carrying on for a time with surpluses that they built up during good times and haven't yet exhausted.

Yesterday's federal reserve report showed that member banks throughout the country during the week ended Sept. 21 decreased their total loans and discounts $37,000,000 and increased their investments $411,000,000. This increase in investments was more than accounted for, however, by a $422,000,000 upturn in U. S. government securities. Other securities held, in fact, actually declined $11,000,000.

Reflects Government Financing.

This reflects the heavy government financing this month and throws much light on the destination of these recently sold "governments." Almost half of them were bought by banks.

Earlier this year the commercial banks were selling government bonds, taking advantage of the opportunity presented by the federal reserve banks. The reserve banks by buying governments in the open market brought up the price of such bonds to a point where the commercial banks could sell them without taking a loss. Now the commercial banks are acquiring new government short term issues.

Total borrowings by member banks from the federal reserve banks declined last week from $148,000,000 to $113,000,000.

It has been the history of depressions that bank loans did not begin to expand until long after security and commodity prices had turned upward and recovery had definitely set in. Usually there has been a lag of nearly a year.

Improving Position.

The commercial banks throughout the country are improving their condition and getting themselves in excellent shape to accommodate industry when the demand for bank loans begins to increase.

The type of credit extended by emergency credit groups such as the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the federal home loan banks could not be afforded by commercial banks even in good times. It is mostly long term credit of the type ordinarily taken care of by the sale of bonds to investors.

Public confidence in the highest grade utility and municipal bonds has already improved to a point where such issues can be sold. This improvement will extend to other grades and types of bonds when investors can be given reasonable assurance that the would-be borrower can operate profitably and employ the invested capital to the mutual advantage of the lender and the borrower.

World Labors Under Burden of Arms' Taxes

BY SCRUTATOR.

On the eve of the international conference at Geneva, Switzerland, to discuss limitation of armaments, some recent data compiled by the New York Trust company indicate the growing burden imposed by competitive armament among nations. Expenditures of the principal nations, except Germany, were not only much larger last year than before the world war but they increased considerably over 1927.

World expenditures for armaments in 1913 totaled approximately two billion 531 million dollars, with Germany taking the lead. But by 1930, twelve years after the world war, such expenditures had risen to about four billion 128 million dollars and for 1931 the total was nearly five billion dollars. As Germany's expenditures were drastically curtailed by the peace treaties, this accentuated the increases made by the other principal nations.

How Powers' Costs Rise.

Great Britain	375.1	564	535	42
France	348.7	210.5	455.3	30
Italy	170.1	207.8	256.5	44
Japan	95.5	212	232.1	142
Russia	447.7	362.9	579.4	30
United States	244.6	591.5	727.7	197
Germany	463.3	156.6	170.4	*63

*Decrease.

In 1913 Germany expended more on armaments than any other nation and the United States ranked fifth, whereas last year the United States topped the list and Germany was last as the result of virtual disarmament under the treaties. The seven nations spent approximately two billion 959 million dollars in the 1930-1931 fiscal year, compared with two billion 305 million dollars in 1926-1927, an increase of about 29 per cent in five years and an increase of about 37 per cent over 1913-1914.

France Doubles Expenses.

It will be seen that France more than doubled its outlay in the last five years and the United States showed an increase of about 23 per cent. Russia also shows a large increase but Japan and Italy made moderate expansion. Great Britain reduced its expenditures slightly. Compared with expenditures by the nations in 1913-1914, the United States has made the largest increase both in dollars and in percentage, although Japan has not been far behind.

The analysis points out that the figures, which were taken from returns furnished by the governments to the league of nations, show that the United States is spending more on armaments than any other country. It is noted that armament costs of this country are disproportionately large because of higher price levels, largely the result of ambitious tariff policies and, in part, due to a need for efficient coördination and methods, as indicated by official economy proposals this year.

Burden Retards Recovery.

"The heavy burden of armament costs in the United States has its counterpart in the principal countries of the world and, in the opinion, frequently expressed, of leading statesmen and economists here and abroad, is one of the major obstacles to world economic recovery," the New York bank says.

"Last year, with many governments facing bankruptcy, with millions of men women unemployed, with huge sums needed for relief, the nations of the world spent nearly five billion dollars on armaments."

Hoover Urges Delay in Rail Wage Parley

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—(AP)—President Hoover has launched efforts for postponement until after next Jan. 1 of all further railway wage reduction talk.

Secretary Doak, after a conference with the chief executive today, issued a statement saying Mr. Hoover had conferred with leading railroad presidents and with representatives of organized railway labor, in an effort to defer discussions of an additional 10 per cent wage reduction until the end of the year, when "the general economic situation would be much clearer."

Leaders Call on President.

More than a score of representatives of the Railway Labor Executives' association last week called upon the President, asking the administration intervene in their behalf.

Secretary Doak's statement, referring directly to that request, follows:

"In the matter of the railway wage discussion now going on, the President last week expressed the view, both to the representatives of railway labor and to the leading railway presidents who have conferred with him, that he felt that it is desirable that this question should be deferred at the present time.

"The present agreement does not expire until Feb. 1 next. The President's view was that it might be well to defer further discussions until the end of the year."

Unions Oppose Parley.

Prior to calling upon President Hoover, the Railway Labor Executive association voted to turn down a request that they meet with a committee of railroad executives in an effort to arrange a further wage reduction. Railway labor agreed last January to a 10 per cent reduction for one year.

The labor representatives, at the conclusion of their meeting, deposited a lengthy statement with Mr. Hoover opposing a further wage reduction at a time "when there are some hopeful signs that the depression may have run its course."

U. S. Crude Oil Exports in August 2,839,000 Brls.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—(AP)—The department of commerce reported today that crude oil exports from the United States in August were 2,839,000 barrels, an increase of 590,000 barrels over July, but 17,000 barrels less than August, 1931. The total August exports of refined products was 5,295,000 an increase of 610,000 barrels over July and a decrease of 3,051,000 compared with August 1931.

Finished Products Make Up 43% of August Exports

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Finished manufactures comprised 43.3 per cent of the total United States exports in August. The department of commerce said today that last month they were valued at $46,353,000 compared with $84,069,000 a year ago. Total domestic exports for the month were $106,875,000 against $161,494,000 last year.

RAIL REPORTS SHOW PROFITS MOVING HIGHER

Northwestern Road Showing Better.

The better volume of traffic carried by the railroads in the latter part of August was reflected in the monthly earnings statements made by carriers yesterday. The results reported were not uniformly favorable, but the statements of some of the lines represented substantial improvement.

For the first time since March this year the operations of the Chicago and Northwestern failed to show a deficit. The road reported net operating income of $675,867 for August which compares with an operating deficit of $1,462,845 in July and $173,234 in June. March and February were the only other months this year in which the road did not show a loss from operations. The operating deficit for the first eight months of the year was $796,976 as compared $5,278,849 net operating income in the same period last year.

Milwaukee Shows Profit.

The Great Northern railway also enjoyed during August its first operating profit since last December, it reported today. Net income was $362,392 in August. The July deficit was $980,580, and the August, 1931, profit was $148,227.

Name Four to Aid Coolidge in Rail Probe

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 26.—Former President Calvin Coolidge will announce Tuesday or Wednesday his acceptance of the chairmanship of a nonpartisan railroad commission on which Bernard M. Baruch, Clark Howell, Alexander Legge, and Alfred E. Smith also have consented to serve.

The commission is the result of mobilization of virtually every bank, insurance company, and major business association in the country for a concerted effort to convince congress of the imperative necessity of immediate legislation to protect the financial foundations of the railroad industry.

Baruch, the only railroad man on the commission, is a director of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad; Howell is editor of the Atlanta Constitution; and Legge is president of the International Harvester company and a former chairman of the federal farm board.

The scope of the Coolidge commission for surveying the situation of railroads is being enlarged to include all the transportation facilities of the nation, including buses, trucks, pipe lines and other carriers, according to information received in the financial center today.

Investment Firms Believe Turn Is Made, Survey Shows

Approximately 84 per cent of the replies received so far from investment houses queried by Distributors Group Inc. believe that the turn in general business is behind us, according to a report yesterday on the preliminary results.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 26.—[Special.]—With a turnover of not much more than 2,000,000 shares, the stock market opened the week on an off note, the general run of favorites losing from fractions to about four points on the day. All sections had an equal share in the recession, although the rails posted losses somewhat sharper than the rest. The usual dozen most active issues made up 40 per cent of the entire business.

There were signs that this was to be another day of rising prices when the session started with a general advance, but the movement lacked vigor as the volume fell off on the rise and the list gave way to selling. There

302 Investment Bankers in 27 States Say:

"the turn has come!"

Impressed by recent changes in sentiment regarding business, Distributors Group, Incorporated last week asked 1441 prominent investment bankers located in 42 states to state their carefully considered opinion of economic conditions at the moment. Answers are now pouring in.

Preliminary returns reflect overwhelming opinion that the turn in business and in security prices has been made, that the long process of recovery is at last actually under way.

Out of 351 replies already received from the East, Southeast and Middle West, 295 say that the turn in business is here; 302 believe the turn in security prices has been made.

These opinions come from men in a position to know the truth. If you accept them, there is only one conclusion: stock prices will rise.

"But what shall I buy," says the investor, "in order to be sure of a share in recovery?"

There is a clear and certain answer—NORTH AMERICAN TRUST SHARES. These shares, representing an ownership in 34 stocks, the total market value of which is approximately half of the total value of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, will follow the market. So positive a statement can not be made of any single security.

Why attempt to guess the market action of an individual stock? Leading banks and security dealers throughout the country recommend NORTH AMERICAN TRUST SHARES. Ask your investment banker about them today—and share in recovery.

These Shares will follow the Market!

Hogs met another draggy trade yesterday. Prices drifted slowly back after the market had staged a feeble and unsuccessful rally on opening rounds. Cooler weather and light receipts favored a better market, but the anticipated improvement in consumer demand for pork failed to materialize over the week-end and this left the early show of strength without cut backing.

Relatively low prices at other western markets curbed eastern buying at Chicago. Little support came from this course of outlet when shippers bought less than 3,500 head, the smallest Monday shipment of the season, with one exception. Compared with Saturday's lifeless trade prices were steady to 10c higher early, but closed barely up to that day's low point. The majority of selling was 10@15c under the high point of last Friday. The extreme top at $4.55 compared with $4.25 Saturday when top grades were absent and with $4.60 last Friday, the high mark of last week. The general average at $4.00 equaled Saturday and showed 5c loss compared with Friday.

Best Cattle Sell Well.

Trading in the cattle yards yesterday was just another repetition of almost every session last week. Prime weighty beeves were scarce and stood out conspicuously in the price list, equaling the highest sales of the season, while the rank and file sold on a weak to unevenly lower peddling market. The poorest grades slid into the lowest price levels in several months. Many of the steers selling at $6.00@8.00 showed losses of 25@40c on the late afternoon trade. The United Dressed Beef company, a New York house paid $10.35 for a shipment of 1,360 lb steers. Another sale of "stick-outs" was made at $10.25.

The bulk of steers sold at $6.00@8.50, poorer grades ranging down to $4.50. The rank and file of steers are selling 50@75c under the recent high point. With the exception of a few choice fed heifers that held steady, butcher stock continued to break, going down mostly 15@25c more. Calves were weak to slightly lower. Stockers and feeders declined 15@25c.

Western Lambs $6.00.

There was a slight improvement in the wholesale market for dressed lamb carcasses yesterday, but live lambs continued to drag and in places were bought at 15@25c lower prices. Owing to better quality, a few top-notchers made higher mark in the range lamb column, with three loads to eastern houses at $6.00.

Country buying of feeding lambs expanded and prices were near the high point of the season. A string of 1,000 sold at $5.35.

WESTINGHOUSE BUYS 4,000,000 POUNDS COPPER

New York, Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Orders for 4,000,000 pounds of copper, an amount far in excess of current business demands, has been placed by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, according to an announcement here today by F. A. Merrick, president.

This large scale commitment at this time, according to Merrick, is influenced by sound economic factors, a firm belief that business has turned the "corner," and as a step to stimulate employment in the basic industries.

"The world isn't finished," stated Merrick, "and as electricity plays such a large part in our lives today, we are hopeful that even these large reserves of copper will shortly need replenishment."

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $500 quickly and easily.

You get the full amount of the loan, and up to 25 months to repay. Interest at the REDUCED RATE is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.
